CALENDARS.

Instructions to Editors.

The Master of the Rolls desires to call the attention of the Editors of Calendars to the following considerations, with a view to secure uniformity of plan in the important works on which they are engaged:—

He is anxious to extend, as far as is consistent with proper economy and despatch, the utility of the Calendars of State Papers now publishing under his control: 1st. As the most efficient means of making the national archives accessible to all who are interested in historical inquiries; 2nd. As the best justification of the liberality and munificence of the Government in throwing open these papers to the public, and providing proper catalogues of their contents at the national expense.

The greater number of the readers who will consult and value these works can have little or no opportunity of visiting the Public Record Office, in which these papers are deposited. The means for consulting the originals must necessarily be limited when readers live at a distance from the metropolis; still more if they are residents of Scotland, Ireland, distant colonies, or foreign states. Even when such an opportunity does exist, the difficulty of mastering the original hands in which these papers are written will deter many readers from consulting them. Above all, their great variety and number must present formidable obstacles to literary inquirers, however able, sanguine, and energetic, when the information contained in them is not made accessible by satisfactory Calendars.

The Master of the Rolls considers that, without superseding the necessity of consulting the originals, every Editor ought to frame his Calendar in such a manner that it shall present, in as condensed a form as possible, a correct index of the contents of the papers described in it. He considers that the entries should be so minute as to enable the reader to discover not only the general contents of the originals, but also what they do not contain. If the information be not sufficiently precise, if facts and names be omitted or concealed under a vague and general description, the reader will be often misled, he will assume that where the abstracts are silent as to information to be found in the documents, such information does not exist; or, he will have to examine every original in detail, and thus one great purpose will have been lost for which these Calendars have been compiled.

As the documents are various, the Master of the Rolls considers that they will demand a corresponding mode of treatment. The following rules are to be observed :—

1st. All formal and official documents, such as letters of credence, warrants, grants, and the like, should be described as briefly as possible.

2nd. Letters and documents referring to one subject only should be catalogued as briefly as is consistent with correctness. But when they contain miscellaneous news, such a description should be given as will enable a reader to form an adequate notion of the variety of their contents.

3rd. Wherever a letter or paper is especially difficult to decipher, or the allusions more than ordinarily obscure, it will be advisable for the Editor to adhere, as closely as is consistent with brevity, to the text of the document. He is to do the same when it contains secret or very rare information.

4th. Where the Editor has deciphered letters in cipher, the decipher may be printed at full length. But when a contemporary or authorised decipher exists it will be sufficient to treat the cipher as an ordinary document.

5th. Striking peculiarities of expression, proverbs, manners, &c. are to be noticed.

6th. Original dates are to be given at the close of each entry, that the reader may know the exact evidence by which the marginal dates are determined.

7th. Where letters are endorsed by the receivers and the date of their delivery specified, these endorsements are to be recorded.

8th. The number of written pages of each document is to be specified, as a security for its integrity, and that readers may know what proportion the abstract bears to the original.

9th. The language of every document is to be specified. If, however, the greater part of the collection be in English, it will be sufficient to denote those only which are in a different tongue.

10th. Where documents have been printed, a reference should be given to the publication.

11th. Each series is to be chronological.

12th. The Prefaces of Editors, in explanation of documents in the volume, are not to exceed fifty pages, unless the written permission of the Master of the Rolls to the contrary be obtained.

* * Editors employed in foreign archives are to transcribe at full length important and secret papers.

P R E F A C E.

ONE series of letters in the present volume demands a special notice. It is the correspondence of Thos. Ross or Rowe, consisting chiefly of letters addressed by him to Sec. Nicholas. The earlier letters make an allusion to a cypher to be arranged between the two (pp. 69, 79). The following letters use this cypher more or less, and not only are many words in cypher, but the general tone of the letters is a disguise, and they are made to resemble as nearly as possible letters on business matters. The names of political persons and parties are veiled under names of gentlemen, and the important persons generally have three or more pseudonyms, thus :—

Charles II. is Cannon, Creeke, Mrs. Brogden, Hall, or Valentine.

Cromwell,—Dobson, Jackson, Norton, or Pope.

Adm. Blake,—Gourden.

Council of State,—Mrs. Moody.

The army,—Mrs. Mattersey.

Arms,—lutestrings.

Foot,—dowlas.

Horses,—stuffs, boxes of marmalade, or pairs of shoes.

The fleet,—Sugden.

London,—Layton.

Gloucester,—Westminster.

Chepstow Castle,—Uxbridge.

Defensive arms,—pots of Jesmin.

A declaration,—a lease of ejection.

Hundreds of pounds,—grains of musk.

Letters,—stockings.

To levy men,—to fell timber.

Men,—pounds or tuns of wine.

A port,—a deed of gift.

A pound,—men or pigs of lead.

Presbyterians,—clothiers or dyers.

Royalists,—registers or retailers.

On account of this form of cypher, some of the letters, when decyphered, hardly read intelligibly (pp. 166, 196, 237, 244, 263, 339, 372, 394). We require to keep in mind continually that the commercial phraseology is but a veil for political intelligence. This remark applies still more to the letters addressed to Ross by his correspondents in England; these were more carefully worded as being more liable to interception than his own, which are usually dated from Paris.

In some cases these letters have been wholly or partially decyphered by Nicholas, in others not at all; but a key to the cypher fortunately exists in the collection of cypher keys in the Public Record Office, vol. vi. p. 42. It is not entirely complete, but the blanks are supplied by Nicholas' decyphers, and by the remarks upon the cypher in the letters themselves.

Another set of cypher letters is the correspondence between Sec. Nicholas and his son-in-law, Jos. Jane, at the Hague. This is a case of ordinary figure cypher. No key to it is known to exist, but the letters have been for the most part decyphered by means of a key formed from the interlineations of Jane in some of the letters. Occasionally a name occurs which has not been interlined in any letter, and therefore has to be left to conjecture. The plan of the cypher being quite regular, it is always possible to know what the initial of the missing word is likely to be (p. 159).

It is from these and other letters addressed to Sec. Nicholas that most of our information relative to the Royalists is gathered, as well as much relative to the foreign and domestic proceedings of Cromwell.

The Protector's home policy was gradually becoming more and more stringent. His chief counsellors were St. John, Thurloe, who had formerly been St. John's secretary; Lawrence, president of the Council; and Fiennes, who was brought in by him (p. 80). An ordinance lately passed prohibiting ejected ministers from acting as chaplains or schoolmasters in families, or from preaching anywhere, was felt as a peculiar hardship (p. 28).

Cromwell was keenly alive to his own unpopularity, and took precautions accordingly. He had a system of intelligence both at home and abroad so perfect that the Royalists were in consternation, time after time, to find that their most secret designs were known. To counteract the plots continually hatching against his life, he increased his life guard. That appointed for him in February 1656 was at a total cost of 14,089*l.* a-year, being well nigh double the previous charge (pp. 18, 192), and the pay assigned alike to officers and soldiers was enormous, considering that money was about $4\frac{1}{2}$ times its present value. The captain had 28*s.* a-day, other officers in proportion, and each of the 160 soldiers 4*s.* a-day (p. 203). To meet this charge, without increasing the cost of the army establishment, the troops in the horse regiments were reduced from 50 to 48 (pp. 249, 326). The soldiers of the guard were exempt from ordinary jurisdiction. A bailiff who had arrested one of them was himself taken into custody by order of Council (pp. 317, 337, 582), and a citizen of London who arrested another, was required to give an account of his conduct to Strickland, who was captain of the guard (p. 370).

A Royalist officer, writing on January 10, 1656, says :—

“I hear from England that, while others enjoyed their Christmas with mirth and freedom, Cromwell doubled his guards of horse and foot, on either real or pretended fears of the Anabaptists, who have been active and bold in feeling the pulse of several officers of the army. Some say, (but it is thought a fable), that they have lately tampered with his barber to make short work with him, but they certainly hope to destroy him by prayer, which (as they say) was the way they raised him. Simpson, with one or two other fierce Levites and a cornet of Harrison’s regiment, are made prisoners on this account.

“Ludlow, after his close imprisonment at Beaumaris, was brought before Council on the charge of not acknowledging the present power ; he refuses to give bond to be faithful to it, yet he is set at liberty, and has leave to go about the country, to ensnare him (as is believed). When Cromwell, lest he should disturb him during his absence in Scotland, made him Lieutenant-General of the Irish horse, a friend called to congratulate him, when his reply was that ‘ he must needs go whom the devil drives ;’ so you see the jealousy between them.

“The poor orthodox clergy have passed a Sunday in silence ; the old Bishop of Armagh has been with Cromwell, but to little purpose, though he had some court holy-water, a dinner, and a confirmation of church leases in Ireland” (p. 109).

The majority of the army officers however still remained faithful to the Protector, and held a meeting at Whitehall, at which the idea of an hereditary Protectorate was broached and met with approval. This and other points of legislation were discussed and virtually settled, and then it was proposed to call a Parliament for the sake of formal approval of what was already done (p. 209). Such was Parliamentary rule under the so-called Commonwealth !

The King’s party in England suffered severely under the decimation tax, and “panic fear” “entered the most generous breasts.” The oath to be imposed would destroy them, it was said, like a massacre. The authorities were very severe in exacting the tenths, "and every gentleman must give in the number of his servants and security for their deportment, so that all show of liberty is lost. I pray," adds the writer, "that the sense and memory of it be not lost too, if they be long used to the burden" (p. 69).

Another Royalist writer says: "I hope our friends in England, being now under the lash, are so sensible of the smart that they will do their duty" (p. 79). On the other hand, one of the instruments of these decimation proceedings, Col. Rowland Dawkins, writing to the Protector from Swansea, says: "The effects of our work are very observable; our enemies are much terrified, our friends encouraged, peace secured, and wickedness suppressed. Though the dealing is severe, the people of this country think it necessary; just indulgence has but hardened them in their malignity, and but for our proceedings, the good interest had been overtopped by the royal and worldly" (p. 265).

About the same time Sec. Nicholas writes:—

"We hear of 3 more gentlemen imprisoned in England, on some intelligence from the miscreant Manning. Cromwell finds opposition in the counties in settling taxes for raising money to maintain forces, for the peace of the country, as he pretends. Sir John Mounson, at a late meeting in Lincoln thereon, told Whalley, major-general of that shire, that he had compounded formerly at a dear rate, that the Act of Oblivion freed him, and that having ever since his composition submitted to the Government, he conceives it very unjust to demand anything from him, and that he would pay no more taxes. Thereupon he rose, and the rest of the gentlemen followed, but a troop of horse was sent after Mounson, and he was carried prisoner to his own house.

"The deputies or majors in all counties proceed with rigour in assessing all compounders, and others not actually in Cromwell's service or favour" (p. 303).

"Several persons are now sequestrated for being in the late King's garrisons in time of war, though they only lived there because their estates were there, and never acted; but nothing will satisfy the Majors General, whose wills are laws in the country. I am very sorry for the sufferings of these neuters" (p. 210).

And again, a few months later,—

"There are great distempers now among the great ones that rule in England, and Cromwell is more full of jealousies than ever. Lambert is the army's darling and the only person courted; he has acted more these three weeks than in all his time before. He is daily in Council, and carries all before him; he has chosen all the new life-guard, who are absolutely his creatures. Col. Lockier [Wm. Lockhart] who married a kinsman of Cromwell, goes ambassador to France, but with him Lambert sends his secretary, a subtle villain. The rebels are still in great want of money, and Cromwell intends, by his Majors General, to make the rich citizens pay him good sums. Many gentlemen are leaving London, choosing rather to fall into the hands of the country Majors-General than into those appointed for London and Middlesex. People that never thought of going beyond seas are now meditating how to get out of England speedily" (p. 236).

His correspondent, replying from Paris, writes thus:—

"I cannot tell what to say as to your writing that Lambert is the darling of the army. It is true that he is the only active person in England, and the man used by the Protector formerly to cajole the army, so that I hear that the army are not well pleased with him" (p. 265).

The Royalists who were driven out of their country retired for the most part to Flanders, where a plot was hatched, including amongst its favourers several discontented Parliamentarians, who craved the King's distinct approbation of their scheme, and the assurance that the past would be forgiven in favour of their present loyalty (pp. 133, 155). The leading features of the plot were to surprise Gloucester and Bristol, and then effect a rising, to start which 6,000 men were promised (pp. 329, 344).

It was hoped that Charles II. would receive an invitation to remove to Flanders; Antwerp was at first spoken of (p. 196), but the invitation was tardy in its arrival. Sec. Nicholas writes from Cologne, on 23 November 1665,—

“Many of our friends would have the King go to Flanders without invitation, and negotiate his own business with the Archduke and the King of Spain’s ministers. Some are so earnest that they would not have him wait till he knows that his presence there would not be unacceptable, which is a strange precipitation, and might beget distrust in a people that love to walk with a slow pace in affairs of consequence. If the King hastens into Flanders before he is expected, it may so disorder the ministers that they may advise him to withdraw, or it may make Cromwell the sooner patch up a peace with Spain, with the same conditions for excluding the King and his family out of all his dominions as the King of France has consented to, and what then would become of his Majesty? Keep all this to yourself, and let me have your opinion on it” (p. 31).

The following February he writes, still from Cologne:—

“We expect by the next post an invitation from Flanders for the King’s going thither, and Hyde is so full of belief of it as he is earnest with me that I should prepare to go with him on Monday next from here; but till I see that the King is invited, I shall not be so hasty; if the King shall command me to [go] when the first company doth, I shall leave my wife and family here till I see where the King will settle, and Ned, who is lame with the gout, shall stay with his mother. If the King when in Flanders makes a conjunction with Spain, and settles in those parts, consider whether you had not best remove thither” (p. 191; the italics are in cypher).

The hopes of the English Royalists were concentrating upon a breach between Cromwell and Spain (p. 32); this might lead to an alliance between Spain and Charles II., which would unite their efforts against the common foe. Charles offered great service to Spain by sea and land, if that King would allow him the free use of Dunkirk and Ostend. Charles expected much from the loyalty of the English fleet, if only they had ports to which they could securely resort, and from those ports troops could be conveniently landed in England. The Admiral of Ostend promised the King 3 ships, and Charles proposed to live near Dunkirk (p. 32).

If Royalist authorities are to be credited, the discontent was general in the English fleet. In a confidential letter written 4 March, 1655-6, Sec. Nicholas says :—

“ The fleet in the Downs is very mutinous. Blake and Montague were sent by Cromwell to pacify the seamen, who are angry because Lawson is not Vice-admiral. Cromwell took his commission from him, suspecting him to have had a hand in last year’s mutiny. Badiley takes his place, but is not so well beloved as the other. The discontent among seamen is so general that, if they had known they would have security in the King of Spain’s ports, by his having made a fast conjunction with our King, many, nay most of the fleet would have abandoned Cromwell, who is said to be most odious among the seamen ” (p. 209).

The Royalists took means to foster this discontent (p. 237). One outcome of it was great reluctance on the part of seamen to accept service in the fleet. The agents employed to press them are constantly reporting the extreme difficulty they find to obtain men (pp. 160).

From Plymouth, Yarmouth, Aldborough, and Southwold, came complaints not only that the men ran away from the press, but that the bailiffs, constables, &c., refused to give the press-masters vigorous assistance, and practically connived at the escape of sailors (pp. 157-8, 163, 169, 173, 215).

Major Burton writes from Yarmouth :—

“ Southwold was beset by Col. Brewster’s troop, but the officers of the town were so base that they could not get a man ; as fast as our people searched one part of the town, they got into the other, although they searched with candles. I am sending warrants to the constables in the hundreds to apprehend the seamen who were pressed, and have run away with the State’s money, as also to impress others, but the seamen are so afraid of being sent to the West Indies that they say they would as soon be hanged. I never saw men so hard to be obtained in my life " (p. 160).

Another reason of the unpopularity of sea service was the prevalence of piracy, and the frequency of captures of ships.

The unsettled state of affairs between England and Spain was productive of very disastrous results at sea. An order was given for seizure of all Spanish ships in English harbours, and letters of marque were frequently issued to sufferers from the Spaniards (pp. 17, 250, 301, 388). Some time elapsed before a formal order was issued to seize English ships in Flanders (pp. 31, 50, &c.), yet the Dunkirkers and Ostenders were cruising about in all directions at sea. Not only these, but ships set out by privateers, with commissions from Charles II., and James Duke of York, as Lord Admiral, manned partially at least by Englishmen, inflicted great damage on all vessels that were heedless enough to venture without convoy (pp. 281, 298, 304, 343-4, &c.). A proclamation was issued ordering that no quarter be given to Englishmen taken on board such vessels, as they had already been summoned to return home (p. 293).

Petitions for the grant of convoys, and complaints of the mischiefs accruing from their paucity and the difficulty of obtaining them, are very frequent (pp. 203, 210-1, 229, 239-40, 264, &c.)

Whether there would actually be a declaration of war between England and Spain was for some time matter of doubt. In November 1655, it was said that Spain still hankered after an accommodation, and that an envoy from Cromwell had arrived at Madrid, but that the King held back, in hopes that the Levellers would fulfil the promise they had made to kill the obnoxious Protector, and then "he would easily make peace with England, though it were a Republic, as probably it would be if that monster were in his grave" (p. 31). In December it was still surmised that Cromwell would "patch up a trade-peace" (p. 68). Things took a turn, however, with the new year, and on 1 February we are told that the King of Spain is resolved to arm all he can against Cromwell. The point on which conciliation had become impossible was that Cromwell demanded free trade in the West Indies, and some ports there to secure that commerce "which the King of Spain will rather hazard his crown than yield to" (pp. 159-60).

His apprehensions of Cromwell's designs were strengthened by an evidence of design to plant West Indian colonies, as 2,000 young women were sent over thither. "An excellent expedient," writes Nicholas,

"to pay the godly women for their silver thimbles and bodkins, lent the rebellious State at the beginning of the rebellion, for in those Indies, they may have wedges and ingots of silver, to make thimbles and bodkins for all the holy sisters in England" (p. 210).

The previous volume of this Calendar notes Cromwell's capture of Jamaica, and the preparation of another fleet for the West Indies. This volume records the preparation of two fleets; one was to be under Vice-Admiral Lawson, who was to command the "Resolution," but he was superseded; either he refused to go because he was required to act under sealed orders for greater secrecy, and was not allowed to know the object of the expedition (pp. 135, 141, 197), or Cromwell took his commission from him. Both statements are made by Royalist authorities (p. 209). Vice-Admiral Rich. Badiley was appointed in his place, but was not nearly so popular among the seamen.

The other fleet was to be under Generals Blake and Montague, to go to the Straits (p. 110). Its equipment and manning were strenuously cared for, and an embargo was laid on other ships, at the time of its departure, that sailors might be obtained with less difficulty (pp. 187, 191, 195). On 29 February 1656, we hear that "our terrible fleet of 40 ships is nearly ready, but wants men, and money will not be had on any condition" (p. 206). The lack of men was supplied by putting soldiers on board, in the proportion of one to five of the seamen (pp. 65, 119), and in March the ships were fairly started, sailing from Torbay (p. 513). On April 2 three provision ships were sent after them to Lisbon, and on 9 April their arrival at the Southward Cape is recorded.

Their first object seems to have been to intercept the Spanish West India ships. In this they were only partially successful, as they record the arrival of 4 West India ships in Spain, and the departure of 28 Spanish sail, whereof 3 were men of war, to the West Indies (pp. 529, 534).

Their second object was to bring the King of Portugal to a decision as to the part that he would take in the impending contest between England and Spain. The articles first tendered to him were liberty of religion to English merchants there resident; leave to victual in his ports; and the payment of 20,000*l.* which was promised for damages done by the Portuguese to English merchants. These requests were at first flatly refused. Cromwell, in his anxiety to secure access to the ports of Portugal, in his approaching contest with Spain, consented to waive the article about religion, and early in March, sent Phil. Meadows over as envoy (p. 236, 503, 504). A more powerful argument than any that Meadows could use however was the arrival, in the neighbourhood, of the English fleet. In May we hear that Blake is ordered to attend the return of the Portuguese fleet from Brazil, and threaten the intercepting of it and the appropriating of its treasures (p. 333). A correspondent on one of the ships writes thus :

“Those in the fleet regret being idle. When we left England we expected to have done great things, and should have done but for slackness and false intelligence. The Spaniard keeps his fleet in, is strengthening his garrisons, and does not intend making any attempts upon us, but merely try to weary us out, and we, with our present strength, are not able to molest him. We are too self-conceited and selfish. Men are troubled for want of prizes, but not that the work of God does not go on, and that we do no service against our enemy, one of the main supporters of the whore of Babylon. England's glory must be performed by England's self-denial.

“The Portugal begins to be very jealous of us, and is afraid of his Brazil fleet, which is expected home in six weeks. He has denied the building of an English church in Lisbon, as the Pope and Jesuits will not consent, and no men are allowed to go further on shore than the watering place. The fleet is in good condition, and men healthy. We are expecting ships from Holland, laden with munition, and 2 great Holland merchantmen are stayed on suspicion.

“The English fleet is much troubled by 3 gallies that come out of Cadiz every morning in calm weather, and as they keep beyond the guns' range, there has been a great waste of powder and shot on them, without anything being done ” (p. 313).

On June 16, the same correspondent writes from Cascaes Roads :

“The fleet arrived here on the 5th inst., and forced a conclusion of the 5 years' work already spent, which would have taken 5 more in shuffling, had we not come and lain between the Brazils fleet and home. The Colchester went to Lisbon, and received the 50,000*l.* ordered to be paid on the agreement, and it has since been shipped in the Sapphire and Phoenix for England. The Rear-Admiral with his squadron were also sent for from Cadiz here. The Spanish business does not look handsomely, but I conceive our designs will take effect, and be greatly for the honour of the nation. We hear 4 Hollanders got into Cadiz with anchors, cables, powder, and shot, while the Rear-Admiral was watering at Tanzy [Tangiers?]. I think Cadiz, with the Spanish Armada lying unrigged, is worth the sending over 8,000 or 10,000 men, as, if Cadiz should not be taken, yet the beleaguering of it, while we are destroying the Armada, would save a deal of charge, by keeping less ships upon that coast, and the Spaniard would be wholly undone, and we should thus be able, with less danger, to possess and keep any place we have a mind to for the future upon his sea coast.

“P.S.—The Generals, hearing that the man-of-war which took the Cullen was gone into Vigo with her prize, have sent the Fairfax with 5 others, either to bring her away or burn her” (p. 373).

This ends the information on the subject afforded in the present volume.

Several points of home legislation deserve notice. Col. Edm. Harvey, one of the Commissioners of Customs, and Capt. Langham, their cashier general, being suspected of fraud in the discharge of their important duties, were suspended and committed, Harvey to the Tower, and Langham to the custody of the Serjeant-at-Arms (pp. 8, 9). A committee appointed to examine the whole accounts reported that the smallness of the cashier's salary—only 100*l.* a year—had subjected him to undue temptation (pp. 16, 19).

Harvey fell ill under the strain of his confinement and its attendant anxieties; physicians were sent to the Tower to examine him and, on their report, he was allowed in December to go to his house at Fulham for a month, on security to the Lieutenant of the Tower to give himself up to custody at the month's end (p. 76). This security was first fixed at the enormous sum of 20,000*l.*, equal to more than 80,000*l.* of our present money (p. 78), but it was afterwards reduced to 10,000*l.* (p. 92). Process was issued from the Exchequer on his estate, both real and personal, for payment of the moneys due for Customs (pp. 119, 137), and on that account he was allowed the liberty needed to pursue his affairs (p. 129). Shortly after, his leave of absence from the Tower was renewed, and he finally obtained his discharge (p. 169).

As it was found necessary that Langham, being cashier, should from time to time be present at the examination of the accounts, he was liberated on bail, in such sums as the Committee for Preservation of Customs should decide upon (pp. 242-3).

In spite of the repeated requests of Harvey and of Judith his wife, for dispatch, the enquiries were long and tedious (pp. 55, 71, 99, 164). The issue was that the Commissioners, viz., Harvey, Ald. Rob. Tichborne, Mark Hildesley, and the late Dan. Taylor, were brought in debtors to the amount of nearly 50,000*l.*, and this sum was rigorously demanded (pp. 38, 273). They pleaded for delay, and revision, the accounts being long, and complicated by the cashier, and obtained first a week, and then a fortnight's delay (pp. 286, 295).

Meantime the Navy Treasurer, Hutchinson, requested the appointment of a committee to enquire into an unjust demand of Harvey for sums that were never paid to Hutchinson, that the guilty might be proceeded against; the case was referred to the Committee on Public Money (p. 292), and the Customs' Commissioners were finally brought in debtors only to the amount of 23,000*l.* Of this part fell to the share of the estate of the late Dan. Taylor, one of the Commissioners, whose heir being under age, there was difficulty in raising his proportion. They were prepared to pay in 13,000*l.*, but they begged a respite for the remaining 10,000*l.*, on the plea of the improvement of Customs whilst in their hands—the interception of trade with Holland and Portugal, and the prohibition of French commodities notwithstanding—and also of the obligation laid on them to make good all losses sustained through the collectors of out-ports, which had been allowed to their predecessors (p. 328). Finally an arrangement by which they proposed to pay 22,000*l.* within 18 months was accepted, but reducing the time to 12 months (pp. 352–3).

A fresh contract was entered into with other Commissioners for the management of the Customs, but the particulars of it transpire only partially (p. 232). Cromwell himself guarded the provisoes, so as to make not only the superior officers, but the inferior, dependent on himself for their appointments and retention in office (p. 241, 245).

The proceeds of the Excise and Customs having been set apart for the use of the navy, it was ordered that the Commissioners should pay them weekly to the Navy Treasurer, drawing up weekly accounts. Many of these are still preserved, and will appear in a series in the calendar for December 1656 (pp. 259, 282).

An offer was made by three merchants, whose long trading had given them experience in matters relating to Customs, to take the supervision of this branch of the revenue, which they expected to raise 100,000*l.* a year, and their demand was only 2*s.* a pound on any advance above 50,000*l.* It was deemed expedient that they should have the oversight of the subordinate officers, for discovery of fraud or neglect in the management of exports and imports, and a patent was granted them accordingly (pp. 41–2, 64).

Another point of interest in home legislation was the treatment of the Jews, relative to their free admission to trade in England. Manasseh Ben-Israel published a book, which he presented to Council, in favour of the legality of their admission. Their requests were for personal security, freedom of worship, private cemeteries, permission to trade freely, appointment of an officer to whom they should take the oath of fidelity, and leave to reconcile their own differences among themselves, without appeal to civil law. Also a general revocation of former edicts against Jews.

These proposals met with strong opposition; it was urged that they would seduce the English to Judaism, would injure trade, and that the Jews would set a bad example by their practices in regard to marriage and divorce, and their laxity as to the observance of oaths to Christians. It was represented that they ought not to be allowed to speak, act, or write, to the disparagement of Christianity, to keep Christian servants, or to hold any office of trust, and that severe penalties should be inflicted on any persons apostatizing to Judaism (pp. 15-6).

A large committee of 28 persons, representing the interests of religion, law, and trade, was appointed to meet with the Committee of Council to which the petition of the Jews had been referred (p. 23), to consult as to granting them some concessions, but the strong religious prejudices of the people took alarm at the idea of the proposed toleration. A captain and Navy Commissioner writes: "I observe the great business of the Jews is under consideration. I hope the Lord will direct in a matter of such concernment. If the first question should be passed in the affirmative—whether a Jewish nation shall be admitted to live in this Commonwealth—I hope the next will be whether a nation shall be suffered by a law to live amongst us to blaspheme Christ" (p. 51). A few days later he thanks his correspondent for his large letter about the Jews, "by which I perceive there are workings of the heart to know God's mind in a business of such consequence. I hope it is in truth, and that the Lord will appear, so as that their table may not prove our snare. I see cause to fall in with Mr. Peters again, especially with the latter part of his discourse, for there may be just grounds to question whether they be Jews, and it may be observed that some of them have made but little conscience of their own principles" (p. 58).

This was in December 1655. By the following March, though far from having obtained all their requests, they had made some progress. They had obtained leave to meet in their private houses for devotion, and by the agency of Manasseh Ben Israel, they renewed their desire for a written protection, and for licence to have their own cemetery out of town (p. 237).

An incidental notice of Ben Israel occurs in reference to a polyglot edition of the Bible, concerning which there are several letters addressed to Williamson, who was one of the subscribers (pp. 286, 339, 366).

H. Thorndike writes that the late Lord Primate, Archbishop Laud, made him consult Ben Israel about the original of the Masora, "which (as he had read) contained the bulk of a Bible, carefully prepared in some of their synagogues, and he offered to pay for it, if it could be procured, so as to ascertain the reading of their Bible; but either skill or will to pleasure Christians was wanting, for I could not persuade him to comply. If it had been obtained, it could not have come into this edition, but somewhat might have been found about the value of the original" (p. 366).

The letters addressed to Williamson, afterwards secretary to Charles II., give us some insight into the literary life of the times. Williamson was a fellow of Queen's College, Oxford, and a collector of books, and therefore in his correspondence we have a sprinkling of college news and gossip about books. Moreover Williamson became travelling tutor to four youths, sons of Mr. Brome Whorwood, of Sandwell, co. Stafford, of Sir Fras. Norris, of Sir John Lowther, and of Lady Lowther by a former marriage. In the fond anxieties of the parents, and the erratic tendencies of the sons, we have a specimen of the "old and young England" of the 17th century. Sir Francis Norris writes to Williamson, then at Saumur in France :

"I hope Ned will make the best use of his time. Let him not want for anything fit for him. My wife sends her service. Our blessing to Ned" (p. 188).

"I hope Ned's good disposition continues, gentle dealing does best with him. There has been a sad accident by quarrels among friends. The place where you are is very dangerous; Ned should have some money in his purse, beside the 50*l.* that I shall send him. I hope he will give himself to reading, and learn to understand French" (p. 281).

Again, he writes :

"I send 60*l.*; 10*l.* is for Ned's own purse. I see your influence over him continues, and I hope there is no difference. I wish he were more in love with your reading to him. Mr. Whorwood speaks of his son's coming home if mine does, but we must understand each other's intentions.

"Do you discover an aptness in my son to the language? I should like him to write and read it. I enclose a letter to him from his mother; he will notice her motherly counsel; he is very dear to her. There must be clothes bought" (p. 298).

On June 18 he writes further :

"Mr. Whorwood only said he would send for his son when I sent for mine, but only that I love Ned's company, I think he is as well there; if he wishes to go further, I will not hinder. The route you speak of for Italy is somewhat dangerous, both by sea and land. Tell me what Ned desires; he will be much bettered by this going abroad. Do not let him have too much disputation about religion.

"We have hot weather. Ned should avoid violent excursions and strong wine. God preserve him from infection. Tell him his colt is a very fine one" (p. 378).

Sir John Lowther writes :

"I find from my son that my letters to him are missing; they commended improvement in his style and matter, and reproved some excess in expense; he must not exceed the allowance of a younger brother, but I find by cousin Northleigh that he is too much given to tennis. Tell me his faults that I may use my authority to cross them. Be circumspect of his carriage, and remove occasions of folly from him. I will send the salary, and if the fruits answer our hopes, I will be mindful of you. Can you receive a youth of 17, son of a special friend of mine, who is to be sent to France, and if so, at what allowance?" (p. 333).

And again :

"I suppose my wife's son has arrived with you. Have an eye over their actions, and prevent their errors. My son Richard cannot stay long, as I intend him for the common law, but he should get the language by reading authors and conversing. We go north to-day; write me of their progress in study" (p. 387).

Mr. Whorwood, sen., writes :

"I am troubled that you do not get my letters and remittances for Brome. I will consult with Sir Fras. Norris about your intended motion with your charge, which I like. I am sorry they make so slow progress with their French, but better creep than stand still; do all you can to promote it. Tell Brome I am sorry he is such a blockhead, pleasing himself rather than me" (p. 372).

Several entries occur in this volume relating to the foundation of a college in the city of Durham. It originated in a petition of the mayor, aldermen, and inhabitants of the city, and of the justices, sheriffs, grand jury, and gentlemen of the county, for the foundation of a college for religious education, the houses of the late dean and prebends to be settled on trustees, and the funds given to the college, as also the rental of Wickham and Gateside manors, formerly belonging to the bishop (pp. 140, 156).

A committee of 5 members of Council was appointed to consider of persons fit to draw up regulations for it (p. 213), and they returned a list of 26 persons, 9 of whom were members of Council, 3 law officers, several ministers, and others gentlemen of Durham and Newcastle, who were to meet at Whitehall for the purpose (pp. 218, 288, 297, 325). To forward the undertaking, letters were addressed by Council to 14 gentlemen of Durham, Darlington, Newcastle, and York, requesting their subscriptions in its behalf, "considering the advantage to the gentry round of its speedy erection" (p. 262).

We find several notices of the seizure of books, both on moral and political grounds, e.g. :

"Sportive Wit; or, the Muses' Merriment," as being scurrilous and profane (pp. 288, 298).

"Choice Drollery, Songs and Sonnets," on the same ground, delivered to the Sheriffs of London to be burnt (p. 314). Likewise Ex otio negotium; or, Martial's Epigrams translated, as tending to the corruption of manners (p. 325).

Certain books not named were also seized as "reflexive upon the present Government" (p. 308).

We have an account of the performance, in May 1656, of Sir Wm. Davenant's opera, afterwards printed under the title of "An Entertainment at Rutland House," but here called "The Entertainment by Music and Declarations, after the Manner of the Ancients" (p. 396).

Also notice of a Council order, granted at request of Gen. Montague, that the "monument money at Westminster should be appropriated in reversion to the maintenance of 5 masters of music" (p. 204). One of these,

Thos. Ball, a Royalist, was allowed to remain in London and Westminster, and teach music, the late Proclamation notwithstanding (p. 63).

The period embraced by the present volume is only eight months, owing to the number of original papers preserved, which are more abundant in 1656 than in the years immediately before or afterwards.

Exeter, merchant, to be the Trade and Navigation Committee, to regulate and improve trade, and receive propositions for the benefit thereof; to send for Customs' officers, or others of experience, to consult with, to view all records of the late Trade Council which may be useful; and when they have decided on any new measure, to report the same to Council. With power to appoint a secretary, clerks, and other officers, with fit salaries, and to report them for Council's approval, that the salaries may be ordered to be paid. All the members of the Committee to be summoned by letter.

9. A stop to be made of the cutting down and carrying away of valuable timber on Lorking farm, Berks, part of the estate of Sir Henry Moore, who was engaged in the last insurrection. The Receiver-General of Berks to see this order executed.

10. The particulars brought in by Col. Sydenham of the pensions charged on the Exchequer, with the arrears on other payments, beside the Navy, referred to the Treasury Commissioners who are members of Council, also to Desborow, Lambert, and Jones, to consider which of the sums mentioned must be paid at once, and to report. Annexing,

96. 1. List of pensions alluded to, total, 54,318l. a year; with list of arrears, 90,888l. 12s. 5d. [2 pages.]

11. The Treasury Commissioners to sign warrants for the 2 Privy seals, payable to Martin Noel, for so much paid by him to his Highness' agents abroad, the restraint of 5 Oct. notwithstanding.

13. Order that there be a standing Committee of Council, consisting of all the members, to 3 or more of whom are referred all private petitions now come, or which shall come before Council, and all petitions, reports, &c., already depending; they are to proceed on them in course, without varying the general rules, unless by special leave of Council. Their power to commence this day, and they are to meet in the room next the Council Chamber. Every Thursday to be set apart for receiving their reports.

14. The Committee's report on Lionel Scott's case to be considered tomorrow.

15. The King of Spain has laid an embargo on English ships and goods in his dominions without premonition—although by the Treaty of 1630, 6 months' notice was to be given, in case of a breach of peace between the nations,—and justifies his conduct on pretence of an English fleet sent to the West Indies, although it is notorious that for years the kings of Spain exercised barbarity towards all English coming for trade, or driven by weather into the West Indies. Therefore his Highness, after full debate in Council, finds himself obliged to remedy these hostile courses, and grants a general embargo on all ships and goods belonging to the said King or his subjects, and also universal reprisals against the subjects of Spain, Flanders, and his other territories, at sea or in port, to be brought to judgment in the Admiralty Court, and condemned ac-

97. Luke Whittington to [Sec. Nicholas]. If it is not convenient for the King to grant me the 10 or 12 commissions for privateers on the terms I asked, then beg him to restore me as his agent for maritime affairs at Dunkirk, and the other ports of Flanders, for which purpose I have drawn up a petition to him, which I send. I hope to do as good service in that employment as any.

I have written the news to your son Edward. [1 page. Endorsed by Nicholas as received, $\frac{4}{14}$ Nov.] Enclosing,

97. I. Petition of Luke Whittington to the King, for the said post, which he before held, and by great industry, made it yield profit, which it had not done before; but he was turned out through mis-information of Wm. Loving, without compensation for losses, and was traduced as having defrauded the King and Duke of York of great sums in his accounts. [1 page.]

Nov. 2.

Order thereon in Council that he have leave to stay in town till the next term. [I. 76, p. 361.]

Nov. 2.

99. Petition of Wm. Sherman and Col. Purbeck Temple to the Treasury Commissioners. Sherman has long held the office of Registrar to the Vicar-General of Canterbury, with the institution of clerks to benefices, the granting of marriage licences, and many dispensations, and a jurisdiction of 100 parishes for probate of wills and letters of administration; he also had the registries of the arch-deaconries of Exeter and Totness, 300 parishes, which was the most of his livelihood. He has shown his affection to Parliament by advance of horses and money. Having assigned $\frac{1}{2}$ his office 9 years ago to his nephew, Purbeck Temple, he begs a commission to him to grant marriage licences in the province of London, or his settlement in some other office belonging to the province of London. [1 page.] Annexing,

99. I. Note that the Canons Ecclesiastical require banns published before marriage, but Bishops were used to grant licences. [Scrap.]

99. II. Reasons for granting marriage licences: especially that it will enable parents or guardians to enter caveats against marriages without their consent. [1 page.]

Nov. 2. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1, 2. On a certificate from Dr. Bates that Lady Nieuport is dangerously sick of a fever, the question whether Lord Nieuport, now prisoner in the Tower, may have liberty to be at Brook House for a week, under a guard, on his parole to do nothing against the State, passed in the affirmative, and the Lieutenant of the Tower to take order accordingly.

3. Order on report from the Committee on Lovell Scott's petition—shewing that on letters of credit sent to the Isle of Wight in 1644, for repayment in London of moneys spent on victualling Lyme, co. Dorset, then besieged by Prince Maurice, the petitioner disbursed 500*l.* 15*s.* 1*d.*, which Parliament ordered July 24, 1648, to be paid from the receipt of the grand Excise, but it was not paid; that by order of Parliament, June 25, 1649, he was allowed to come in as a purchaser of dean and chapter lands for the said money, upon doubling; but having paid 40*l.* a year interest on the said 500*l.* (part of his lands being engaged for the same) for 11½ years, which, with the principal, comes to 960*l.*, and being unable to advance money to double on dean and chapter lands, he received no satisfaction—that on Scott's buying from the yet remaining dean and chapter lands so much as, at the prescribed rate, shall amount to 960*l.*, the treasurers of that receipt pay that sum to the Exchequer Treasurers, who are to give it to the petitioner, in lieu of all demands. Approved 9 Nov.

4. Order on report from the Admiralty Commissioners on the accounts of Chas. Walley [see 26 Oct. 1655—that besides his receipts for compositions, sequestrations, and assessments in several counties, transmitted in specie into Ireland, at request of the Treasurers-at-war, there is charged on him, from 17 April 1649 to 31 July 1654, 47,755*l.* 12*s.* 6*d.*, and his discharges are 48,723*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.*, so that 967*l.* 18*s.* 4*d.* are due to him; that for 2,310*l.* 10*s.* 10*d.* he had no vouchers, but certified payments on oath, of the truth of which they are satisfied; but that 810*l.*, part of the balance, is for store room, riding charges, &c., for himself and servants, at 150*l.* a year, which should be charged on the late Treasurers-of-war out of the assessments—that the accounts be allowed, and the balance paid by the said Treasurers, on warrants from the Army Committee. Approved 7 Nov.

Biscoe on account, —for an order to the Army Committee accordingly, the same being for the time after the commencement of the last establishment, and Biscoe to give an account to Council of his payments to the persons concerned. 101. II. *Certificate by John Lawrence, deputy muster-master to Dr. Stanes, to the facts of the petition, and to the payment of the men up to 23 July only, whereas the order for reduction did not come to the governor of the Island till 17 Aug., and most of them landed in Cheshire on 28 Aug. 20. 103, 104. The Admiralty Commissioners to give order for shipping the materials and provisions for Jamaica.

21. An order of 3 Oct. last to the Army Committee, to pay 10*l.* to Thos. Fothergill, surgeon to his Highness's regiment, for medicines for the forces in Scotland, vacated, and a warrant advised for his payment from Army contingencies.

22. Gen. Venables' resignation of his several commands in Ireland read. [I. 76, pp. 361-6.]

Council to the persons named as members of the Trade Committee. His Highness, considering the importance of the good regulation of trade, has appointed a number of persons whose ability and experience qualify them to be serviceable therein, empowering them to consider how trade and navigation may be improved. You are named as one of this Trade Committee, and desired to attend its first meeting, Nov. 27, 1655, in the Painted Chamber at Westminster. [I. 76, p. 363.]

Nov. 5.
Chatham.

105. Commissioner Peter Pett to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Indian has all on board, and may sail for the Indies to-morrow. Particulars of ships. I send account of the remains of stores in Gen. Penn's fleet, and of beer in the George and Unicorn. Last Friday, going down the river, I spied some gentlemen on board the Naseby, and found them to be the eldest son of Lord Nieuport, the Ambassador of Holland, with other gentlemen, and a servant who has more than ordinary skill in taking landscapes and painting ships. He had drawn Upnor Castle and some part of the Naseby, and they were recommended by Col. Crompton, Governor of Gravesend, for a sight of the rest of the navy. I used them civilly, but begged they would not take it ill if I demanded their drafts, which I have sent up sealed, believing such attempts are not allowed without the consent of the Lord Admiral or Admiralty. They had a desire to take the river at the situation of the new dock, pretending it was their master's desire, but I could not suffer it without order; I told them I doubted not you would gratify the Ambassador's desire, as far as conduced to the safety of the nation. Jas. Pollard, steward of the Triumph, has been very diligent in his employment. [1½ pages.]

Nov. 6.

106. Petition of Archibald, Marquis of Argyle, to the Protector. I have come, as in duty bound, to kiss your hands, expecting no change in particular cases in the laws and constitutions of those nations, as practised many years past; but last Thursday I was arrested at the suit of Eliz. Maxwell, widow of the late Earl of Dirleton, because in 1644 and 1645, I, with many more, became bound to her husband for meal for the armies then on foot for the good cause. Lord Dirleton accepted for this debt a receipt on the Parliament of England, and it was only by negligence that the bond rested in his hands. Being a Scotch bond, amongst Scots, and now in process before the Judges there, it is hard that a Scot should have to answer here; for the Scotch, though never so unjustly arrested, would often find it impossible to get bail here. I beg that I may be redressed in this particular, and that all suits of Scots against me may be referred to the Judges in Scotland.

With note of the Lord Chief Justice's opinion that it would be best for Lady Dirleton to withdraw the case, and leave it to the law of Scotland. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

Nov. 6. Reference thereon in Council to the Lord President and Mr. Strickland, to understand the state of the case from the Earl of Argyle, and report. [I. 76, p. 366.]

Nov. 6. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. Sir Rich. Onslow added as a Commissioner in the orders and instructions for Surrey.

2. Mr. Scobell to sign copies of the order for securing the peace, with the instructions with blanks, and to send them to the Major-Generals for the several counties.

3. Montague, Jones, Sydenham, and Mulgrave, to be a Committee to consider how to find out the estates of the late King's party in the several counties.

4. Montague, Jones, Sydenham, Desborow, and Lambert, to be a Committee to consider who are fit to call to account those who have received public moneys, and what instructions they should have.

5. A letter be prepared and presented to-morrow to the Lord Mayor of London for Protestant strangers, and the like for Westminster.

6. Mulgrave, Strickland, Desborow, Rous, Skippon, Sydenham, Lisle, and Montague, to bring in a declaration for the assessment for the next 6 months, with the same sum as before, and to consider the names to be added.

7. Sydenham presents a declaration of the Establishment, with alterations which Scobell is to examine, and compare with the former Establishment.

9. The fine imposed on Lord Hartfell by the Act of Pardon for Scotland to be wholly remitted. [I. 76, p. 366.]

Nov. 6. 107. Thos. Lamplugh to Williamson. The client's greasy purse is yet in nubibus with me. I have not conversed with one good angel this term. Good Michael's angel doctrine is not canonical with my student's gown. I will tell you without fee, as you sue in formâ pauperis, that your words against Littleton (that worthy sage of the law) are actionable; therefore expect such an arrest as the proudest fellow in Queen's shall not bail you. You have to wrestle with a shrewd antagonist, who has the law in his own hands. [1 page.]

Nov. 7. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. Order, on examination of Col. Wm. Langham and others, by the Committee appointed yesterday on a matter then in debate, that Col. Edm. Harvey be committed to custody in the Tower, and there kept close prisoner till further order.

Nov. 7.COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings (cont.)

2. The cause of his commitment to be assigned to be that, as one of the Customs' Commissioners, he has, contrary to his trust, defrauded the State of a considerable sum, and devoted it to his own use.

3. The petitions from co. Leicester concerning enclosures to be considered to-morrow.

4. Desborow, Lambert, Jones, Strickland, Mulgrave, Skippon, and Lisle, to be a Committee to consider of the powers to be granted to the Admiralty Commissioners, and to report.

5. Edw. Hopkins to be an Admiralty Commissioner. Approved 7 Nov.

8. The Committee on the business of the Protestants in Piedmont to meet this afternoon, and report. Skippon added to the Committee.

9. Order, on report from the Admiralty Judges, on the petition of Capt. John Cramp and the owners of the Consort [see 27 Feb. 1655],—that the ship, worth 8,000*l.*, was seized by the Spanish Armada going for Carthage, the company imprisoned, the ship and goods condemned, copies of the proceedings denied to the parties interested, and mutual protests made by the English Consul there, and the officers of the Court;—that letters of reprisal be granted to Cramp, Sadler, and the other owners, against the King of Spain's subjects, for recovery and damages, on the usual security. Annexing,

108. 1. Report by Drs. Jo. Godolphin, C. G. Cock, and Wm. Clerk, that the ship was seized, and the company imprisoned and threatened with death unless they confessed both ship and goods to be French, which they did, when it was condemned. They would not appeal at Madrid, but in England, and as the claimer did not duly enter his appeal, there is now no remedy but by a letter to the King of Spain, which if not duly answered, the petitioners should be relieved by letters of reprisal or otherwise. Doctors' Commons, 16 July 1655. [1 page.]

10. Order, on petition of John Tompson, late Commander of the small Malaga Merchant, which, laden with salt, &c., to the value of 1,500*l.*, was in her way to New England taken by the Spaniards, whereupon letters of reprisal are prayed against Spain;—that the petitioner be left to make his proof in the Admiralty Court, the Judges of which are to report their opinion.

12. Approval by the Protector of an order of 2 Nov. [I. 76, pp. 367–9.]

Nov. 7.

Pres. Lawrence to the Lord Mayor of London. The Protestant strangers inhabiting in and near London, have addressed his Highness and Council, representing the danger from the rigour of the law in which they stand, by exercising their callings, being aliens. For many years it has been the honour of England to shelter those of the reformed religion who, for their conscience sake, have fled their own land, and here found a place of refuge ; and as much tenderness has been shown them, as appears by the reference of Parliament, Sept. 1653, to the Council of State, and the letter from the Council of State to the then Lord Mayor, for stay of proceedings against them ; and also as the Reformed churches, some of which have lately been treated so cruelly abroad, would resent any severity from us, we recommend the matter to your care, that the Protestant strangers may have liberty to exercise their trades without punishment at law, or they would be exposed to beggary. With note of a like letter, mutatis mutandis, to the City of Westminster. [I. 76, p. 367.]

Whitehall.

Pres. Lawrence to Lord Broghill. Your letters of Oct. 4 and 25, 1655, have been read, and put in a way of resolution ; the first was referred to a special Committee, and the other to the Admiralty Commissioners, to consider and report a fit guard of ships for the coast of Scotland ; when they return their opinion, you shall hear further. Hopkins, and Edw. Salmon, to manage the Admiralty and Navy affairs ; it being needful, in these times of imminent danger, to guard the seas, preserve trade from the spoils of pirates and enemies, suppress pirates, and keep up a well-appointed fleet ; also to manage the ordnance office and stores. All navy and ordnance officers to obey their orders. [I. 76A, pp. 182-3.]

110. Petition of Geo. Cony, merchant, to the Protector. My sole trade being in the dominions of the King of Spain, I am in great hazard by this sudden and unexpected difference with that nation. I, with some others, have procured part of my estate from Malaga to be shipped in a Dutch vessel, there being no other way to preserve or transport our estates, and we expect her in the Downs every hour.

. As the late Act of Navigation prohibits such goods coming in strangers' vessels, we cannot bring our goods safely into the Port of London without your leave ; but you lately promised me your favour on any reasonable request, therefore I beg speedy leave to bring in the ship and goods. 112. Petition of the Mayor and aldermen of York to the Protector. Rob. Hungate by his will granted lands, &c., in Sherburn, Leverton, and Brotherton, co. York, worth 203*l.* 6*s.* 8*d.* a year, for a school and hospital at Sherburn, and Sir. Wm. Hungate, the executor, conveyed the lands, and erected and replenished the school and hospital. On his death, these trust lands and 600*l.* came to his brother, Sir Philip, who, being a delinquent, the trust lands became forfeit to the State, though still subject to the trust, but Fras. Hungate, his infant grandchild, has the estate which was entailed. By the donor's will, if the heirs to whom the trust estate descended were Papists, the Dean of York was to nominate to the school and hospital ; but there being no dean, the Commissioners for Charitable Uses transferred the power to us, and we have taken all pains therein. We beg power to let leases and improve the lands, and to have the inheritance transferred to us by the Trustees for Sale of Delinquents' Lands. With order thereon to Council, to direct an Ordinance for settlement of the lands as requested. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

[Nov. 13.] 115. Requests to the Protector by Manasseh Ben Israel, on behalf of the Hebrew nation,—

- (1.) To take us as citizens under your protection; and for our greater security, to order your chiefs and generals-at-arms to defend us on all occasions.

Nov. 13? 118. Report on a request for admission of Jews into England to traffic, that it is lawful in point of conscience, if certain considerations be provided for,—

- (1.) The grounds urged by Manasseh Ben Israel, in his book lately printed in English, we conceive to be sinful in any Christian nation.

- (2.) The danger is great of seducing the people of this nation in matters of religion.
- (3.) Their having synagogues and places of worship is evil in itself, and scandalous to Christian churches.
- (4.) Their practices about marriage and divorce are unlawful, and will be of ill example.
- (5.) They are proved not to make conscience of oaths made or injuries done to Christians.
- (6.) The inhabitants of London suggest that it will be very injurious to trade.

We therefore consider,—

- i. That they should not be admitted to public judicatories, civil or ecclesiastic, which would grant them terms beyond the condition of strangers.
- ii. They should not speak or act to the dishonour of Christ or His religion.
- iii. They should not profane the Christian Sabbath.
- iv. They should not have Christian servants.
- v. They should bear no public office or trust.
- vi. They should print nothing in our language opposing Christianity.
- vii. They should not discourage any who try to convert them, but there should be a severe penalty on any apostatizing to Judaism. [3 pages.]

Pres. Lawrence to the Admiralty Judges. A matter long depended before the late Council of State, on petition of Huett Leat, merchant, about the ship Vinegar, which, being laden in London with goods belonging to his father, Nich. Leat, value 24,000*l.*, was seized at Milo, in the Archipelago, on her voyage to Zante, by 4 vessels of the King of Spain, and not restored, notwithstanding several sentences in courts of justice in Spain. A frigate of this town coming from Malaga, laden with fruit and wine, stopped at Cadiz $\frac{1}{3}$ ⁷ Oct., but was forced to depart, as that day the Spanish armada, under Don Pablos de Contrera, arrived at Cadiz; and 3 days before also, two galleons from the Havannah, which carry quicksilver to the Indies, very richly laden with West Indian goods, plate, 900,000 pieces of 8 for the King, and one million for particular men. The English pursued the silver fleet on their leaving Havannah for Spain, but they fled to Vera Cruz, by which means the Spaniard finds himself in a great labyrinth, and the Indian trade much interrupted. St. Malo, $\frac{8}{13}$ Nov. 1655. [Nov. 14.] 123. Petition of the justices of peace, grand jurors, and other gentlemen and freeholders of the County Palatine of Lancaster, assembled at Lancaster assizes and sessions, and of the mayor and officers of the borough towns, for the inhabitants, to the Protector. We beg restoration and continuance of the privileges of a County Palatine, as still enjoyed by the County Palatine of Chester, and to have our courts of law and equity, and have all causes pleaded therein, and not in the Duchy Court or elsewhere. The county was made palatine by Edward III., confirmed by Henry IV., and by several Acts of Parliament since. Signed by 30 justices of peace; 34 on the first grand inquest at Lancaster assizes; 25 attorneys; 15 of the grand jury for the sessions for Amounderness and Blackborne hundreds at Preston; 17 grand jury for Derby and Leyland hundreds at Wigan sessions; 15 grand jury for Salford hundred at Manchester; Rich. Sumpner, mayor, and 14 aldermen, &c., of Preston; Rob. Correll, mayor, Wm. Walsall, recorder, and 17 aldermen, &c., of Liverpool; Jas. Scott, mayor, Rob. Maudesley, recorder, and 10 aldermen, &c., of Wigan; and 379 gentlemen freeholders. [1 double parchment sheet.]

[Nov. 14.] 124-126. Petition of divers inhabitants and freeholders of the County Palatine of Lancaster to the Protector. The discontinuance for 2 years of the jurisdiction of the County Palatine, and of the Duchy Chamber of Lancaster at Westminster has caused us great prejudice, we having many suits unfinished, and others that can only be begun in the County Chancery Court, though we wish the County Palatine to be preserved. Yet as it only extends to parties and witnesses in the county, we also wish for the Duchy Court, that a more remote application may free us from the oppression of neighbours of potency and interest; also the two are united by having the same Chancellor, and by the county records being kept in the Duchy Chamber.

The late Parliament only continued the jurisdiction of both to 10 Oct. 1653, but they must have intended to renew their order, or there would be a failure of justice in causes depending. Many of us are or may be purchasers of lands and revenues of the late King, which we shall lose as to the Duchy tenures, if the jurisdiction of the Court is taken away. We beg a reinvestment of both Courts, with all their former rights and privileges. [3 copies, with 19 sheets of signatures.]

127. Petition of William, Earl of Lothian, to the Protector. I have been in the service, civil and military, in England and Scotland, from 1637 to 1650, and am thus involved in many public debts, and have spent much of my own estate and got no relief. In 1647 the Parliament of Scotland appointed me 1,500*l.* out of the second 20,000*l.* due to the Scots' army, and in 1648 made me Secretary of Estate, with the benefit of the Signet; but this latter was taken from me in 1652, and the 1,500*l.* is not paid.

I suffered much from imprisonment, quarterings, and plunderings in 1648, for opposing the engagement against England, and by wasting of my lands in 1650 and 1651. I beg payment from the Exchequer of the 1,500*l.*, which was settled on Goldsmiths' Hall, restoration to the Signet, and a proportion of the arrears due thereon. [1 sheet.]

20. Mr. Lockyer's business, moved to-day by Col. Jones, to be considered to-morrow.

21. The petition of divers well-affected inhabitants of the Borough of Leicester read, and with 3 others concerning enclosures in co. Leicester annexed, referred to Lisle, Pickering, Strickland, and Wolsley, to speak with the parties that attend the business, and report what they think should be further done.

22. The petition of the burgesses, &c., of Chipping Wycomb, co. Bucks,—complaining that they are excluded from, and unfit persons admitted into the corporation by the present mayor, justices, and most of the common council,—referred to Col. Tobias Bridges, to enquire into the matter, speak to the persons concerned, examine witnesses, and certify. [I. 76, pp. 374–8.]

[Nov. 15.] 130. Statement that the Earl of Calendar, when young, willing to improve himself, travelled beyond sea, and spent most of his days in the wars of Germany and the Low Countries, where he gained eminent preferment, and a competent livelihood; but from affection to his native country, when he heard of actings in it for religion and liberty, he laid aside his material interests, and served as Lieut.-General in the Scottish armies in England in 1640 and 1641, and gained the approbation of the Parliament of Scotland, but so displeased the late King that by his means the Earl's regiment in Holland was taken from him.

In 1642 he declined an invitation from the late King to an eminent charge in his army, but engaged in assisting his suffering brethren in England; he was again Lieut.-General of the Scottish armies in England till their return in 1647, and was useful at the reducing of Newcastle, &c.

His only failure was, that in 1648, by command of the Estates of Parliament in Scotland he accepted their service, for which he suffered 3 years' banishment, his estate was ruined, and his house at Calendar made a garrison.

Since then he has been quiet, not opposing the English army in 1650 or 1651, nor corresponding with those in arms in the late risings in Scotland. He was committed to Edinburgh Castle, not for refusing to give bond to keep the peace, but for refusing to give both bond and parole, which he thought dishonourable. The rumour that he was not employed in the late army in Scotland because of jealousies between him and Lieut.-Gen. David Leslie is untrue; he wished to remain in quiet.

It is offered whether his many good services should not overweigh that one failing, as none others have been fined, forfeited, or imprisoned solely for accession to the engagement of 1648.

None are forfeited but prisoners of war on this last invasion, which he never was, and thus his case is unparalleled, for,—

1. Some who were in the engagement of 1648, and in actions since, have liberty to go beyond seas.
2. Those who are prisoners and forfeited have a weekly allowance, and he has had nothing for 2 years, his estate being seized in 1654.
3. Most of those forfeited have had their estates farmed to their wives or friends, which is denied him.
4. He who had the like charge at Worcester that the Earl had in 1648 was fined but not forfeited.
5. Divers who were fined have got themselves discharged.
6. He suffers exceedingly, because by his forfeiture he cannot stand in any court of justice.

If he had gone to the hills and joined with those in arms, his condition had been better, for they have all got discharge of fine and forfeiture, and enjoy their estates.

He begs a hearing if anything more is charged against him. Also that his evidences, writings, and moveables may be restored, his debts being great, and no interest paid for 3 years; that his stewards may pay him the 2 years' rent of his estate, and legal proceedings against him be discharged. Also that having been forced to a 7 months' attendance, he may have license to remain till 5 Dec. next. [$1\frac{1}{4}$ pages.]

[Nov. 15.] 131. Abstract of the latter part of the above, adding, that he is bound, by Gen. Monk's pass, to return prisoner to Leith within 6 months after last May, unless his Highness enlarge his pass, or free him of his bond; also that he was acquitted as to the interception of a letter written by a servant of his. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

[Nov. 15.] 132. Information concerning the Earl of Calendar. To the same effect as the preceding papers. The information given to Col. Lilburne of his being concerned in the late risings is false, and he desires the strictest examination thereon, or of any alleged orders or letters intercepted, said to be written by him.

He hears that his leaving Holland in 1640 has been misconstrued, but he came in sincerity to serve his country. [1 page.]

COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. 133. The Lord President reports from the Committee of Council the names of persons to meet with the Committee to which the proposals of Manasseh Ben Israel for the Jews are referred, viz. :—

Dr. Goodwin.	Dr. Tuckney.	Lord Chief Justice Glynn.
„ Owen.	„ Cudworth.	„ „ „ St. John.

Mr. Strickland.	Mr. Nye.	„ Mayor of London.

„ Benn.	„ Rowe.	„ Ed. Cressett.

	„ Dan. Dyke.

2. The above-named approved, and to meet on Wednesday week, and letters to be written to them, in form subjoined, summoning their attendance.

3. Two letters from Lord Broghill to his Highness of 8 Nov., by him delivered to Council, read, and referred to the Scotch Committee, to report.

4. Order that Mr. Kinnersley consider the proposal in Lord Broghill's letter of 6 Nov., to use the hangings that were at Dunottar Castle for the Council in Scotland, and certify. Annering,

134. I. Certificate by Clem. Kinnersley thereon. In May 1654, the wardrobe goods from Dunottar Castle were delivered to me, but there were only 12 pieces of ordinary hangings, and no feather beds.

When I attended the late King to his coronation in Scotland in 1633, there were in the keeping of Sir John Achmoutie, keeper of the wardrobe in Scotland, 200 feather beds, with bed clothes, &c., and as many hangings as furnished Holyrood House, Edinburgh Castle, Linlithgow, Dumfermline, Stirling, and St. Johnston's, which, at 60 per house, a small proportion, makes 400 pieces.

I asked for a letter to Gen. Monk to assist my agent to find out these concealed goods (for Cornet Geo. Butler, sent down in 1654, could hear nothing of them), and but for me, nothing more would have been heard of them. I think you should send for a true particular of what there is, and in whose custody, and the real value, and then consider what should remain there, and what be returned for his Highness's service. If the public ministers in Scotland are allowed furnishing for their houses, will not those in Ireland expect the same? 20 Nov. 1655. [1 page.]

5. The army establishment passed yesterday to begin from last Oct. 15, inclusive.

6, 7. The petitions of Rob. Kemp, of Clenston, co. Hereford, and of John Jones concerning Dr. Wm. Lewis' estate, referred to the Treasury Commissioners, to report.

9. Order—on report from the Trustees for forfeited Estates in Scotland, showing what James, Lord Cowper, has offered them concerning his fine of 3,000*l.*—that as it has been reduced to 750*l.*, which sum, with other fines, is already disposed of, no further abatement can be made, and the same is to be signified to him.

13. The Committee of Council on the business of the Prize Office to send for Mr. Birch and Mr. Carleton, 2 of the Prize Officers, examine them concerning the deposited moneys there, and report.

15. Order—on report from the Committee on the Marquis of Argyle's petition, showing that the debt for which he was arrested arises from provisions taken up on the public account, and that Mr. Maxwell, the original creditor, has security for the debt assigned him by Parliament—that the former Committee speak with Lord Chief Justice Glynn on this day's debate, and report. Lambert added to the Committee.

16. Order—on a report from the Committee on the petition of the wives and daughters of the officers and soldiers in Jamaica—that Fras. Hodges, treasurer for that service, give them a month's pay, and tell them to expect no more till they are on shipboard to go to Jamaica, when those who embark shall receive another month's pay for their encouragement, and to advise a warrant for payment of the sum required to Hodges.

18. The Council of State having voted Nich. Lockyer 200*l.* in lands for his services, which he was to have from dean and chapter lands, 2,100*l.* was paid him from Council's contingencies that he might purchase the same, on which he contracted for Hambleton and Blackwell manors, co. Worcester, for 2,414*l.* 1*s.* 8½*d.*, paid the money and had them conveyed, but it appears on survey that there were mistakes in the value, and that the lands are charged with payments to charitable uses, whereby he cannot have the benefit of his purchase, though he has expended several sums thereon:—Order that he shall receive 2,500*l.* out of any discoveries that he make to the Committee for Discoveries, and shall then reconvey the said lands to the Commonwealth. Parliament on 16 Nov. 1654 voted me the 5,000*l.* ordered by the 2 former Parliaments out of the estates of those who had so unjustly proceeded against my husband, but only 4 of the parties were living, and they pleaded that the State had already sold and disposed of their estates, and therefore should pay the money, but Parliament ended before payment. On appealing to you, your Council ordered me 20*s.* a week, and referred me for further relief to Mr. Rous, and Cols. Sydenham, Montague, and Jones, but they say they can think of nothing further for me. I beg help, or I cannot maintain my 2 sons at the University. My husband was an eminent sufferer, and I am "a gentlewoman, and was choicely and tenderly bred." Instead of the 5,000*l.* ordered, I ask 1,000*l.* from the Treasury, beside the 20*s.* a week, or else 5*l.* a week. 145. Petition of several inhabitants of Martin's-in-the-Fields to the Protector. There has been for 50 years a highway, called Hartshorne Lane, from the Strand to the Thames, which has been cleansed by the sworn scavengers; and the water from Giles', Martin's Lane, and Covent Garden, formerly running above ground, carried all the filth to Whitehall, to our great annoyance. To prevent this 20 years ago, the late King and Council and the Sewers' Commissioners ordered the said water to be conveyed underground, in a sewer, to the Thames; but 9 or 10 years ago, Col. Apsley, the owner, stopped the sewer, which caused the water to break out in our houses, and 2 children's lives were lost, but the Commissioners of Sewers ordered its re-opening. Col. Dec. 3.
Cologne.

[Sec. Nicholas] to Jos. Jane. The news is confirmed that the King of Sweden presses the Elector of Brandenburg, who, for want of assistance, will have to make an accommodation with him which will prejudice Holland. The States' sending ambassadors to Spain will not be of service to Cromwell, but if there be a sound war between him and Spain, it may be to good purpose for the States to unite with Spain, as indeed they would be forced to do.

No order is yet given to the Admiralty in Flanders to issue commissions for taking English ships, though there are 20 men-of-war at Ostend and Dunkirk only waiting commissions to sail. An envoy from Cromwell is said to have arrived at Madrid, so the Spaniard still hankers after an accommodation, or hopes that the Levellers—who have made great applications to Spain, and threaten to destroy Cromwell—may take him away. The Spaniard is confident there would be an end of designs against him, and he would easily make peace with England, if it were a republic, as probably it would be if that monster were in his grave.

Many of our friends would have the King go to Flanders without invitation, and negotiate his own business with the Archduke and the King of Spain's ministers. Some are so earnest that they would not have him wait till he knows that his presence there would not be unacceptable, which is a strange precipitation, and might beget distrust in a people that love to walk with a slow pace in affairs of consequence. If the King hastens into Flanders before he is expected, it may so disorder the ministers that they may advise him to withdraw, or it may make Cromwell the sooner patch up a peace with Spain, with the same conditions for excluding the King and his family out of all his dominions as the King of France has consented to, and what then would become of his Majesty? Keep all this to yourself, and let me have your opinion on it.

I have seen a declaration printed by authority, showing the reasons of Cromwell's severe proceedings against the loyal party. It is penned with as much advantage as may be, and could be handsomely answered. Barrière's stay in England may be to proceed in a treaty with Cromwell for an accommodation with Spain.

The Princess Royal's journey for France in this conjuncture may be of ill effect to his Majesty's negotiations with Spain, and I suppose proceeds from French counsels, to enjealous the Spaniard that the King's inclinations and engagements are so much affected to the French, as to impede his negotiations with Spain. I think Sir Alex. Hume too sincere in his affection to the King to have had any hand in persuading the Princess to the journey. Heenvliet and his lady are extremely averse to it, but on private grounds.

It is strange the Prince of Orange's greatest enemies should make Prince William Field-Marshal, and Nordwick Governor of Sluys. Who is to be governor of the Busse?

John Adams to Pieter Hacker, London. Some captains of this nation who were in the States' service against you by sea in the late war, and are now cashiered, endeavour to get owners for ships of war to sail from Dunkirk with C. S's. [Charles Stuart's] commissions. He has applied to the King of Spain, who, he hopes, will suddenly embrace his interest, and call him to Brussels. His party promise themselves restoration by the Spaniard, and begin to rendezvous in Brabant. The imposition laid on their brethren in England much troubles them. They say such a contribution to C. S. would free them out of slavery, for so they call a good and Godly Government. I am going to Rotterdam, where some persons are entrusted by C. S. to try what moneys can be procured of the merchants for setting forth ships from Flanders, promising the lenders that their goods shall be free, besides great pennyworths shall be sold them of prize goods. I expect to learn the names of those who comply. [1 page. Flanders correspondence.]

Antwerp.

— Birford to [Sec. Nicholas?]. All the birds are flown from Mardyke. I can now open what the King of Scots is about. Before leaving Dunkirk, I met Ormond's secretary, who told me the King has sent to Spain offering great service by sea and land if that King would let him have Dunkirk and Ostend. A pledge for this is that he doubts not but many of the ships of England will come to him there, and it is convenient for landing parties in England, which may hinder the assistance of England to the French army. The secretary treated with the Admiral of Ostend, my acquaintance, who told me all this, and undertook to give the King 8 ships. The King will come to live near Dunkirk if this be granted, which will not be till war is declared between England and Spain. All the King's hopes are in this war, and the Cavaliers are gathering about it.

The Archduke is in the field near Condé, which we had hoped to take, but the French are so prosperous, there are no hopes of a peace. The Spanish fleet has left 3,000 men in High Spaniola. The King of Sweden has taken Cracow and has all Poland in his hands, and has sent to the Emperor for quarters for 30,000 men.

The Pope expects the ambassadors about the peace, of which there is no appearance.

Shall I send the Irish officers and soldiers to join with the French army?

I shall remain here till the Archduke comes to Brussels, which will be soon, and then meet my brother, and know all. When you send me any money send it by post, but alter the handwriting, and say the gentleman's brother sends it. Be sure you have the bond cancelled. My surety is Mr. Dekens, at the Shears, Maypole Alley, near Newmarket. [2 pages. Flanders correspondence. The italics are cyphers, decyphered by Nicholas.]

159. Declaration of the Protector. The King of Spain has lately seized English ships and goods, without the 6 months' notice agreed upon by the treaty of peace in 1630 to be given in case of war, having not only exercised for many years great cruelties to the English in Barbadoes, but now made preparations for war, and ordered the seizure of English ships; therefore an universal embargo, seizure, and reprisals have been issued against the said King and his subjects, and his Highness entreats all Princes in amity with him to restrain their subjects from sending, lending, or selling to the said King any arms or instruments of war. As the law of nations allows all such to be treated as contraband, they will be seized after due notice, and forfeited on proof that they were intended for Spain.

Nov. 30. Reference to the Committee for Preservation of Customs of the above petition, and also of that of Hen. Hunt, Thos. Barnardiston, and other merchants of London, for licence to transport 3,000*l.* of Spanish money to the East Indies; and of that of the East India Company to transport 15,000*l.*, customs' free. [I. 76, p. 403.]

Nov. 30. 165. Petition of Fras. Jones and Rob. Duke, prisoners in Exeter Castle, to the Protector. We owe the very air we breathe to your clemency, and would rather be torn in pieces than stir a little finger against you. We beg you to add liberty to life, on our plighting faith and religion, and giving security for good deportment in our native country; or else to banish us, that our families may not perish by the expense of our tedious, though deserved imprisonment. With reference to Council, 2 Nov. 1655. [1 page.]

Nov. 30. Order thereon in Council that Gen. Desborow give a warrant to the keeper of the prison to deliver them, and others in prison at Exeter on the late insurrection, to merchants or others, who will give security to transport them prisoners to the East Indies, not to return without special licence. [I. 76, p. 405.]

Nov. 30. 166. Petition of Capt. Thos. Foster, Governor of Middleham Castle, co. York, to Council. On 16 March last, by order of Col. Lilburne, I, with 30 soldiers, fortified the castle, to preserve the peace of the country, and prevent insurrections which were in many parts, by the then plotters against the present Government. We have continued in service ever since without pay, as an order for 2 months' pay from the Army contingencies cannot be met, so that the soldiers are in great want, and I am deeply engaged for provisions, &c., for them. I beg arrears and present support. [1 page.]

Nov. 30. Order thereon that Col. Lilburne order the accounts to be stated, take up money in the country to pay the men, disband them, and charge the sum on Wm. Walker, who pays the Army's contingencies, and that the Army Committee issue warrants for payment to Mr. Walker, on Lilburne's bill of exchange. [I. 76, p. 405.]

- Dec. 3. 1. Jas. Astyn to Williamson, at Edw. Norris' chamber, Lincoln's Inn. Thanks for your letter by my tutor. I wonder not to hear of Mr. Lowther. Dr. South of Christchurch has declaimed in the schools, and abused Dr. Ellis, and put on a black cap to jeer him ; told him his jokes were as old as his clothes, and abused all the foundation, who intend to make his years as short as his declamation was long. Our friends at Carfax and New College are well. [1 page.]

My husband was condemned at Exeter for being in company with some persons taken in the late insurrection in the West, but on petition of his mother Margaret, you reprieved him ; he still remains prisoner, and his estate, worth 10*l.* a year, settled on me as jointure, is at your disposal, which will be my ruin, as it is all my maintenance. I beg to have the estate, or at least the pre-eminency to be tenant thereof. With reference to Council, his Highness wishing the petitioner to be in some measure considered. 2 Nov. 1655. [1 page.]

Thurloe. The rest of my estate is employed in husbandry, and harvest drawing near, my imprisonment will ruin my family. I was never in arms against Parliament. I knew nothing before of M. de Gard. Dec. 5.
Whitehall.

Pres. Lawrence to Lord Broghill, president of his Highness's Council in Scotland. Your letter concerning indemnity for robberies committed in the Highlands during the late war has been considered; Council thinks a general indemnity prejudicial to many who, having opposed the rebellion there, and suffered thefts and robberies, have no way of satisfaction for their losses according to the engagements made them, in case they should be deprived of their remedy at law for recovery thereof. Council thinks it expedient to empower the Council in Scotland to grant indemnity in particular cases, and asks whether this measure will be sufficient to ward off the evil feared of the persons running into rebellion. Meanwhile all your suspensions of prosecutions are to be continued. [I. 76, p. 412.]

9. Sec. Thurloe to the Admiralty Commissioners. Having seen your report to Council concerning some Zealand ships seized by Pye, wherein you allege that I wrote the Customs' Commissioners on behalf of Pye, who, as you say, has no constant place of abode, I beg you will send that letter to Council, as I deny the truth of your report; I wrote the Commissioners by express order of his Highness,—on a complaint by Pye that some Dutch ships were in the river with prohibited goods, which the Commissioners of Customs would not seize,—that they were to examine the business, and give directions therein. I appeal to you whether this was writing on behalf of Pye, whom I have never seen. [1 page.] Annexing,

9. I. *Sec. Jno. Thurloe to the Commissioners of Customs. Tim. Pye having reported that he has seized several Dutch ships with prohibited goods, and that notwithstanding the goods are still unlading, and are entered in the Custom House, and that, upon acquainting you therewith, you alleged you had no power to do anything therein, I desire you will examine the matter, give necessary directions, and transmit an account to Council. 21 Nov. 1655. 9. II. Mark Hildesley and Jno. Upton, Customs' Commissioners, to Sec. Thurloe. Tim. Pye informed us yesterday that a week since he seized certain ships and their lading, lately come from Holland, but did not give particulars, nor register the same with the Registrar of Seizures, as by law required and as advised by us, so that we could not take cognizance thereof; nor may we refuse to accept of entries of any goods or merchandize tendered to us according to law, there being a penal statute prohibiting it. Neither can our deputies, without sufficient cause, make stay of any merchants' goods, or refuse to deliver them after they have been entered and the duties satisfied, the law being open for any merchant to take his remedy against them in such cases.

If Pye can prove that the goods are prohibited, which is not evident to our officers, they not being able to make any such proof, the law directs an information in the Court of Exchequer, and the goods being registered with the Registrar of Seizures, we should have granted sufferances for landing thereof into safe custody, that the duties due to his Highness and the Commonwealth might be secured. The Commissioners for Customs never judged themselves required to make seizures, nor, upon the seizure of goods by others, to interpose therein, further than to land and secure them, and take care that, either upon composition or condemnation, the duties due were secured, and no fraud practised. [Sec. Nicholas] to Jos. Jane. You seem confident the English are still at Jamaica. If so, the King of Spain should not suffer them to settle there long. I hear Cromwell (after his old perfidious manner) has let fall words as though he would restore Jamaica, which he intends not, if he is sending more ships to the West Indies; but such speeches, and some of Cromwell's false instruments have given life to the Spaniard's hopes of an accommodation. The villain Cromwell does it on purpose to gain time for preparations, and to keep the Spaniard from espousing our master's cause. The Levellers, who have agents in Flanders, persuade the ministers there that they will kill Cromwell, and then Spain will have peace with England. This is one great reason why the King of Spain does not join our master's interests, for Don Alonso acknowledges that the King's party in England is much stronger and more numerous than all the other factions.

It would be well to have some brief observations made on Cromwell's declarations. I can have anything here translated into French, but those on the reasons for his taxing anew all the Cavaliers and compounders should be printed in English, and sent into England.

The Swede has besieged Torne, in Prussia, defeated 500 of the Elector of Brandenburg's horse, and killed 200, so that a war in Prussia is feared. The King of Sweden has sent for all the rest of his cavalry, and those who hold crown fiefs there are to supply them again, which shows that he intends to pursue his conquest in Poland.

It is marvelled that there are no commissions in Flanders against the English ships, as Cromwell has granted 10 letters of marque against Spain, and not (as you are informed) revoked any of them.

We hear of 3 more gentlemen imprisoned in England, on some intelligence from the miscreant Manning. Cromwell finds opposition in the counties in settling taxes for raising money to maintain forces, for the peace of the country, as he pretends. Sir John Mounson, at a late meeting in Lincoln thereon, told Whalley, major-general of that shire, that he had compounded formerly at a dear rate, that the Act of Oblivion freed him, and that having ever since his commission submitted to the Government, he conceives it very unjust to demand anything from him, and that he would pay no more taxes. Thereupon he rose, and the rest of the gentlemen followed, but a troop of horse was sent after Mounson, and he was carried prisoner to his own house.

The deputies or majors in all counties proceed with rigour in assessing all compounders, and others not actually in Cromwell's service or favour.

If Mr. Stone were at the Hague, he would be put under restraint for having broken from his guards, unless his peace be made before he returns, which he is ready to do. [2 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages. Holland correspondence.]

13. Maj.-Gen. Edw. Massey to Sec. Nicholas. I have little worth note to tell you. Yours gave me sorrow to think that such a villain as that Manning should be near his Majesty, and joy that his villany is found. I hope his associates at Court, if he had any, will follow. I wrote to him freely, not suspecting him, and knowing the regard in which he was held by the King and persons about him. I am glad my letter did not come to his hand, though it could not have done the King dis-service, as rather than do this, I would have both my hands cut off, and would sacrifice my life in his service. I have kept free from foreign engagements in order to serve the King, and thank him for all his favours. I pray that God may at length find out a way to make him a happy Prince over a happy people.

I daily expect to be called somewhere to employ my time, and make me useful to the King hereafter. I had hoped to serve in the Elector of Brandenburg's army in Prussia, but fear the new intended levies will come too late to maintain his station against the King of Sweden; nor can the States assist him, so that he must yield to the Swede's demands enclosed. The King of Sweden has taken Torne, one of the strongest cities of Prussia, and garrisoned it with 3,000 men, and is marching to Dantzic, from which he demands their fort royal,—the key of their city to sea-ward,—2 millions of money, and clothing for his army; it is thought the Elector will agree, and if he has his ports, Pillau and Memel free, he can lock up all Poland from commerce, and so Dantzic must submit also, and then Holland may whistle with their promised assistance to the Elector next spring, and must pay the Swede 23 or 24 per cent. customs.

I hear from a Cavalier lately come from the Swedish army that Rolt, Cromwell's envoy, with the articles of their agreement, is magnificently entertained by that King, having a coach and 6 horses to attend him, and goes the next coach to the King, and has all imaginable honour, which sticks much in my stomach, and draws me back from thoughts of serving him, if I can with good conscience find a livelihood elsewhere. I fear the King of Spain and Cromwell will not be in so good earnest as I wish, for if war were really intended, the Council of Spain must know how advantageous it would be to own the interest of our King. If I saw that, I could hope to be useful in his service. [4½ pages.] Enclosing,

14. Capt. Fras. Willoughby to Robt. Blackborne. I observe the great business of the Jews is under consideration; I hope the Lord will direct in a matter of such concernment. If the first question should pass in the affirmative, whether a Jewish nation shall be admitted to live in this Commonwealth, I hope the next will be whether a nation shall be suffered by a law to live amongst us to blaspheme Christ.

I should be glad to come up on some business which will suffer by my absence, but will rest quiet until our business here is more out of hand. I send a note of victuals and turnery ware put on board the Cardiff and Marston Moor for the fleet. 16. Petition of several army officers, and other well affected purchasers of most of the lands and revenue of the Duchy of Lancaster, to the Protector. In times of danger, we hazarded life and fortune in the service, and were induced to purchase the revenues because we were to have the same remedy for gaining our rights as the late King, Queen, or Prince had. The Duchy and County Palatine were erected by Henry V., and adorned with many honours and manors, and the Duchy Court has continued since for the ease of the people, and was the only way of getting in and ordering that revenue. Its laying aside has been very prejudicial, as at common law, the lawyers quarrel with the conveyances, and purchasers lose their rights. Beg its resettlement; 15 signatures. Dec. 12. 17. Report by Lambert, Wolsley, and Jones on the above and 2 other petitions [see 14 Nov. 1655] concerning the Duchy and County Palatine of Lancaster, that they have heard the parties, and consulted counsel, and find that the jurisdiction of the Duchy and County Palatine Court ended 10 Oct. 1653, but was revived till 1 Jan. 1653-4, and Thos. Fell was appointed chancellor and seal keeper; also that he and Serjeant Bradshaw were appointed commissioners for reviving the Duchy jurisdiction, but have not sat, and requesting an order that Fell may repair to London in Hillary term, and sit to determine causes, and that the seal of the County Palatine may be returned to him for dispatch of business, but brought back to Council by 21 Jan., with Fell's answer to the matter required of him, in case he do not come to sit in person. 18. II. Earl of Calendar to Lord Lambert. My estate being useless, my debts have grown to 10,500l. with two years' interest, a great burden to 800l. a year. I beg my rents for 1654, so far as not paid in, and those for 1655; if these are seized (with what I had for relief of my engagements for the Earl of Dumfermline's debts) my condition will be no better than if still forfeited.

18. III. Breviate of the Earl of Calendar's estate. Rents in full 900l., from which the few duties and monthly assessments are to be deducted.

Debts 10,500l. with 1,260l. for 2 years' interest.

The coal mine worth 100l. a year drowned and ruined.

The personal estate is very weak, because he was plundered, but there are evidences and writings.

For the lands of the Earl of Dumfermline which he holds in trust for payment of debts, he has agreed with the trustees for a yearly payment of 266l. 13s. 4d.

He requests his last 2 years' rents, since his forfeiture.

Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Commissioners. Yesterday John Bonithon came to the Treasurer's office, demanding money on a counterfeit ticket. The law will do little in such cases, notwithstanding the State's great charge in prosecution. On Monday, the notorious Timberley, though found guilty by the jury, was fined but 6*l.* 13*s.* 4*d.* for 2 tickets of above 14*l.* Unless some way is taken to strike terror, they will swarm upon us. 21, 22. Deposition of Ben. Phinnies, clerk in the Navy Office. While casting up tickets in the Navy Treasury Office, Jno. Bonithon asked me to take in his ticket, but I refused, it being dinner time, and bade him come in the afternoon.

Deposition of Wm. Burroughs, Navy clerk, that while similarly employed, he found a counterfeit ticket, in the name of Jno. Lock, midshipman of the Bristol, whom Bonithon represented himself to be, and asked for the money.

Deposition of Thos. Child, of Deptford, that he was present at the time, and witnessed the transaction. [2 Copies.] Annexing,

We ordered a survey of the Wren Pink, and received a return from the master shipwright that she is not worth repairing. As several of the Flemish ships at Woolwich are in like condition, we desire orders for their disposal, to save the excessive spoil of ground tackle required for their security. We never Ordnance Office. received any orders to take care that the powder makers should be obliged to the State as to the duration of their powder, beyond that they are to make it tower proof. Dec. 15. 32. Capt. Fras. Willoughby to Robt. Blackborne. Thanks for Portsmouth. remembering Mr. Country; I have no relation to him beyond pity. As to Robt. Neale, if I can be instrumental in presenting persons anyways fit for service, and do good to such persons, I have my end. I have your full relation of what passed last Wednesday about the Jews. I know not but Mr. Peters came as near as some others in his advice. It is a business of no small concern; they are a people to whom many glorious promises are made, but they are as full of blasphemy as any under the sun; a self seeking generation, and those who are the greatest sticklers mind little but their own accommodation; and whether they can prove themselves Jews is a question to me.

We are making all haste with the works, and hope to be ready in a fit time. The Hampshire has come in, the Tiger is tallowed,

33. Capt. Fras. Willoughby to Robt. Blackborne. Thanks for your large letter about the Jews, by which I perceive there are workings of the heart to know God's mind in a business of such consequence. I hope it is in truth, and that the Lord will appear so as that their table may not prove our snare. I see cause to fall in with Mr. Peters again, especially with the latter part of his discourse, for there may be just grounds to question whether they be Jews; and it may be observed that some of them have made but little conscience of their own principles. What is to be done about the men of the Hampshire, who have been landed in the town suffering from the smallpox, brought on from want of clothes, of which they are quite destitute? I want copies of the Instructions to Captains and Pursers for distribution.

34. Rules by the Ordnance officers to be observed by gunners of the State's ships and frigates, for the better regulating of their accounts.

When their ship is appointed for sea, to give notice to the Ordnance officers when it will be ready to take in their stores, so as to prevent the demurrage of hoys, by its not being ready to receive them.

To keep a clear and full monthly account of all great ordnance fired by salute or otherwise during the voyage, mentioning the nature and number of the ordnance, and the day they were fired.

Also of all collars of bandoleers spent in exercising, keeping watch, or otherwise.

Also of the expenditure or loss of round shot of all natures, and likewise every particular mentioned in their indenture.

No powder or other stores to be delivered for ships but by order under the captain's hand, and a receipt taken from the consignees, that they may be charged therewith on passing their accounts.

If any powder be wasted or damnified by wet, through leakage or other casualty, the captain is to certify the loss on the gunner's account, that it may be allowed.

The captain is to certify what powder is spent in priming for the whole voyage, and what he judges may be wasted in filling cartridges.

An account is to be kept of all stores received at sea from any ships, or in any other place, for additional supplies, to be certified by the captain at the end of the gunners' accounts, so that they may be charged therewith. On the return of any ships from sea, the gunner is to give notice to the Ordnance officers at the Tower for all that come to Chatham, Woolwich, and Deptford, or to the storekeeper at Portsmouth for such as come in there, that their remains may be taken before the men are paid off. 36. Statement of the Attorney in the case Raymans against Hill. In Trinity Term 1654, the Plaintiff brought an action of Trover in the office of Pleas of the Exchequer, for tobacco and other goods wrongfully taken from him by the Defendant. In Michaelmas Term 1654, the Defendant pleaded not guilty, and on that issue, the cause was brought down that term before Thorpe, a Baron of the Exchequer, at Guildhall, London; when the Defendant informing the Baron by petition that his witnesses were not ready, the cause, by the request of the Baron and consent of the Plaintiff, was referred to arbitration, but nothing was done, and so the business rested until Michaelmas term 1655, when the record was brought down again before Lord Chief Baron Steele at Guildhall. After evidence had been fully heard on both sides, the Lord Chief Baron moved that the matter in difference might be referred to the two foremen of the jury on the cause, which was done by consent of both parties, and the jury were to deliver their opinion thereon within a week; but both parties not meeting before the said jurymen, nothing was done. Thereupon the defendant, at the last sitting of the Lord Chief Baron, being on 1 Dec. last, brought down the cause by proviso to be tried, but the Plaintiff having no notice, nor being ready to attend the trial, the Lord Chief Baron referred it back to the two foremen, before whom it yet remains. I was retained for the Plaintiff by Mr. Cord, a solicitor, and Mr. Capel, who has a letter of attorney from the Plaintiff, beyond seas, to prosecute on his behalf. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

I hope you will approve my purpose, and order your men-of-war to assist the ship, the rather as, since you made me a denizen, I have declined obedience to the King of Spain, which the late Spanish Ambassador noticed, and therefore, in case of seizure, I can expect no better measure than an English subject. Ald. Frederick sending to Lewes for the silver, it was refused, whereon he consulted with [Dan.] Budd, his Highness's Proctor, who said that though the silver belonged to the State, he could give him a warrant to receive it, which he did, and the value, charges deducted, is 252*l.* 7*s.* 8*d.

his Highness's proclamation for executing the laws against Jesuits and for conviction of Popish recusants, on which warrant several honest people have been troubled, as it summons all who have not received the Sacrament for a year, and are over 21 years of age, [or are suspected to be popishly affected], to appear before the Justices of the Peace on Dec. 4 at the Shire Hall, Carnarvon, whereby the proclamation is perverted. Council therefore refers the matter to you, to prevent further trouble to conscientious people, and to receive their complaints. [I. 76, p. 428.]

Pres. Lawrence to the President and Council of Scotland. A Great Seal is ordered for Scotland, but Council wants to know to what uses it is to be applied, that they may prepare instructions accordingly, and an account must be returned of every occasion on which it is used, that care may be taken for consistency between such things as pass the Great Seal of England and Scotland. [I. 76, p. 429.]

Dec. 21.

55. Petition of Rich. Chambers, merchant, late alderman and sheriff of London, to the Protector. In 1628 and 1629 I had 7,060*l.* unjustly taken from me, for maintaining the rights of Parliament, and I suffered 6 years' imprisonment, for which in 1642 they voted me 13,680*l.* out of the 165,000*l.* received from the old farmers of customs for their delinquency. I was then chosen alderman, and in 1644 sheriff, which I wished to decline, but Parliament pressed me to hold the place, to the expense of 4,000*l.* My payment being put off, through urgent occasions for money, in 1648 I was made surveyor and check in the Custom House,—an office then worth 600*l.* a year,—which I held 8 months, and was then put out, on a general remove of the officers.

The late King owed me and my wife 5,000*l.* on privy seal, and 1,250*l.* for linen cloth, which was to be paid by 100 marks a year from Sir Thos. Dawes' office of the customs of tobacco. I am aged and wearied out by 14 years' fruitless attendance, during which I have served in person, and lent 580*l.* 18*s.* 6*d.* on public faith, and I have to mortgage my estate to support my wife and 9 children. I beg to serve as a commissioner of customs, a place I once held for 2 years. Noted as delivered to the Protector 19 Dec. 1655. [1 page.]

1. To consider my long sufferings, and find a way for my relief.

4. To accept me as a commissioner for customs at the Port of London. [¾ page.]

You allowed me liberty for a month to recover my health, but the time is almost expired, and my sickness, through the rigour of the weather, is still dangerous. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish. Thanks for your care in the late Tunis business. We depend on your future watchfulness in preserving the privileges of the nation, and our estates from question on this account.

We have ordered Mr. Lawrence's return, as he cannot contribute to our affairs by his stay. His scruple of expecting a call from the State is needless and irrational. [Levant papers, Vol. 4, p. 258.]

60. Sir Hen. Langdale to Sec. Nicholas, Cologne. The design I mentioned to you was that of the Levellers. I fear there are curious eyes over me here, because it is observed that I receive weekly letters from you; I have been asked captious questions, which makes me more cautious in writing, and I have little worth troubling you about.

The Spaniard continues on his slow pace towards our King. It is thought Cromwell will patch up a trade-peace. Marquis Barrière is ordered to continue in London. It is said the Swiss will soon rise, and the French Huguenots with them. I wish all this fair show may not end in a war with Holland, because Cromwell is preparing flat-bottomed boats, and small frigates, which cannot be for the Indies, and the French will not let him take any places in this country. I hear of no vessels taken on either side. If you have no better hopes from hence than I send you, it is high time to look somewhere else, both for the King and the Levellers. If there could be any means to unite that party to his Majesty, it would be a better foundation than any I hear of, and to begin only with the King's party will but make a second part of an ill tragedy; but the Levellers here are kept secret, and not to be spoken with. 60a. T. Ross to [Sec. Nicholas]. In the enclosed letter, Dick the surgeon has sent all he has to say about Halsey, who is the person he names as my companion in a dangerous sea voyage. I hope you now have the character (cypher) from Mr. Lane to understand the rest, but you will not find in it the word Glasier, which I think is put for Massey. Dick waits your answer in London. I am sorry you have no more satisfaction from my thumb friend; he wishes me to forbear writing till I hear from him. His friends will be brought to no reason till they see which way Spain inclines, and our master is disposed. The panic fear which now involves the whole nation has entered the most generous breasts. If my friend make not good what he promised, I hope it will not be imputed to me, who will never waive hazard to testify my integrity. If you send an agent to England, let him visit my friend by that token of taking him by the thumb, that you may learn what can be done, for persons are not so much feared as letters.

I find from England that the oath that is to be imposed is extremely feared, and it is thought will destroy our friends like a massacre. The lieutenants are very severe in exacting the tenths, and every gentleman must give in the number of his servants, and security for their deportment, so that all show of liberty is lost; I pray that the sense and memory of it be not lost too, if they be long used to the burden. Endorsed by Nicholas. Received 9 Jan. 165⁵/₈, sends me a letter he had from Mr. Lipe. [1 page.]

Dec. 25. 62. Petition of Thos. Lamb, merchant, to the Protector. Capt. Clarke lately dead left 2 young orphan sons, to whom I with others am executor, but the estate is clogged with a bargain for 150*l.* a year of Lord Craven's estate, of which $\frac{1}{2}$ is paid and the other $\frac{1}{2}$ we know not how to pay, and therefore dare not prove the will. As the father was faithful and favoured by you, I beg an order that the estate may not be sequestered for payment of the other half, but the money received as we can raise it yearly out of the profits of the estate. - Dec. 25. Additional instructions to the Major-Generals and Commissioners of the respective counties and cities, appointed to execute the orders for securing the peace of the Commonwealth:—
You are to find out what moneys collected for the public service on any Act or Ordinance remain undisposed of, and require that the persons holding them pay them in to your nominee, whose receipt shall be sufficient discharge therefor. Read and passed in Council. [I. 76. p. 438.]
- [Dec. 25.] 64. Petition of James, Earl of Northampton, to the Protector. Upon my release from my late confinement in London, I entered into a bond for compliance with the present Government, and for my appearance from time to time, which your Highness ordered to be taken for one year only. Yet Major Butler has summoned me to enter into new bonds, with sureties, without any limitation of time, which will tend to my ruin, I being much indebted, my estate charged with mortgages and annuities, and my brothers' and sisters' portions yet unpaid. By the late Act for regulating the Chancery, no relief is to be had against forfeited bonds and mortgages after such a time. Having this recognizance as a perpetual incumbrance on my estate, I cannot raise moneys by sale of lands. I therefore beg you to order Major Butler to accept a bond from me to continue in force for one year, and that the old bond may be cancelled. [1 page.]

12. Order agreeing to the following report on the petition of the Lord-Deputy of Ireland. [See 4 Sept. 1655.]

13. That Armingland and Heydon manors, Norfolk, and Wyssettle Rose, Suffolk, were settled on Chas. Fleetwood; now Lord-Deputy, and Frances his wife, by Act of 16 July 1651, after the death of Sir Ralph Hopton without issue male. That a few months after Fleetwood's purchase of Sir Ralph's interest therein, from the Drury House Trustees, Sir Ralph died, and they reverted to Fleetwood, so that he had to pay 7 years' purchase for but 7 months' enjoyment. That they were much overvalued in the survey, so that the one moiety is almost their real value. That Fleetwood is therefore fully discharged from payment of the second moiety, and his recognizances for payment thereof are to be delivered up to him. Approved 29 Dec.

15. Order on report from the Committee on Clem. Kinnarsley's proposals,—that on account of his charges in his office here at Hampton Court, he should have 600*l.* a year, of which 100*l.* to be instead of the diet he proposed, to begin from Feb. 21, 1653–4 when he was appointed, and he to perform the services mentioned in the annexed papers—that his Highness be desired to pass a patent under the Great Seal for the said salary.

The debt is assigned over by his creditor to a Dutch merchant. If supportable misery to us all who are in debt. Let me know the truth, for all that good lord's intelligence is not canonical.

Dr. Fraiser, who is to wait on the Princess Royal into France, says she goes from the Hague on the 14th or 15th. I hope she will not stay long, or will not keep the doctor there long, as there is no physician here who understands anything, in case the King or the Duke of Gloucester should fall sick in the spring.

The King of Spain still hopes peace with Cromwell, and Barrière is stayed in England by the Prince of Condé for that purpose. Some say an envoy has arrived in the west of England from the King of Spain. When that King resolves to prosecute the war with Cromwell roundly, he must take our master by the hand; but only absolute necessity will make him do it.

I wonder whom Beverward means by the great spy not yet discovered among us. The Queen of England, when she leaves Paris, as by the articles with Cromwell she must do, goes to a house 2 leagues from Paris belonging to the French King, called Madrid.

I much mislike the Princess Royal's going for France, and the worse for the Princess Dowager's advising it.

Capt. John Griffith, and little Mr. Griffith, who served the Duke of Gloucester, are both forbidden the Court, on evidence that they were very intimate with Manning, though there is no evidence that they were privy to his intelligence; but they were observed to be very private with him on post days.

We think the King of Spain and the Elector are agreed by this time. I am sorry for the hard measure used towards Mr. Stone, who, on the Queen [of Bohemia's] word, came to the Hague to end his difference with Capt. La Mer, wherein her Majesty suffers much; but Stone should have avoided coming under the power that now abuses him. I doubt all English will resent this, with much prejudice to the good Queen, who was wont to be more gracious to the nation.

P.S.—My wife wishes you a happy new year, and that we may all meet in England before the next. Tell me how Mr. Somerdyke takes my writing to him. [3 pages. Holland correspondence.]

- Dec. 26. 67. Petition of Edw. Darcy to the Protector. Never bore arms for the late King, nor was sequestered for delinquency, only in 1644, on misinformation that he was absent from his house, the Commissioners of Surrey seized his rents; but, it appearing a mistake, took off the seizure. Has conformed to all Acts and Ordinances, and yet, on the late instructions for taxing the estates of all delinquents, has been summoned as a delinquent, and taxed at one tenth by Maj.-Gen. Kelsey and the Surrey Commissioners, who say that, as he is assessed, only his Highness and Council can relieve him. Begs the taking off the tax, and examination of his case. You are to provide books, and enter alphabetically the lists of names and addresses returned to you by the Majors-General.

When any persons appear in pursuance of the instructions given to the Majors-General, you are to enter them in a separate book, with the date of appearance, the place whence they came, and where they intend to lodge in or about London, and also enter any removal in London ; and if any return to the country, signify it to the Major-General of the county, with the place of their former abode, how long they have been in London, and to what place removed.

In case persons give names and addresses which you do not find in the lists given you by the Majors-General, you are to send the names and addresses to the Secretary of State.

You are to enter in a separate book all certificates of foreigners and others who come from beyond seas, which shall be sent you by persons appointed by the Majors-General, and when they appear before you, compare their names and relations with the certificates, and enter whence they came, where they lodge, and, if foreigners, their correspondents, and whither they remove.

When any inhabitant of London or Westminster appears whose name is in the Major-General's list, you shall enter his abode and whither he is to remove, and send it to the Major-General by the next post.

On any robbery, murder, or notorious breach of peace, the actors whereof are concealed, you shall on request signify the same to the Major-General of the county, for discovery and apprehension of the offenders. [I. 76a, pp. 181-2.]

72. Petition of the inventors and promoters of frame-work knitting and making of silk stockings, to the Protector. We were the first inventors of this art, which is an English invention, and no part of the world has it besides. It has been much coveted by strangers, to be carried into foreign parts, which we, with much trouble and expense, have hitherto hindered. But now, by the insinuations of foreigners with some ill disposed persons of our trade, it is in danger of being carried away, which would expose hundreds of families to beggary. Knowing your readiness to promote the work, we beg you to improve your instructions in provoking to the undertaking such as may answer the end propounded, to examine those presented, and to approve only such as are well grounded in learning and godliness, and fitted to improve all opportunities of saving souls; that neither the glorious truths of the Gospel may be brought into contempt by the ignorance, vanity, or erroneous teaching of some who would crowd into such employments, nor the poor seamen kept in darkness by the high flown language of others. 76. T. Ross to [Sec. Nicholas]. I find you have received the character (cypher), but am sorry that the person [Halsey] which Albert and I engaged should be so wanting to his work. Every week I have begged my wife to find him out, but he is not in London. I hope now you will be better served, for I have found a young gentleman called in your character, Mr. Farley (Ant. Hungerford). His father is the great heir to his name, this estate 1,000*l.* a year. He goes to-morrow for England, and engages to settle you a correspondent there, who can tell you some of the Arcana of the rebels. He is his father's darling, and hopes to get a considerable sum for you. I hope our friends in England, being now under the lash, are so sensible of the smart that they will do their duty. I find, by the enclosed from my thumb friend and other letters, that they would gladly be doing something speedily. The writer tells you he is going to the gentleman whom he intends an express to you, and I hope he will not refuse the journey.

Dick Pile is impatient of your letter and commands, and if he hears not speedily, he will quit England, but I shall urge him to stay till you can send. I beg your help about a pass. I asked Mr. Booth, of Calais, to get Lord Jermyn to procure half a dozen passes to lie ready at Calais for expresses, and among them one for me, in case of my return; but Booth, instead of writing to lord Jermyn, got a single pass for me, for which he asks 20 livres, which I cannot pay, as it is all I can do to pay for my letters, and I often spare it out of my belly. Also I am 30*l.* out of purse by my journey to Cologne, for those who promised to pay me were prisoners before my return, and now I hope to get off my bail for 40*l.* that I may be free to serve you. My surgeon keeps me in his hands because I cannot pay for my cure. Pray help me to place Mr. Booth's account to the King. If I had money I would not desire assistance.

I have been 7 months hoping a way of subsistence by the tuition of the Earl of Roscommon, but they cannot find money to send him here, so I am destitute of all support.

I send you the instructions to Cromwell's Commissioners, though you may have had them already.

P.S.—You ask who are Cromwell's chief councillors. When I was in England, St. John and Thurloe, who had been St. John's clerk, with Lawrence, President of the Council, and Nath. Fiennes, brought in by Lawrence, were of his cabinet; and sometimes one of the Pierreponts—a Parliamentary man with crooked shoulders—is admitted when advice is wanting. I am glad Manning has received his reward. I hope all of his stamp will have the like. [3½ pages; endorsed by Nicholas as received 16 Jan. 1655-6.] Enclosing, 78. Capt. Fras. Willoughby to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send, as ordered, an account of timber in Ampthill, Weckering, and Brockborow Parks, which is mostly felled, and worth a considerable sum. I suppose the trustees at Worcester House acted according to certificate from their surveyors, but how far these did their duty I know not; I was informed that the river was navigable to St. Neot's, and that the timber could be conveniently carried thither, and from thence by water; that from St. Neot's to Bedford was 8 miles, and from Bedford to Ampthill 5 miles; but I know not whether it was Parliament's intention that the miles should be measured, for miles in some counties are far longer than in others; I think it a long 12, but it cannot be 16 miles, unless they add the badness of the way to lengthen them. If it is judged that the timber belongs to the Navy, it will be best to sell the remainder, and make those accountable who sold what they had no right to.

Particulars of ships. Officers wanted, and recommended. I send the examinations of the boatswain and carpenter of the Taunton, respecting some expressions used by their captain. The Portsmouth has arrived with 15 or 16 small vessels from St. Malo, and reports that numerous Ostenders are skulking about the rocks there, so that our great ships dare not venture there, and that this much prejudices the trade of those parts. The forest, from its nearness to the Severn, is fit for building ships of great burdens, and was so pronounced on a late survey by Augustine Aldridge, shipwright of London. [113 signatures. 1 sheet.]

186. Petition of Capt. Dan. How to the Admiralty Commissioners. I waited in Virginia 5 months, at a charge of 50*l.* a month, after my ship, the Hopewell, was taken from me, and then the governor freed me, but sent me to England under 1,000*l.* engagement. On arrival I fell sick, and all my men were pressed at Plymouth, so that I could not come to London. Meantime my adversaries, from whom the Governor and Council of Virginia freed me, proceeded against me in the Admiralty Court, and got my ship condemned as prize without my knowledge. I appealed, got a summons for Major Hazard's appearance, and petitioned the Protector, who referred me to you; but Hazard is not willing to appear, though he was willing to take my ship, for which I have been in trouble since Feb. 1652-3. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

187. Petition of Nich. Harris and Sam. Gamble to the Admiralty Commissioners. Have served by land and sea and against the Hollanders, and lately Harris in the Marmaduke and Gamble in the Heart's Ease, but cannot get pay; Harris because, having a 10 days' leave to come to London, he fell ill, and when recovered, was too weak to repair to his ship, and enlisted under Col. Barkstead, and now cannot get leave to return to sea. Gamble is also under Col.

Barkstead in like condition. Both beg to receive what they faithfully served for. [1 page.]

188. Petition of Anne, widow of Capt. Rich. Jolliffe, and also of Lieut. Thos. Croney, both of whom died in the service, to the Admiralty Commissioners. My son, And. Croney, was servant to Mr. Cottington, surgeon of the Newcastle, for 23 months, but his pay is suspended, on an allegation that he stole 5*l.* or 6*l.* worth of victuals, though he only took 2 or 3 lbs. of flour and 9 biscuits for hunger. For this he was so severely lashed by the boatswain that his flesh was torn and he left almost dead. Begs pity and his wages, for she sold her bed from under her to fit him for the service. [1 page.]

189. Petition of Anna Jones, widow, to the Admiralty Commissioners, for release of her son John, aged 14, who "by the enticement of some idle persons called spirits was carried aboard the ship William, lying at Gravesend and bound for Barbadoes or Virginia, and there detained aboard and intended to be by them sold." He is her only son and the staff of her age. Noted in short hand that the boy is to be brought up, and those that claim him to appear. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

190. Petition of John Read, steward of the Worcester, to the Admiralty Commissioners. I lately asked compensation for loss and damage under Capt. Nixon, the master, and for leave to exhibit a charge against the captain, for illegal judgments and cruelties in the late expedition against many mariners and soldiers, and for defrauding the State. For so doing he threatens me with actions at law and arrest. I am informed that actions are often so obstructed, and if I be so troubled, I shall never get bail, the good of the Commonwealth will be obstructed, and offenders will go unpunished.

If protected according to law, I can gain the Commonwealth very much money. I beg protection against all arrests at the captain or master's hands, till the cause be heard and the Commonwealth satisfied, and the injuries and wrongs to the seamen and soldiers by the inhuman tyranny and cruelty of the captain be righted. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

191. Petition of Jer. Rich to the Admiralty Commissioners. Has served 11 years, but the differences with neighbour nations, wherein he was clerk of the check under Captain Wm. Rous, being composed, begs other employment, having good certificates. Will not relate his troubles in the late wars; has sailed through a Red Sea of sorrow in the midst of the Valley of Achor; yet adversities are good except to those who have too little faith or too much fear. Noted, "To bring a certificate that he has cleared his accounts." [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.] Annexing,

191. I Jer. Rich to Major Thompson. The General and Admiralty Commissioners say it is not usual for them to give certificates, but you might give me one if you knew no fault in me. Gen. Blake spoke to Commissioner Pett about it; my making or undoing stands in having your certificate. Gen. Penn told me yours only would serve. If I had been false in the last employment you put me in, I should not have dared to ask your certificate. [1 page.]

192. Petition of John Taylor, lieutenant of the Tiger, and son to the late John Taylor, captain of the William, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Served under Capt. Gabriel Saunders ever since 14 July 1654; came home from Saonehead, France, in a prize which Vice-Admiral Howett ordered him to bring to the Collectors for prizes. Then went into the country till his ship came to Portsmouth, when he repaired to her but she was gone. Came to London and found the captain had pricked him out of pay since he left Saonehead. This being done from enmity, begs he may have his pay. [1 page.]

193. Petition of Rob. Taylor to the Commissioners of Customs, for a place as searcher, messenger, tidesman, or any other. Has long served faithfully in England and Scotland, and has thus lost the employment to which he was brought up. With blank form of a certificate of recommendation. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

194. Petition of John, son of Jas. Towne of Thornton, co. York, to Maj.-Gen. Lambert, for employment to get a subsistence. Has been apprenticed in London, but cannot set up his trade there for want of stock, owing to his father's sufferings in the late wars from the King's party. Has served as a clerk at Worcester House, and since as a messenger. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

195. Petition of Thos. Wilson, M.D to the Admiralty Commissioners. I was appointed physician to the fleet in the West Indian expedition, and diligently attended all, whether officers or seamen, who desired my advice, either on board the Swiftsure or any other ship in the fleet, on advertisement from their surgeons. Since my arrival I have fallen sick in prison. I beg you to order my salary, according to the establishment allowed a physician serving the State on land, and pay it to Edw. Allen, my assignee. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

196. Report to the Protector on the petition of John King, messenger of Council. For his services to the late Council of State, they bought him a house in Whitehall orchard, the repair of which cost him 40*l.*; he was removed thence by Maidstone, your steward, losing 33*l.* money and goods in the removal; his salary is 3 years in arrear, and he was dismissed without cause shown, for which he craves allowance. We find that he was a deputy to the serjeant-at-arms, and had John Kendrick's rooms in Whitehall, Kendrick receiving 20*l.* on quitting them; that King spent 20*l.* on the lodgings; that the steward, having urgent occasion for the rooms for your family, removed him after several warnings; that he was paid his salary to 3 Feb. 1653-4, and any service he has done since has been voluntary; but that he has been a useful servant, has incurred danger, and suffered from Malignants, and therefore deserves favour. that Mr. Tandy should forthwith be paid off all the arrears of his salary, and the Treasurers be required to do this. [$\frac{1}{3}$ page.]

199. Thos. Haynes to Lord ——. When I came from England, I had lost 25*l.* but was paid 300 guilders. I have sent moneys last Lent to Mrs. Randew for her husband, who was starving at Maestricht, for part of which they assigned me a bill on Lord Wentworth for money lent him by Randew at Cologne. Please to get this paid. I have Sir Chas. Cotterel's promise for the remainder.

I also beg payment of 2 years' board wages due to the late Mr. Hind, to whom I often lent money, and who requested me on his deathbed to pay his small debts, which I promised to do, and they call on me for it; but though Mr. Fox promises me money, he does not pay it. I have now a year's board wages due to me. Let not my compassion to my fellow-servants make me incapable of relieving myself. [$1\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

200, 201. Wm. Jervis to the Protector. I can prove that the Trustees for Sale of Delinquents' Estates have, contrary to their trust, reprinted upon several contracts above 50,000*l.*; and if their books may be seized and I peruse them, I could prove a great deal more.

This should be done at once, if you and Council resolve to raise the money on the said Trustees or otherwise.

I can also prove their frauds in selling estates at undervalues when there were competitors for them, and when they ought to have been sold at the box, and in selling them privately at lower rates than were offered, if Commissioners may be appointed to examine the case, send for books and papers, and imprison such as stand in contempt.

P.S.—I can also prove that they allowed leases and pretended leases on most estates sold by them, which were returned by the surveyors, though they were not claimed, and allowed according to the directions of the Act for Sale, whereby they have sold 40,000*l.* or 50,000*l.* a year as in reversion, which they were bound to have sold in possession. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages; 2 papers.]

202, 203. Request by Jervis that 13 persons named, of cos. Gloucester, Essex, Somerset, Sussex, and Dorset, and of London and Westminster, may be a committee to examine the case, with such others as his Highness thinks fit, the quorum not to exceed 3. [$\frac{3}{4}$ pages, 2 copies.]

204. Request by Jervis for 4 other persons named to be added to the said Committee for Discoveries. [1 page.]

205. Request by Jervis that John Hodder may be nominated their clerk, in respect of his knowledge in the books of the Trustees. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

206. — Justel to Jos. Williamson, Oxford. But for the gentleman by whom you wrote me, but whose acquaintance I only made 5 or 6 days ago, on account of his illness, I should have despaired, for want of your address, of assuring you of my obedience, and thanking you for your remembrance of me.

207. Capt. Fras. Cranwell to the Admiralty Commissioners. Although I have been so unfortunate as to incur your displeasure through drowning our ship, I nevertheless humbly desire a re-engagement in the service, when I will stake my life for the regaining of your good opinion. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

Dover Road.

208. Case of Mrs. Marsh, widow of Mr. Marsh, postmaster on the Dover Road. Petitioned his Highness for her husband's place, and for the year's arrears due to him at Midsummer last, which petition was referred to Council, and from them to a committee, where it still remains.

The rest of those postmasters also petitioned his Highness, and claim other privileges, coming in by purchase at first, and received their salary quarterly from the Navy Office, their post being outlandish, but they, like Mrs. Marsh, have now arrears due.

Notwithstanding former orders in the late King's time, many persons going under the name of hackneymen daily furnish persons with horses, and ride post with horses and guides without order, whereby the postmasters are much discouraged, being at great charge in keeping horses and servants, and sometimes at a greater expense than their salaries amount to.

Motion is therefore made for consideration of both cases, and of the annexed certificate and order, made to settle and pay them their salaries forthwith. [1 page.] Annexing,

208. I. *Certificate by Edw. Pashlow, mayor, and the jurates and inhabitants of Gravesend and Milton, that Arthur White, deputy-postmaster there, has officiated 8 years with diligence, and kept a sufficient number of horses and servants; yet divers hackneymen in the town send horses and guides with all manner of outlandish persons, which is a great discouragement to White and the rest of the posts upon the roads to Dover, and a great prejudice to the Commonwealth, as many dangerous and disaffected persons have and still may be guided by such persons into private byways, and thereby travel the country unknown. With note by White that from 12 Sept. 1651 to 7 Nov. 1653, he has carried 190 by land, and since he has been postmaster, he has lost 130*l.* in horse flesh.* [1 $\frac{1}{4}$ pages, with 16 signatures.]

Offley, citizen of London, and agent for English merchants in Prussia, eldest son of Hugh Offley, sheriff and alderman of London in 1588, second son of Wm. Offley, mayor and sheriff of Chester, son of Rich. Offley, who married twice, had 23 sons and 3 daughters, and lived to be 86 years old. Jan. 1. 1. Petition of Mich. Measy to Council. I and the late Hugh Lewis, searcher at Bristol, have for divers years at great charge prosecuted Bristol merchants on informations, for unlawful export of calf-skins, and they have indirectly tried to stop our proceedings, prejudiced the Commonwealth, and ruined their prosecutors, outing from his place Lewis, who has left a widow and 5 children ready to perish, and troubling me at the Committee for Indemnity, &c. They now endeavour to supersede the proceedings in the Exchequer, which they think are likely to go against them. I beg you to transmit the business to the Exchequer, that it may appear what is due from them to the State, and that I may receive what cannot justly be denied me. [1 page.] Annexing,

1. i. *Arguments on the case, showing that the merchants endeavour to export without payment of custom, and boast of their purses, and say it is dangerous for any man to sue a corporation. Being heir at law and brother to Cuthbert, whose outlawry he prosecuted at his own charge, begs remission of the forfeiture, and a patent for the lands in consideration of service. reference signed by Sadler to the Attorney General, 28 June 1655; and report by Attorney General Prideaux, that Cuthbert Morley was outlawed for felony and murder, that he held the said lands at a rent charge of 20 marks on Morley's lands in Normanby, Cleveland, but they are probably worth much more than 63*l.* 9*s.* 4*d.*, were seized as forfeit, and are at his Highness's disposal. 21 July 1655. 7. 1. *Lord Deputy Chas. Fleetwood to his father[-in-law-] the Protector. I commend Morley to you, as his case has long depended in the Master of Requests' hands. [Jan. 2.] 8. Petition of John Hamilton of Hurworth-on-Tees, Durham, to the Protector. On summons, I appeared before the Committee for ejecting Scandalous Ministers, &c., in the 4 northern counties, begging a copy of the injunction against me, and leave to bring in witnesses, which was refused, and I had to make a verbal answer. The articles were for frivolous words in ordinary discourse on the late war, 1648-1650. I begged 4 hours' time for an answer, urging the danger of examining on oath on words spoken so many years ago, and pleading the Act of Oblivion, but all was rejected, and I was voted out of my rectory by 5 Commissioners named. Next day, I begged a copy of the charge, depositions, and sentence, that I might appeal to you, but they were refused, "to the great admiration of all that hear of such strange proceedings."

I beg an order to the judges of assize to be held at Durham this August 1655, or to the justices of peace, to call on the said Commissioners to justify their proceedings and to suspend the ejection, if the refusal of a copy of the charge, &c., is illegal. With order, signed by the Protector, that the petition be showed to the 5 Commissioners named, and that they report their proceedings to to Council. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

We considered ourselves judges about giving copies of the articles, and refused them because they gave the year, but not the day, and therefore we knew no negative could be proved. 16. Petition of the Governor, Associates, and Fellowship of the Eastland merchants to the Protector. We cannot express due acknowledgment of the favour we have lately enjoyed, by your unparalleled action in recovering 22 full laden ships detained in Denmark, by which many who had else been ruined will record to posterity the interposition of so great wisdom in rescuing their goods out of unjust hands, and removing obstructions in trade for the universal good of the nation.

We now address you for further improvement of the trade into the Baltic seas, which, though formerly regarded with extraordinary favour, has lately suffered for want of good regulation; since the irregularity or obstinacy of any one of the traders (which we have no power to remedy) renders the exactest course we can take ineffectual, so that a licentious and confused kind of commerce is now exercised, according to humour or private interest, without respect to the public, and thus the trade is reduced very low.

We beg your assent to and confirmation of our former powers, or such other regulations as may enable us to support and advance the trade, and to regain the privileges in foreign parts which have been purchased with great care and trouble, and are now totally lost. We think the presence here of the Swedish Ambassador may facilitate our redress. We enclose our former articles, which should be renewed. [1 page.] Annexing,

16. i. Representation of the Eastland merchants to the Protector, detailing their discovery of the trade to the Baltic seas 301 years ago; their incorporation 21 Eliz.; the advantages of an orderly government in the export of cloth, and import of Eastland commodities, hemp, tar, timber, copper, wool, &c., &c., they employing therein 200 ships. Also by their foreign residence, they obtain privileges for English abroad, and 10 years ago, by negotiations with the King of Denmark, removed obstructions to trade through the Sound. Details of the mischiefs that have ensued through suspension of their incorporation, debased manufactures, diminished imports, strengthening of foreign trade, loss of security for English abroad, &c.. Their incorporation cannot be called a monopoly, as it admits merchants of Hull, Plymouth, Bristol, and other towns, and they request its renewal, in order—

1. To rescue the trade from the hands of strangers.
2. To hinder the making of foreign and advance that of English draperies.
3. To prevent foreign shipping, and promote English navigation.
4. To furnish reasonably a constant supply of naval stores.
5. To renew the import of corn, and prevent its export by strangers.
6. To recover and preserve the estates of factors dying abroad, and other foreign privileges now lost; to raise money for payment of debts and charges of trade, and to preserve it for the advantage of the nation. With reference thereon to the Committee for Trade. [4½ pages.]

1. You shall take care that all who after Dec. 1, 1655, come here from beyond seas shall, within 24 hours of landing, give in to such persons as the Maj.-General or deputy of that port shall appoint, their names and the places where they are going, which shall be entered in a book; if they are going to London or Westminster, engage them within 24 hours of their arrival personally to report themselves before the registrar of the city, giving their names, where they come from, what their business is, and the parish, street, and house where they intend to live; and if they be foreigners, the names of their correspondents there also. If they have before been in arms against the State or banished, they must report any change of lodging.

If any shall neglect to do this, or shall make false statements, they shall be imprisoned during pleasure.

That all may know this, those reporting themselves are to be informed of the penalty, and a copy of this order is to be set up in all custom houses.

2. You are from time to time to return to the registrar all the names and particulars given in to you, and also the appearance of the persons; and if the person come not to London, the registrar shall report the case to the Maj.-General in charge of the place where he is going.

Pres. Lawrence to the President of the Council in Scotland. His Highness and Council approve the purport of your letter of Oct. 23, 1655, and empower you accordingly to dispose of the 2,000*l.* remaining of the 2,500*l.* to be paid by Mac Cloud, as far as it will go, in making reparation to those who have suffered for their fidelity to Government, and are within the proclamation of 1654, and the estates of those who have been in arms and are not under articles shall be liable to pay what more is wanted. You are to send us, for further direction therein, their names, value of their estates, and sums proposed to be levied.

As to your letter of Nov. 27, Council empowers you to dispose of the 640*l.* 13*s.* 11*d.* mentioned, for the maintenance of such godly ministers as shall be invited into Scotland, till further provision be made. Approved 9 Jan. [I. 76, p. 461.]

Pres. Lawrence to the President of Council in Scotland. In answer to your letter of Oct. 11, concerning the recovery of part of the State revenue, which has been concealed, detained, or made away with, Council notes your great care in prosecuting your instructions thereon, and the difficulties you suggest therein. On the whole, they incline for the settling of the matter in the Exchequer Court, which will be set up in Scotland as in England, restricting them to settling matters concerning parts of the revenue made away by King James and the last King contrary to law, and to profits belonging to bishops or any part of the hierarchy unduly alienated. But as we have not here a copy of the Act of Parliament alluded to in yours, we refer it to you to prepare the draft of an Ordinance to set up the said court in the best way, and report it, with a copy of the Act; also to expedite the settlement of the receipt of Exchequer. Approved 9 Jan. [I. 76, pp. 461-2.]

24. Statement that by Act of April 1653, the fees for Probate of Wills go to the Treasury, after paying necessary officers; that there are more than 21 clerks who have very large fees, by a table made in June 1653, and a registrar with fees of 2,000*l.* a year, who takes the place of an actuary at 300*l.*; that half the number of officers might do the work. Suggestion whether his Highness will commit it to some well meriting persons, who shall pay him one-third of the fees now allowed, and the rest of the fees go to the officers. 25. Proceedings for better regulating wills and administrations, so as to ease the people, augment the Treasury, &c. On several petitions

Jan. 9. to members of the last Parliament it was their opinion that there was no better way than the following:—

- (1.) To nominate commissioners and registrars or clerks in every county, being public notaries, to receive the wills, preserving the originals with the ancient records, and to perform their office, so that searches may be made and caveats entered, and to cause the said administrations, wills, and inventories to be fairly engrossed, and sent together with the fees to some place in London appointed by the Lords Commissioners, to be there examined by two persons elected by them, sealed, and returned without delay.

All moneys will thus be paid at one place in London, and a weekly account rendered to the Treasury. If settled in a provincial way, as at York, Exeter, and London, there will be trouble and charge in bringing the money to London after it is raised.

Or should all wills, &c., still continue to be sent to London, two-thirds are sent by attorneys, who will not take less than 40s. or 50s., commonly as much more as the fees come to, which the people cannot avoid.

- (2.) On any legacy being refused to be paid by an administrator, the legatee may enter suit in the registrar's office of that county. The registrar shall send a breve to a proctor to draw up articles, and a monition under seal to the party principal, to appear before the Commissioners, and be examined by the registrar, who is also to examine all other witnesses within three months, and transmit their answers, &c., to the judges for Probate of Wills, for publication and sentence without appeal.

Thus little trouble will arise to the parties on either side, their witnesses being examined in their own county; there will be little bribery and no delay, and the cost to the parties less than now.

- (3.) Let coercive power be appointed instead of excommunication, whether by distress or sequestration, to commence from the time of the extirpation of bishops. Thereby all may be brought in, as accounts, letters of tutelage, &c., that children in their minority may be provided for. The revenue, now 8,000*l.* or 9,000*l.* a year, would soon yield $\frac{1}{3}$ more. Should licenses be granted again for marriages, which now are acted after a strange manner,—howsoever causes for marriages, divorcements, and tithes may be granted, which is the most legal way for proceedings thereon,—it would augment the Treasury as much more as the profit now made.

All which may be easily regulated if the clerks appointed to receive wills from every county, and to perfect them here, be sent down into every county to perfect them there, and if two examiners be appointed here in London to receive the wills with the fees, and to see they are made right, the seal being ready to seal them.

26. Jas. Morley to Lord Deputy Fleetwood. I am very troublesome, but my case is sad, if not remediless, unless you help me. My petition, which I hear is now in your hands, will state my case, and I will make no alteration for fear of delay [See 2 Jan. 1655-6]. But I believe Newton on Ouse, forfeited as my brother's, was my father's, by a 50 years' lease, still in being, and the administrator will probably recover it in the Exchequer; therefore the Protector would only grant me the reversion of that and 13*l.* a year, entailed on Normanby, co. York, but I would have the patent full for the whole estate, that I may make better terms with Col. Medford, my father's administrator, and a subtle man. The thing if gained will not compensate my charges, besides 11 voyages to England about it. [1 page. Copy sent enclosed to Geo. Hewett.]

27. Col. R. W. to [Sec. Nicholas]. My letters have been sent by Zealand. I have yours of the 4th, and shall expect no more here, though as yet I hear nothing of my pass. If it come not within a few days, I shall try and go without it. I hear from England that while others enjoyed their Christmas with mirth and freedom, Cromwell doubled his guards of horse and foot, on either real or pretended fears of the Anabaptists, who have been active and bold in feeling the pulse of several officers of the army. Some say (but it is thought a fable) that they have lately tampered with his barber to make short work with him, but they certainly hope to destroy him by prayer, which (as they say) was the way they raised him. Simpson, with one or two other fierce Levites, and a cornet of Harrison's regiment, are made prisoners on this account.

Ludlow, after his close imprisonment at Beaumaris, was brought before Council on the charge of not acknowledging the present power; he refuses to give bond to be faithful to it, yet he is set at liberty, and has leave to go about the country, to ensnare him (as is believed). When Cromwell, lest he should disturb him during his absence in Scotland, made him Lieutenant-General of the Irish horse, a friend called to congratulate him, when his reply was that he must needs go whom the devil drives; so you see the jealousy between them.

The poor orthodox clergy have passed a Sunday in silence; the old Bishop of Armagh has been with Cromwell, but to little purpose, though he had some Court holy-water, a dinner, and a confirmation of church leases in Ireland.

It is said Cromwell will re-establish the Salters' Hall Committee to force prisoners for debt to satisfy their engagements by sale of their estates. It has been suppressed for some abuses this year or two. When it has new powers, the design will be to purchase debtors' lands at easy rates for Cromwell, by means of Nowell, a scrivener. I believe this because some King's Bench prisoners are severely dealt with, and it is said the Earl of Kildare is put amongst the common sort in that house.

Those gentlemen taken coming from mass at the Venetian Ambassador's house, and sent prisoners to Hicks' Hall, were many of them released on security, by the Lieutenant of the Tower, who went thither next day.

The Straits' fleet is making ready, but the best ships are to be sheathed, so that it will be 6 weeks before they can put to sea. Col. Montague, one of the Council, is to have equal power with Blake for the Straits. Several are nominated, but none decided on for the West India command. Six small vessels are building to ply about Dunkirk and Flanders, and one is building which will carry at least 90 guns.

P.S.—A son of Col. Marsh who lately came from England and lives with Mr. Loving, has brought a large M.S. of all the proceedings of the last King's murder, wherein is much that you have never seen. Mr. Loving may now be in your parts, and you may like a transcript of the book. Endorsed. Received $\frac{3}{18}$ Feb. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

28. E. N. [Sec. Nicholas] to Mr. Jane, Englishman, Youffrou Street, Hague. I have yours of the 18th. I wonder what those that dislike the King's proceedings would have him do, as affairs now stand between France and Cromwell. They are so mad against some that they would rather the King's business should miscarry than prosper in such hands. I think it were much better for the King to be restored by the King of Spain than the King of France, holding a real and cordial alliance with Spain much more for the advantage of England than the friendship of France, which has always been pernicious.

I assure you (but take not notice of it from me) that the Levellers have had their envoys in Spain, and have an agency in Flanders. I think it is by their hypocritical dealing that the King of Spain has been induced to move with so slow a pace in the war against Cromwell, wherein the Spaniard will soon find himself grossly abused, and Don Alonso will be doubly cosened. Though the Spaniards are generally great assisters of monarchy, yet they prefer England as a republic, because it is so contrary to the nature of the English that it would keep them embroiled in perpetual divisions. When the King of Spain prosecutes the war against Cromwell vigorously, he will find it his interest to embrace the King's righteous quarrel, but till open war, he will not much heed what the King says about his interest in England. He is the more backward because he thinks the King too much inclined to France.

I hope the Princess Royal's journey will be more to her content than some imagine. I am glad the agreement between the two princesses [Princess Royal and Princess Dowager of Orange] is so well settled. Mr. Boswell is gone as one of the Princess's train. I marvel how he got means to fit himself for the journey. He may at Paris be allowed to wait on the Duke of Gloucester, in Mr. Griffith's absence. My Lord Lieutenant [Ormond] is expected next week. Monmouth, Radnor, and Salop, the mayors, aldermen, and common councilmen of Bristol and Hereford, and inhabitants of the Forest of Dean, and the said counties and cities, and parts adjacent, to the Protector.

We are all deeply concerned in the inconveniences from the weirs in the rivers Wye and Lugg, and have subscribed petitions and reasons annexed, showing the hindrance to trade and fishing, and the benefits that will accrue by speedy and vigorous redress. We beg an order for destroying the weirs, and making the rivers portable. With reference, 9 June 1654, to Council. [1 page.] Annexing,

- 33. 1. Reasons for making the Wye and Lugg portable :—

- (1.) That produce and manufactures may be transported, and exchanged for money which is very scarce.
- (2.) That hundreds of fishermen might be employed if the weirs and engines, which take all and at all times, were removed, as thereby the fishing is almost lost.

The work can be proved feasible :—

1. From the judgment of the Commissioners for Sewers, on which the weirs were ordered by Queen Elizabeth and King James to be pulled down, though this was superseded by the influence of the Earl of Worcester and other powerful persons.
2. From the nature of the rivers, which are or may be made 4 feet deep in the shallowest parts, and thus would carry large vessels.
3. Large boats often sail from weir to weir, and then have to unlade into boats on the other side.
4. *The country has for years presented the weirs as a nuisance at the assizes, and to the late Parliament, though it came not to effect, although it passed the Committee of Obstructions for making rivers portable. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page ; also I. 92, No. 84.]*

35. Petition of the free carmen of London to the Protector. We have long had legal interests in car-rooms, which at our deaths were accounted assets, and have ever been enjoyed by our wives and children. Yet we were subject as other freemen to the city magistrates till 22 Elizabeth, when we were put by the city under the government of the Woodmongers' Company, and in 28 Elizabeth under Christ's Hospital; but in 3 James, we were transferred back to the Woodmongers, who gave bond to pay 150*l.* to Christ's Hospital, which has ever since been exacted from the carmen; and then by sinister means the Woodmongers procured our incorporation with them.

In 21 James, they procured a Star Chamber decree that the car-rooms, which were then 417 in the city and suburbs, should not be our property, but should be disposed of by them. They have dispossessed many free carmen out of their car-rooms, have sold some, taken some from widows and orphans, and raised taxes on car-rooms of 10s. and 20s. each.

In 1649 we presented our grievances to the Long Parliament, who appointed a Committee, which after several days' hearing reported that we should be distinct from the Woodmongers; and an Act was prepared and twice read, ordering restitution of our car-rooms, but Parliament was dissolved before the third reading. The matter was referred by the next Parliament to the Committee for Trade, who after many hearings agreed to the resolution for separation of the companies. Yet the Woodmongers proceed in their tyranny and oppression, arresting some of us and threatening others. We beg relief. With reference thereon to Council. Jan. 15. 36. Petition of John Buck to the Protector. In August 1652, I married Mary, daughter and heiress of the late Wm. Ashton, and was to have with her lands value 240*l.* a year. I bound myself in 1,000*l.* to her mother, Mary, now wife of Edw. Turner, in lieu of the said lands, to settle on his wife and heirs male lands value 1,200*l.* a year. I had a daughter by my wife, but in June 1654, her mother and Joan Ewer, her grandmother, conveyed her away without cause, and keep her so secretly that I cannot discover where she is; they pretend my wife has had another child, but will not say whether male or female, so that a suppositious child may be made my heir, and my estate wasted by the claims of this pretended child.

I beg an order to compel Mary Turner and the other confederates to declare where my wife and the child are, and to prove the birth of the other child on oath. With reference thereon to Council, 1 Aug. 1655. [1 page, also I. 92, No. 429.]

Pres. Lawrence to Lord Broghill and the Council in Scotland. Council has considered yours of 6 Nov. about the continuance of the hangings and other things now in service of the Council there, and has received an account of them from Clement Kinnersley. They approve that the goods in service with the Council and with Gen. Monk at Dalkeith be continued; but hearing that besides those hangings and the 12 pieces of hangings brought hither, there are other pieces to a great number and value, and also much plate and other goods belonging to the late King which are concealed there, they have directed Kinnersley to find out the same. For this he has employed Wm. Hawkins, now in Scotland, to whom you should give countenance and authority to enable him to discover and get possession of the said hangings, plate, &c. 42. Petition of Cuthbert Studholme, and 6 other aldermen and well affected citizens of Carlisle, to the Protector. We rejoice in your unwearied endeavours to settle the peace of the nation, and especially in your late declaration, disabling Malignants from bearing office in Church or State.

Our city is governed by a mayor, 11 aldermen, and 24 citizens.

All the aldermen, except Rich. Barwis, having served against Parliament before 1647, were ejected, and some of the most active citizens; but the rest were retained, in hopes that they would change their principles, or at least comply outwardly.

But since the Act of Oblivion, Peter Norman has animated the Malignants, and they elected him mayor in 1654, and again for this year, since which our efforts for the public good have been fruitless. We beg that all the disaffected may be discharged, and that no prejudice may accrue to our charter for want of the full number. With reference to Council 16 Jan. 1655-6. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

8. Order on a report from the said Committee, that letters be written to the Justices of Peace in the several counties, to cause return of the money already collected, and collections to be made where it has not been done.

9. Order on report from the Committee of Council on augmentations granted but not approved, shewing that the augmentations are reduced to 3 heads, viz :—

(1.) Augmentations payable by them [i.e., the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers], some of which they have reduced to less sums than formerly, to be continued to the present ministers, they being already approved by the Commissioners for Approbation of Preachers ; but till the reducements are approved by his Highness and Council, the former augmentations are paid, which prejudices others since granted.

(2.) Augmentations formerly granted, but discontinued by the departure of the ministers, or for want of reviving them according to the Act, which the trustees have reviewed, and have continued those expressed in the list, the ministers being first approved.

(3.) Such augmentations as, on addresses from various places, they have granted to the ministers, being first approved as aforesaid, but which cannot be paid without Council's approval.

The Committee finds that many have been approved by particular orders, and sees no cause to disallow them, and therefore advises that such as are reduced or suspended, and not already approved, be approved. That those suspended in the list be suspended, and the rest approved, and that the Trustees cause them to be paid.

you should write too; he will be glad that you hope to use his horses, for he and his partners were despairing of selling them in this general depression of trade. The worthy person I offered you in my last, Rich. Hopton (call him Kemp in your cypher), is impatient to know your mind. We seldom find in a volunteer such a concurrence of requisites, viz., fidelity, credit, courage, discretion, and a purse. When your pleasure arrives, he will go for England to know the condition of your estate there, that you may take possession as soon as your tenant Cromwell gives up his lease, which will soon be effected. I am glad the King approves young Ant. Hungerford; I hope he is at London by this. I will enquire about what you desire, especially the Navy. I hear from one whose brother is a prime officer in the Navy that 80 ships are preparing for the Straits and Jamaica, but I do not think they are meant for Jamaica, because none are sheathed. Penn, Blake, and Sir Geo. Ayscue are nominated the 3 admirals. The Levellers are nothing now, at least their party is not mentioned by any. Ask Albert whether Sir Geo. Ayscue might not befriend your suit, for I have heard that Ayscue began to have a sense that he had wronged you, and might be won to do satisfaction, and if so, he should be instructed to be of our council against next term. Albert might find a way, by Mart. Clifford or some other, to feel his pulse.

Thanks for your paying Mr. Booth. I cannot help troubling you, having never before been in so sad a condition. I am glad you are purging your family from false persons. If I could get loose from Cromwell's bond, I would petition to wait on the Duke of Gloucester, in place of him you have dismissed, but you have many more worthy. Your news of Skippon is very welcome. I wish the number of traitors were lessened by his death. We are here heightened with the loss of the Swedes in Poland, but you do not name it. Jan. 18. 50. Tim. Halton to Jos. Williamson, at Hum. Robinson's, Queen's College. 3 Pigeons, Paul's Churchyard, London. There is not much college news. The election for Tabarders is still deferred, though the fellows courted the Provost, but he will not give way till they consent for a third chaplain. T. B. is the main opposer; he would not believe Lamplugh, who presented your service to him; I believe Lamplugh will yet continue, though some bandy against him. Mr. Cartwright has a parsonage in London, and Mr. Gregory in Shropshire. There will be no election of fellows till Sir Ellis is fit, though some say he shall never be a candidate at the same election with me. For any secrets you write me, I will have a stronger padlock on my lips than the Venetian husbands tie upon their wives.

P.S. After a 5 hours' canvass, Lamplugh is declared a fellow by 7 voices against 5, the Provost being for him. As the Provost's party is the stronger, he will grant the election for Tabarders next week. [2½ pages.]

Pres. Lawrence to Lord Broghill, President, and the rest of the Council in Scotland. Your letter of 3 Jan. is received, returning an account of what matters are necessary to pass the Great Seal of Scotland, in answer to Council's letter desiring information, that they might better judge of the usefulness of that Seal. As you name that the Council in Scotland has put the Great Seal into the hands of one of their members, who now officiates in that trust, Council desire to know before resolving further how far the Council in Scotland have proceeded as to the disposing of the Seal, and on what grounds it is so disposed. [I. 76, p. 468.]

Pres. Lawrence to Col. John Bingham, Governor of Guernsey. His Highness received some papers from Haviland and De La Marsh, as deputies from Guernsey, desiring that the campart and other State dues may be remitted; that Castle Cornet may be demolished; that the keeping of the isle may be confided to the inhabitants; that they may receive its public revenue, and dispose of it to some public ends; that licence to transport goods from England to the isle may be dispensed by the bailiffs and jurates; and that the appeals from Guernsey and Jersey, heretofore made to the Kings and Queens of England, may not come hither, but be determined by the bailiffs and jurates, each for the other reciprocally. He referred the case to Council, who on consideration are so far from countenancing the same, that they consider some of them dangerous to the isle and to this Government. You are to tell the well affected of the isle that, if they have anything to offer for its advantage and safety, we shall be ready to hear and consider it, when tendered in a due way. Also, that his Highness has appointed Peter de Beauvoir De Granges to be bailiff, on good information of his ability and integrity. You are also to enquire the grounds and rise of the above proposals. Written on an order of 18 Nov. last. [I. 76, p. 487.]

59. John Weald to Rev. Hugh Peters, Whitehall. Thanks for your manifold courtesies. There are here 12 ships, but the greatest want is men. We have 100, but should soon have our number if volunteers might have their desires. Capt. Symons, my commander, wants a minister, either Dan. Pell, his former one, or some able, honest man. I wish we had Mr. Vincent, but he will be fitter for one of the greatest ships; he is a godly man and an exemplary good liver, and would act as well with the sword in his hand as the Word in his mouth. His leaving the university, and refusing good places ashore for this expedition's sake will be a motive to you to consider him. You were once troubled with the remissness of university men, but his forwardness would encourage others.

Pray favour the bearer, Mr. Samson. I know many ministers, but few such. Try him in Whitehall. He was heard with great applause at James's. God direct you so that the Gospel may be proclaimed.

P.M.—I am willing to serve my country in her most desperate enterprizes, as landing, firing ships, &c. [1 page.]

60. Examination of Lewis Fossan, Clerk at the Powder Works belonging to John Jervase, Molyns, Richardson, and Co. Makes out the accounts. A ton of saltpetre had from the East India Company is wrought into 30 barrels of powder, and Molyns always had that quantity made from every ton. Jervase was security for Mr. Pepper, the workman, and would have left the work to him without any restriction as to 30 barrels. Pepper used to find fault with the English saltpetre from its being only singly refined, but the partners alleged it was according to their contract. Powder returned as not Tower proof was sold at 4*l.* a barrel, and amounted to 300 barrels. Powder sent in as overplus upon the English saltpetre was 10 tons, or 300 barrels, but doubts, until he examines his accounts, whether it was overplus, as they were behind in their contracts. Molyns sometimes delivered powder as so much wrought from the saltpetre received from the State, and had debentures for it. From 27 Aug. to 6 Dec. 1653, they received 7 or 8 tons of saltpetre, and delivered 360 barrels of powder in return, which was 12 hogsheads of saltpetre, or 30 barrels of powder per ton, in lieu of it. 17 and 22 Jan. By your warrant of 21 June 1655, you ordered stay of all prosecutions against my husband for treason, &c., yet he was indicted for treason last summer assizes at Sarum, but acquitted by proclamation, but on some information that he was concerned in the late insurrection, the County Commissioners have secured his person and sequestered his estate. I beg a warrant for his discharge, and removal of sequestration. [1 page.]

He was then at the mercy of the adversary, who used him barbarously, kept him close prisoner 2 years, and threatened to hang him unless, for his ransom, he would sell part of his estate at undervalue. This he did, but soon died of diseases got by their cruelty, and left me and 5 small children to the tyranny of a cruel enemy, and*

Jan. 23. 64. Petition of Capt. Henry Thornton, and Edward King, merchant of London, to the Protector. Thornton, by petition, 4 April 1655, discovered his Highness's interest in land called King's Sedgemoor, co. Somerset, to which Sir Cornelius Vermuyden pretends a title by patent of the late King, granted him for 12,000*l.* alleged to be paid into the Exchequer, although only 6,000*l.* was paid. The petitioner was referred to the Commissioners of the Treasury, and we attended them at great charge and loss of time, and can prove that the patent was obtained on a fraudulent contract with the late Lord Treasurer Weston, and managed to the late King's prejudice by Sir Rob. Heath, then Attorney-General, to whom Vermuyden agreed to pay $\frac{1}{4}$ value. The said Commissioners had no power to remand the evidences concerning the estate, and some being taken off the file in the Exchequer, and others embezzled out of the Tower, Sir Cornelius took advantage and preferred another petition, which is referred to Council, but we cannot obtain a copy. That you may not be deceived in confirming a grant of such value, and that we may be preserved from ruin, having spent 7,000*l.* therein since 1618, we beg that we may have a full hearing before Council; that Sir Cornelius may show on oath what he has really paid; that a commission may be issued for restoration of the writings, and that we may have a copy of Vermuyden's petitions and reference. We also beg a full fifth part ascertained to us for our pains and charges so many years. With order thereon, 3 Dec. 1655, that this petition be considered with that of Vermuyden, already referred to Council. [1 sheet; also I. 92, No. 525.]

67. T. Ross to Sec. Nicholas, Cologne. I am glad Pile has written to you. My agent cannot find Clifford, and Hungerford is in the country, being sent for by his father when he arrived at London. I hope that, notwithstanding the match, he is not to be corrupted; but if he should be, he can injure none but myself. My name is put for Tatton in your cypher, and Mrs. Hooker for Mason, a worthy person of whose safety I am glad to hear.

A ship from Jamaica reports that since Col. Humphreys arrived there with relief, the seamen are pretty healthful, but the landmen extremely sickly. Fortescue, the Commander-in-Chief, is dead, and almost all the officers extremely sick; yet, that the forces might not be idle, they landed some men on the continent, and fell on a small town of the Spaniards which they spoiled and burned. I hear from England that the war with Spain will be vigorously prosecuted, and the preparations are very strong.

The general persecution has made him leave his country. He bids me tell you that in our last business in Norfolk, the principal persons were only instructed by public rumour, nor would they have trusted the person employed to them, had he moved them (though Sir Miles Hobart sent word by me that all was ready), but Lord Lambert and General Rob. Blake, Lords Warden of the Cinque Ports, to the mayor, jurates, and common council of Sandwich. It has been represented to Council that the multitude of freemen of the vulgar sort in your town are so increased that, in election of public officers, they, without due regard to the business, sway all matters wherein they concern themselves, and by their wilful carriage, hinder the good government of the town, and create riots at election time. To prevent this, in a place of so much concern, Council has referred the settlement of the town to us. We decree therefore that the number of the common council, now exceeding 24, be allowed to return to 24, by electing no new members, and when it falls short of that number, that you elect from the discreetest free Commons as hitherto; and that the mayor, and jurates, and common councillors repair to the common assembly, as well in Clement's Church as in your Common Hall, where all elections, decrees, orders, and business shall be done by most voices only of you so assembled, wherein no common freeman shall have power to intermeddle, save only to hear and see, and in convenient time to make private motions of complaints of what concerns them in particular. You are to make known this letter at your next public meeting, and to require in our name that it be obeyed, at the peril of those who refuse. [I. 76, pp. 496, 497.]

As such transfers are always held good among merchants, and cannot well be denied for the upholding of trade, and as the assignment was made 14 Feb. 1654-5, long before the differences with Spain, I beg the benefit of the assignment, and of Goldsmith's right to the goods. 58. Order—on report from the Admiralty Judges, praying a declaration what kind of security, on issuing letters of reprisal, shall be construed as sufficient to indemnify them against any dubious interpretation of the 14th Article of the late peace between England and France—that the security shall be sufficient when the persons bound can answer the sums for which the securities are bound. Annexing,

87. Report alluded to. The article of the Treaty says that if the Admiralty Judges receive insufficient security of the commanders of ships, they are personally to answer for wrongs done.

In the warrants for issuing letters of reprisal to the sons and executors of Sir Peter Richaut, and to Nath. Hawes and others against the Spaniard, it is provided that those who sue for them shall name sureties, to be allowed by the Admiralty Commissioners. On 8 Jan. 1665-6 the order of his Highness and Council is, that the Admiralty Judges issue letters of reprisal against Spain on such security as they find sufficient.

Now as it is very difficult to know the sufficiency of any security, on account of concealed debts, frauds, sudden losses, &c., and as in case of insufficient security the Admiralty Judges are so dangerously liable to the damages, they beg to know what is to be considered sufficient or insufficient security. Doctors' Commons, 18 Jan. 1655-6. [1 page.]

Petition of Justinian Paget, keeper of the Upper Bench writs and records, to the Protector. The room in the Upper Treasury which formerly held the records of the Court of Wards, and now those of the Upper Bench, is remote, and so small that it is hard to find the daily increasing records. The rooms behind the Upper Court Bench, to which the Court of Wards records were removed, would be commodious for them. Begs to be allowed to make the exchange of the record rooms. With order, 24 Oct., granting the petition, unless the surveyor show cause to the contrary; certificate of John Embree, surveyor, that he knows no such cause, 27 Nov. 1655; and order, signed by Montague and Jones, to the said surveyor, to remove the records and provide conveniences for them in both places, 27 Nov. 1655. 9. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. On yours of Jan. 29, I sent warrants to the constables of the hundreds of Exminster, Tinnbridge, and Wenford, to warn all the seamen there to appear at Newton Abbot on 23 Jan., but although I expected 500, there being nearly 1,000 in those places, not 100 appeared, and many of them were old and unfit, so I could only impress 28, and then sent out special warrants for apprehending such as refused to appear. I then went to Totness, where the hundreds of Haytor and Coleridge were appointed to be, but so few came that I could only impress 50 there, and 30 at Kingsbridge, from Stanborow hundred, 16 more being brought in by special warrant. To-day I impressed 44 at Plymton, from Ermington and Plymton hundreds, and to-morrow I have appointed those of the hundred of Roborow to appear at Plymouth, and will send the issue of the day's work.

Hearing when at Newton Abbot and Totness that several men were gone to Plymouth, to enter the frigates that were to ply near the channel, I sent directions to the captains to enter all that offered themselves, and take up all they met. I sent a boat by night to impress those that hid themselves, or had entered other ships, and thus obtained 35 more. Further details. [$2\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

10. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Robt. Blackborne. I have sent the Commissioners an account of my proceedings in impressing men, and send you copies of my warrants to the constables of the several hundreds, as also of some special warrants, that you may see I have not stretched the power given me. I directed the men obtained eastward and near Dartmouth to be taken to Capt. Pley, with whom I have left tickets to be filled up by him. I thought of riding over to Barnstaple and those parts, to get what men I can, but as business will only allow me to be absent a few days, move the Commissioners to send a press warrant to Lionel Beacher at Bideford, and another to Jno. Tooker at Barnstaple; so that when there, I may order the men taken by special warrant to be brought before them, to receive impress and conduct money, and let a frigate be ordered there to receive them, or my endeavours may prove fruitless, by ships bound to the Isle of May and Newfoundland taking them.

The frigates taken by the Nightingale and Fagon are newly built, and if fitted, would be serviceable in the fleet, or in attending on larger frigates on the coast of Galicia, where the Spaniard has a good advantage by fishing. The other Brest man-of-war is fit to receive a captain; if you employ Capt. Taylor, I desire a press warrant for him, so that if the constables are remiss in their duty, in those parishes where there are many seamen, I may send him to quicken them and give assistance.

I hear the Brest pirates have free recourse to that place; speak to Mr. Secretary about it, and ask whether some of our frigates may not go into that harbour to destroy them, or into any other port in France. Swart and two others have lately taken 3 vessels off Plymouth, Bristol, and Barnstaple. General Desborow is expected to-morrow night, and to proceed to Exeter on Monday. [3 pages.]

11. Thos. Johnson and Alex. Blowers, bailiffs, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Your complaint is not true. When Capt. Ames's officers came to me, Johnson, I went with them, and charged the constables, and never called my partner for fear of the seamen suspecting us; the disturbance arose by the captain's men carrying themselves in such a hostile manner, standing in divers parts of the town, and railing against the bailiffs and townsmen. One of them striking a seaman with his sword, he struck him, and another took away his sword, but the affair happening a mile out of town, beyond our jurisdiction, we could not secure the offenders; they say that they were forced to withdraw without their impressed men, but they took away five named. 12. Capt. Robt. Mackey, to the Admiralty Commissioners. I must report the affection of the bailiffs and constables of Southwold. I came there privately at 7 p.m., with only one other, and being informed that there were 100 able seamen to be spared, I applied to George Warren, one of the bailiffs, whom I found in an ale house with several seamen; he promised his assistance in impressing them, but stayed away 2 hours, and spent another in fetching his partner, so that before the constables could or would assist me, 40 young and able seamen were seen going over the bridge, 12 up the river in a boat, and divers others in several other boats, so that my labour and diligence for 2 days resulted in getting only one man.

On the 25th I applied to Capt. Brewster, then sitting at Blithborough with his fellow justices, who assisted with his troop of horse, and having surrounded the town, repaired to bailiff Warren; he sent to the constables to assist, but they deferred so long that all the seamen hid themselves, although when they came to town, 60 were in sight. One of the constables, in contempt and derision, arrested one of the sentinels, and threatened to knock him down if he resisted. I have procured 80 men and put them on board the Pembroke, and as there are some more northward, I will send out once more, although they are hard to come at. [1 page.]

of the business between the army and the fleet, concerns only the foot soldiers, the old horse amounting to $\frac{1}{5}$ of the foot that remain, but they will be of little use to it after payment of expenses. The discovery of the goods brought over by Halsey was by the villainy of his servant, who is now in Dover, to overlook Cromwell's business. Armorer's man, who is now in the Tower, is suspected to be little better. Do not trust them in future. Ask Kemp to send me a light riding hat. Your letters are ready and shall be sent when our fleet is gone, for there is not a seaman to be found but is sent thither. Do not tell this to the master who brings my goods, lest it cause delay. I hope you have seen Sir K. Digby, Cromwell's confidant.

After Easter the terms are to be kept in the particular counties. The field officers of England, Scotland, and Ireland are to meet at Whitehall 16 March. I have written twice to Jack Trethewy, but will not write again till I have acknowledgments, for I distrust Read's discretion, if not his honesty. 14. Sec. Nicholas to Jos. Jane. Let the money which Mr. Bridgman is to receive for me remain in his hands a week, when I can better direct its disposal, for by that time it is possible I may be able to judge which day we may remove from hence and whither, for we are not out of hope now that the King of Spain is resolved to prosecute the war against Cromwell, but that he may find it his interest to embrace his Majesty's just quarrel; therefore let Bridgman know that you will write when you have heard from your friend, and tell me what he says about it, and what the parcel is that is come to Rotterdam for me. Still enquire after a trusty servant for me. Sir Ed. Brett or Mr. Beaumont may help you; I do not believe that Mr. O'Neale will leave Holland till the Lady Stanhope goes for France, whatever he says to you, for he finds great ease in remaining here at a good table, and no cost to him. You will find he is like his name, subtle.

The King of Spain is resolved to arm all he can against Cromwell, and has ordered letters of marque against the English, but whatever may be said, I assure you nothing has been wanting in the King's applications to the King of Spain, and 413,* did with much prudence what was commanded him, and all that was requisite. Nothing will prove so prejudicial both to the King and the King of Spain, as the delay used by the latter in making a firm coalition with our master, for till that is done and declared to be very cordial, the King's friends will not appear for his Majesty; but if the King of Spain declares for his cause, it might prove a fatal conjuncture for the villains in England; for the fleet, seeing ports open which might serve them in their loyalty, would (at least some of them) strive to return to their obedience, being tired with the insupportable servitude of the present usurpers.

I hear Cromwell has promised the King of Sweden 30 good ships towards reducing Dantzic, and therefore the Swedes would not permit that town to be comprehended in the late treaty with Brandenburg. I hear that Cromwell, being solicited both by Nieuport and the Venetian ambassador to make peace with Spain, said he would never do it unless he might have free trade in the West Indies, and some ports there to secure that commerce, which the King of Spain will rather hazard his crown than yield to. 18. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I wrote you of the arrival of the Pembroke to take in the impressed men, and put 90 on board, and would have stayed her, but she wanted provisions; hearing, however, that there were two of the enemies' frigates, of 6 or 8 guns each, at anchor off Parkfield, I sent her and Capt. Thompson to endeavour to take them, but they have not yet returned. I am getting men daily, and have 10 more to put on board. Southwold was beset by Col. Brewster's troop, but the officers of the town were so base that they could not get a man; as fast as our people searched one part of the town, they got into the other, although they searched with candles. I am sending warrants to the constables in the hundreds to apprehend the seamen who were pressed, and have run away with the State's money, as also to impress others, but the seamen are so afraid of being sent to the West Indies that they say they would as soon be hanged. I never saw men so hard to be obtained in my life.

Note of a petition referred to the Committee for Petitions, of Capt. Rob. Thorpe of Hull, and the owners of the Alexander of Hull, laden at Amsterdam, Jan. 1653-4, with beans, wheat, &c., for St. Sebastian's, but seized in February by 2 Dunkirk frigates belonging to the Baron of Ealsby, in Flanders, carried to Dunkirk and there sold, a pass from the late King of Spain notwithstanding, for which the petitioners have received no satisfaction, and begging letters of reprisal against the Spaniards;—that the said letters be granted them for the damage, to be certified by the Admiralty Judges according to proofs to be brought. Carteret and others, Mrs. Bisson should have 300*l.* from delinquents' fines, and 200*l.* from her own discoveries.* [1 page.]

10. Order—on a letter from Lord Broghill of Jan. 29 — that the Irish Committee consider it and the annexed papers, and report.

11. The petition of Margaret Basset, widow, concerning a debt of 36*l.* 11*s.* recommended to the Trustees for sale of the late King's goods, to be dealt with in the usual way.

Woolaston's petition, that it appears by a certificate from an auditor of the imprest that 472*l.* is due to him as master gunner, for services till 31 December 1652, and not paid—to advise a warrant to the Treasury Commissioners to pay him.

21. Order—on Gen. Montague's report that there are 16 prisoners taken in a Dunkirk sloop and brought to Ipswich—that Montague, Lambert, the Lord Deputy, Strickland, and Jones consider how they and all other prisoners may be disposed of, and report ; Mr. Secretary to assist them therein.

25. Order that,—whereas the late Committee for Plundered Ministers, on 15 July 1646, ordered 20*l.* increase to John Legatt, minister of Burnham, Suffolk, because there was no parsonage house there, and the grant was confirmed by the Committee for the Universities, 5 March 1651,—the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers pay him the said augmentation with arrears. Approved 12 Feb. Annexing,

23. *Order of the Committee for Plundered Ministers alluded to, for payment of the 20*l.* out of the rectory of Windham and 5 others, co. Norfolk. 15 July 1646. [Copy, $\frac{3}{4}$ page.]*

24. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Rob. Blackborne. I have used all diligence in sending away the impressed men, and also those taken from other ships, to whom I ordered their captains to give tickets, for many wanted money to procure clothes. As they lose from 2*s.* to 3*s.* in the pound in cashing them, I wish I could be supplied with money to pay them. An officer should be appointed to test the accuracy and genuineness of the tickets, as some false ones have been issued by Capt. Jefferies and his purser. I will write the Navy Commissioners not to sign any more from the Nantwich until further notice, or to have the matter settled by the Generals when at sea. There are great complaints of the badness of the powder, and several captains want theirs changed. As the Nantwich and Assurance want shot and match, which I cannot supply but at dear rates, I have written Mr. Willoughby to send some ; pray move the Commissioners to do the same.

1. Approval by the Protector of 38 orders, 8 Jan.—5 Feb.

2. To advise a warrant to the Lord Deputy to depute Maj. Wm. Packer to execute in cos. Herts and Oxford all his powers of Maj.-General and Commander-in-Chief, and Col. Geo. Fleetwood and the said Maj. Packer jointly in co. Bucks.

3. Order on the list signed by Sir John Barkstead, Lieutenant of the Tower, and Maj. Miller, of public arms, ammunition, and stores remaining in several reduced garrisons, in the hands of officers and others,—which list was sent in according to orders of 31 July and 7 and 29 Aug. 1655, ordering them and the rest of the Committee of officers for reducements to receive all applications concerning arms, &c., not in use;—that a copy of the list be returned to the ordnance officers at the Tower, to receive the particulars into their charge; and Barkstead and Miller, with the said officers, see all such brought in to the Ordnance Office, and report to the Navy Commissioners, who are to give orders thereupon.

4. To advise his Highness that Thursday, Feb. 28, be set apart for a day of prayer and humiliation for seeking of God, in reference to the present affairs of this nation. Approved 12 Feb.

5. Wolsley, Mulgrave, Jones, Rous, Lisle, the Lord Deputy, and Lambert, to consider what is to be done on 2 papers from the Quakers, and whether any recommendation should be made thereon to the Majors-General.

6. The petition of Col. Edm. Harvey, prisoner in the Tower, read.

7. Order that the report from the Committee of Council on the petition of Griffin Howard, and Mary his wife, be agreed to, and referred back to the Committee, to fill up the blanks, and report.

Monk, by his letter of 24 Jan. last, desires 135 barrels to be issued for service in Scotland, and 260 barrels of musket shot, 20 tons of match, and 500 spades, to be sent from hence by the first ship, to supply the garrisons for the whole year ;—they think that what is requested may be supplied from Leith, and beg directions accordingly. 28. Navy Commissioners to the Admiralty Commissioners. We send you a letter from Chris. Coles. This case is one of very many others who have given credit to the State, almost to their utter undoing ; pray let some speedy course be taken for satisfying such long standing accounts, otherwise our sitting here and deluding people with fair promises unaccompanied with any performance will act prejudicially. 28. I. Chris. Coles to the Navy Commissioners. *I cannot deliver any more timber or contract for a supply of trenails, unless I receive 600l. on account of 1,600l. already due for timber sent to Portsmouth, Plymouth, Deptford, and Chatham 12 months since, when Mr. Shish promised me a bill of imprest for 500l. The Commissioners also promised me a bill of imprest for 600l., but I only had one for 400l.; the remaining 200l. was promised at Portsmouth, but I never received it, and the bill for 400l. has hitherto done me no more good than an old almanac, I never having received a penny upon it. The water for your face, being prepared from the capsules of the teazle, cannot be had before May, and must be prepared in the sun. 31. Th. Ross to [Sec. Nicholas.] Though I find you are unwilling to present the grand affair to the King, I could not but yield to Rich. Hopton's importunity; the business being of such weight to your service, I have turned every stone to press him to undertake it, but he says he has no power from those that instructed him to set the wheel going but on the King's approbation only; but after receipt of some letters from England, he will return thither, and use your arguments and all his interest to get it undertaken as you desire. We shall soon know what we may trust to. All must approve what you urge of confidence and honour, but a person who has all along been the King's enemy must be assured that the past will be forgiven, and the business effected by him esteemed loyalty; and as he is confident that his way is infallible, he insists on the approval of the King, as the sole person that can absolve his former errors, and have him esteemed honourable. If the undertaker is pertinacious for the King's approbation, let him have it obliquely, if not directly.

I cannot tell you how Seymour had that intimation about Col. Talbot from my companion in the storm, but it is not difficult there to send by their keepers one to another, and there are many honest fellows among those keepers. You will find by the enclosed from Pile, that the fleet is in the Downs, and you will see how our friends gape for opportunities to commence our suit. Hungerford went from London to near Bath, to his parents, who sent for him. I believe he will perform his promise, notwithstanding the nuptials of his brother, who is the heir to the estate. This younger brother detests the action of the other, and undertook what I told you in hopes one day to be made elder brother. Ayscue's son-in-law is Jo. Bois. I wish that old traitor Skippon were gone to the place of traitors, so we were rid of him. I hope soon to hear you are invited to Flanders. An envoy from Cromwell has been here 2 months. I think Pickering's coming as ambassador is only a rumour.

P.S.—I am too busy to write to Mr. Heath by this post. [2½ pages. The italics are cyphers, undecyphered.] Annexing,

31. I. [Dick Pile to Ross.] *The promised commodities will be most welcome. Cromwell's pet with Holland was that Holland had promised him a lease of a house, and then granted a very long one to the King of Spain. The army and the fleet are now agreed, the army giving 1,500 men, the $\frac{1}{5}$ of its number. Blake goes into the country this week. Pray send the commodities, for now our fleet, 46 stout ships, are fallen into the Downs and only wait fire ships and provisions, so they will come with more security. 28 Jan. 1655-6. [1 page. Rob. Starr. Having been employed in Sally for redemption of English captives, proposes a way to recover liberty for the present captives, and to prevent that evil for the future. Referred to the Admiralty Commissioners, to report (b). [No. 490.]

Capt. John Thompson, for letters of reprisal against the Spaniards, for taking a ship and goods from him, value 1,500*l.*; with note of reference, 7 Nov. 1655, to the Admiralty Commissioners, and of order on their report for letters against the Spaniards for 3,000*l.* damages. [No. 492.]

Feb. 8.

Note of a petition referred to the Committee for Petitions, of the heir and administrator of Hum. Ashe and Wm. Emerson. There were 2,000 acres of land in Wigenhall, Magdalen, and Peters, wanting an outfall, the adventurers [for the fens] having stopped the old drain, and Ashe and Emerson contracted for an engine, and spent 120*l.* in timber, &c., for it; Ashe dying, some landholders dissent, and there is no remedy at law; beg an order to the Commissioners of Sewers to view the level, and order its draining. Order referring the case to law. [I. 92, No. 333; I. 76, p. 527.]

32. Petition of Rich. Webb and partners, merchants of London, to the Protector and Council, for letters of marque against the subjects of the King of Spain, for 4,900*l.* damages sustained by the taking their goods on shore and shipping, &c., at sea, by Spaniards authorised by his Majesty; have made frequent applications for redress without success. 33. Petition of Mich. Measy, prosecutor, to the Committee of Council on the business of the merchants of Bristol. Wm. Lewis of Bristol got a patent 12 James to export yearly for 40 years 1,000 dickers of tanned calf-skins, and the merchants bought his license for 800 skins at 12*d.* a dozen. Hugh Lewis, on whom the license devolved by Wm. Lewis' death, in his office as searcher at Bristol, seized 68 dickers of tanned hides exported without leave, by which the price of leather was so raised in Bristol that the shoemakers used horsehides. He was in London prosecuting them when the late King's forces took Bristol; the merchants complained of him as a delinquent to the King, and he was plundered by Lord Hopton's soldiers, and the merchants got Hopton's leave to import powder, arms, and ammunition, instead of exporting calf skins. When the city was reduced by Parliament, they complained of Lewis as a delinquent to Parliament, and got his searcher's office sequestered, and after 1647 or 1648, refused to pay him for his licence. Then he died in misery, leaving not a penny to bury him.

I lent Parliament 500*l.*, but was never able, through losses in my estates, to double the money in purchases, and have therefore received nothing. Having prosecuted the merchants at great expense for shipping hides, I beg that the law may have its course. [1 page.]

Feb. 8.

34. Order thereon in Council, with recapitulation of former proceedings, [see 1 Jan. 1655], that Measy and his lawyers, and the clerks of Exchequer be required not to proceed further on the informations about the export of calf skins. [1½ pages. Also I. 76, p. 328.]

35. Petition of John Wheatley to the Protector, for the office of registrar to the Trustees for sale of the late King's lands, and fee farm rents. Henry Colbron, the registrar appointed by the several Acts is dead, and petitioner has always acted as his deputy. Little profit is to be expected from the place, because the premises saleable are for the most part sold, but the registrar has to complete contracts, and has the custody of the records. [1 page. That Jones, Sydenham, the Lord Deputy, Wolsley, Mulgrave, Montague, and Lisle consider the last 2 particulars concerning easing the sheriffs in passing their accounts, and concerning old debts, concealed rents, &c., put them into a practicable way, and report.

2. Order—on Jessop's report that, according to their order of Jan. 29, he spoke with Thos. 38. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I wrote you of the sending Capt. Tompson and the Pembroke to try and take two of the enemies' frigates riding within 7 miles of the town; the former having gone to sea after them, and the latter being sent to Holland by the General, I have no ship to put the pressed men into, and am therefore compelled to keep them in prison; 3 ships are also waiting for a convoy.

I hear from Lowestoft that there are 5 men-of-war close by the shore, which came within musket shot of the fort, but they had no ammunition for the guns there. The people are afraid they will come on shore and plunder the town; a company should be sent to be divided between there and Southwold, as also some powder and shot, which may save many ships, for I fear they will come into the roads and take some. Sir Edw. Hyde will have notice of it, and that may render him the more slow in procuring the payment of a large sum which, by the King's command, signified me by Hyde above 2 years since, I disbursed for his Majesty's service. I was promised by Hyde repayment in 6 months, but I cannot to this day get it, so very kind and real is Hyde to me to whom he professes so very great friendship, and if he use all his other friends as he doth me, he may chance find them not so very patient as I have been, who can judge of friendship better than some that talk more of it.

The compliment and ceremony used by the French at the reception of the Princess Royal would have saddened me, had I seen it, coming from those who have confederated with her father's murderers, and made a league for the exclusion of her family, and been so great contributors to the miseries of the 3 kingdoms, and the ruin of the royal family ; but some think nothing ill done that the French do, though there is scarce a war in Christendom in which they have not had a hand, and been most active in the bloody wars against Christians.

The rendezvous for Cromwell's first fleet was to be at Portsmouth on the $\frac{7}{17}$ of this month ; if those shallops and the land men are to go, the rebels' design may be nearer than the Spaniard imagines.

It was a great mistake if, in the King's letter to the Princess Dowager, he did not call her "ma cousine." It was done between Hyde and Mr. Bennet, who is here his most intimate counsellor, and some say destined to be secretary, which, whenever it be, he will be such a thorn in Hyde's flesh as will trouble him more than the gout ; but I pray keep this to yourself. I am, I assure you, not only old but very weary, and would not continue what I do but that I hold it my duty, and fear lest, being called to Court as I have been without seeking, and even against my wishes and prayers, God should be offended if I should have refused to have served, or should give over while any use is made of my poor service, though I am used with neglect enough. Excuse this melancholy digression to you, my good friend.

I should be glad if Rinswood were good friends with Beveninck, who prefers the good of his country to his private ends or faction. Tell me what resolutions are taken at the assembly of the States about England, France, or Sweden. Has any servant of Nic. Armorer's lately gone for England, and if so, who, when, by whom sent, and on what business ? I suppose Mr. O'Neale can tell if any such be sent. There is one such, called Bricton, that has discovered many of those that were engaged in the last device in England.

Our oracle Watson (?) writes that letters of marque are not yet issued from the Admiralty in Flanders, nor is any declaration published against Cromwell and his fellow rebels, though orders came a fortnight since from Madrid for arming against the English. Some impediment makes the ministers in Flanders slow to withstand Cromwell's designs, to the great prejudice of the King of Spain's affairs. The English goods seized in Flanders are not yet exposed to sale, but the Spaniard cannot long remain in this neutral posture ; he must stand to his arms when the English fleet shall be at sea.

In The Portsmouth, obedience to your commands, I went to Guernsey, and did my Spithead. utmost to impress seamen, but received much opposition from the inhabitants; and the bailiffs having called a court, it was resolved not to permit any press to be made in the island, or to take any notice of any order which interfered with their privileges, and some took arms and rescued the men I had impressed. On this I informed the Commander-in-Chief thereof, who advised me to desist, or much mischief would be done. On this I went to Jersey, where I found the Governor very willing to assist me, but the inhabitants were not, and forced my men to take to a house for security; had not the Governor assisted them with a party of horse, who had to fire upon the people, killing one and wounding several others, they would have been destroyed. I only succeeded in pressing 50 men in both islands. [$1\frac{1}{4}$ pages.]

10. A report from the Admiralty Commissioners, concerning an embargo on all shipping of the northern ports, read, and referred to Lambert, Wolsley, Montague, and Mulgrave, to report.

11. A report from the Admiralty Commissioners, desiring a supply of powder and shot for Lowestoft, and a foot company, to secure it and other parts from the incursion of pirates who infest that coast, and an extract from a letter annexed, referred to Lord Lambert, to give such orders as he judges best. Annexing,

46. Report alluded to 12 Feb. 1655-6. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

46. 1. Extract from a letter of Major Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I hear from Lowestoft that there are 5 men-of-war close by the shore, and the people have neither powder nor shot, and are afraid the town may be plundered. There should be a company there, and $\frac{1}{2}$ an one at Southwold. If you order powder and shot from Yarmouth to Lowestoft, it may save many a ship which runs there for refuge. I will put them into an honest man's hands till a company comes down. This town [Yarmouth] wants the 6 guns that were drawn into town run down again, lest the pirates come into our roads and take away our ships. 8 Feb. 1655-6. [1 page.]

The remaining 4,000*l.* to be laid out for lands in Ireland within 2 years, and thus distributed.

David Leslie in Scotland, that is, 200*l.* each to her sons George and Frederick, of which she was to have 100*l.* for life as jointure, and 100*l.* to John her son by Alford, her first husband; also 300*l.* each to her daughters Sydney, Elizabeth, and Mary, on their coming of age.*

*That the lands not being set out, the petitioners take the benefit of the Ordinance for answering donatives out of Scotch fines at 10 years' purchase, which will be 5,000*l.*, of which 1,000*l.* to be to Griffin Howard who maintains the children; 1,600*l.* each to George and Fred. Imprimis. You are to communicate to the Deputy-Comptroller for Prize Goods in your port all letters, orders, or other writings which you receive, with all your proceedings concerning your trust as Commissioners for Prizes, and to let him have the sight and perusal of all books of accounts, or other papers kept by you in your management of the said trust.

You are to take your said deputy-comptroller's advice and consent in all bargains and agreements made with any person in behalf of the Commonwealth, and relating to this service.

On the bringing in of any prize into your port, you are to acquaint the deputy-comptroller, who is to affix his seal, together with yours, upon the hatches, which are not to be broken open without both your knowledge and consent; when you have to employ waiters on board any ship, or any persons on shore, you are to appoint one, and the deputy-comptroller another. But if only one be required, you, with the deputy-comptroller, are to approve of the person and his allowance.

On the unloading of any ship, you are to order all weighable goods to be weighed, all measureable goods measured, and all liquid goods that have suffered leakage to be filled up, so that the person into whose custody they are committed may have a certain charge, and he is to deliver to the deputy-comptroller an exact inventory of the same, which the deputy-comptroller is to enter, for preventing embezzlements. When any of these goods are sold and to be delivered forth by the warehouse keeper, &c., your order, with the deputy-comptroller's entry thereupon, shall be his sufficient warrant.

You are to acquaint the deputy-comptroller when any prize ship or goods be put to sale, of the place and time, that he may assist you in the well managing thereof, so that no wrong may be offered to the Commonwealth, if by any of your means it may be prevented.

You are to order that when any ship or goods are appraised, the appraisers write two perfect inventories of whatsoever they appraise.

You are to acquaint the deputy-comptroller of all such orders as you receive for entry of prize goods in the Custom House, that he may sign the same before entry be made thereof.

No allowance to be made by you on account of any defective goods exposed to sale, without the consent of the deputy-comptroller.

All the sail and small rigging, or other things subject to embezzlement belonging to any prize vessel, to be put into the hold, or into the hands of some warehouse keeper for preservation.

duteous as have rendered him a great darling of Hyde's, and consequently a great man in your good doctor's (?) opinion.

We believe Cromwell's first fleet will be at sea next week. I hear from France that there is no more talk of the Duke of York or any other Englishman being urged to leave that kingdom, nor of the Queen leaving Paris.

The news of the Catholic Swiss beating the Protestants is confirmed, and few of our party pity them, for those were the zealous instigators of the Dutch to make peace with Cromwell, and France takes part with those godly Protestants against the others which are Catholics.

Those of Ostend have lately set on an English convoy, going from Zealand to Dover, and taken from it a galliot laden with Spanish wools. I hear the Dutch say the English friendship is useless, since Cromwell will not annul the Act for regulating Trade. We hear from England that the Dutch ambassador is selling his coach horses and the rest of his wine. Cromwell is sending an ambassador to Sweden; Whitelock is named, and though it is said he declines, he will not be excused.

There is a great difference in Ireland between young Cromwell and the Commissioners there, and Fleetwood will suddenly return to pacify it. Some of Cromwell's creatures lately told the citizens of London that they are not feared, because they have trade to fill their heads, but the nobility and gentry who are idle.

We hear from Paris that the French are preparing strong fleets both for the British and Mediterranean seas, to join Cromwell's fleets for designs in Flanders and Italy.

We expect by the next post an invitation from Flanders for the King's going thither, and Hyde is so full of belief of it as he is earnest with me that I should prepare to go with him on Monday next from here, but till I see that the King is invited I shall not be so hasty; if the King shall command me to [go] when the first company doth, I shall leave my wife and family here till I see where the King will settle, and Ned, who is lame with the gout, shall stay with his mother. If the King when in Flanders makes a conjunction with Spain and settles in those parts, consider whether you had not best remove thither. When we see how affairs stand, there may be some use for your service; advise of this with the good doctor (?) who is with you, who is great with Hyde, and I tell you as my friend do not to the doctor (?) seem to rely on any friend at Court but on Hyde, for that is the only sure way for you to get employment, when there shall be any worthy of you, but keep this to yourself. by them, 14 Nov. last, to Col. Tobias Bridges that—as Bridges went down thither, and the mayor and aldermen, &c., voluntarily submitted their differences to him to determine all matters concerning charitable gifts to the poor, and engaged to abide by his order, which they signed,—the award be ratified, viz. :—

That there be charged on the butchers' shambles 10*l.* a year for the poor, in lieu of 120*l.* poor money employed in its erection, and 2*l.* a year in lieu of 40*l.* raised by the sale of woods belonging to the poor, which sums the mayor, aldermen, and burgesses are to pay to the overseers of the poor, out of the profits of the shambles.

That the mayor and bailiffs pay yearly to the overseers of the poor the 20*l.* market toll.

Pres. Lawrence to Whalley, Major-General of co. Lincoln, &c. His Highness and Council having received complaints against John Hobson, late in the commission of peace for the county, referred the case to Fras. Clinton, Hum. Walcot, and Rob. Yerburch [see 26 Oct. 1655], and they certify that Hobson has taken several fines that should go to the poor, bound several persons to keep the peace, and released them before the sessions, taking money from them,—as he said, as fees for the clerks of the peace,—and taking 2s. 4d. from men that came to be married, though they had paid 2s. to the registrar. This is a dishonour to Government, and a wrong to the people and to justice, and deserves exemplary punishment. We wish the cause to be effectually prosecuted next assizes, and have written to the said gentlemen to assist you. [I. 76, p. 556.] Annexing,

89. T. Ross to Sec. Nicholas, Cologne. The prologue of Dick Pile's letter, enclosed in yours of Feb. 22, I do not understand, unless it be a disguise to the metaphor of keeping a shop in the latter part. I think by his uncle Sturbridge he means Bristol, where his friends will furnish him with $\frac{2}{3}$ of those 1,000 foot and 500 horse which were promised at Gloucester, besides charges, &c. By the journeymen Howes and Jones are meant none but those in the cypher.*

The debtor named Rascarick is my private matter ; I wanted money from him and cannot get it. I have asked Pile to meet me at Dieppe or Calais, to unriddle some of his obscure letters, for there is more in it than we understand. I have, at his request, procured him access to some persons of zeal and interest, who have thanked me for the acquaintance, and said they would speedily improve it to your advantage, but I cannot divine how, except by removing Cromwell, to which one of them had specially devoted himself. As they cannot trust their minds to paper I will sell my clothes to gain 20 pistoles to meet him. I send you a letter (missing) headed Cologne, and writ from thence by Blake, Seymour's chamber fellow ; it is very enigmatical and ridiculous in style, but coming from a person so near his master, it has gone from hand to hand in England, and has much discouraged the King's friends. Such writers should be admonished, for though his friends are not vainly to be elevated with great expectations of his business, neither are they to be discouraged from abroad, having too many difficulties at home. I had the copy of the articles from Mr. Samburne, who got it from a person of honour, on oath not to give a copy ; but I persuaded him to get them by heart and let me have the original. I should like to know whether they differ materially from yours.

I am much comforted in the hopes you give of the King's remove to Antwerp. There is no great fear of the King of Spain's complying with Cromwell, who gains on him. I believe Pile writes that 4,000 single women, most of whom were then in the Tower, are to be sent to Jamaica to propagate there, so I think they have got more than we hear of the Indies ; it is time for Spain to look about her. The admirals are Desborow, Blake, and Montague.

I hear that Lieut. Gen. Ludlow is at liberty in London, but cannot obtain leave to speak with the Protector. The discontents increase there daily, and as the fleet increases, the army diminishes. The $\frac{1}{3}$ only of it is of the old army, the rest new raised.

P.S.—Pile's mistress in the note means the King's affairs. [2 pages. The Italics are cyphers, undecyphered.] men, but this will not be enough, so low was its condition. You were too severe on Cromwell, which will soon appear by offering the King of Spain a treaty, if he knows it will be accepted; but if it be refused, Cromwell will omit nothing to ruin him, for now he admits Mr. Mallard's son by his first wife to visit his daughter by way of marriage, and thus links that whole family to him, which will assist him much.

Vice-Adm. Lawson is cashiered for refusing to go to sea till he knows the design. This caused some disturbance in the fleet, but it was soon remedied by Bodilar [Badiley's] appearing in his stead, and by the generals going abroad. If Mr. Kemp comes not soon with the Duke of York's antidote he will lose his labour, for my friend will hear of no other relief. Foot soldiers are quick at this time, so hasten sending what you intend. Feb. 22. 91. Petition of Hen. Zinzan alias Alexander, aged 92, to the Protector, for 180*l.* due on his account, and a pension to preserve him from starving during the short remainder of his days. Was equerry of the great horse stable to King James, with 100*l.* a year, and 36*l.* for 2 horses; also 10*l.* a year as brigardine in the Tower.

Is now removed from his dwelling in the Round House in the Mews, on which he has lately spent 24*l.* Of his arrears of 1,300*l.* has only received 150*l.*, which was by a Council order, and is in great want and misery. [1 page.]

Feb. 25. Levant Company to Captain Seaman. Our last gave you notice of our fears concerning the rebels' siege or surprisal of Aleppo, wherein, as we have received no better satisfaction but rather an increase of jealousy, we conceive you cannot proceed on your journey without great danger, so we order you to stay at Leghorn for a month, on such reasonable demurrage as shall be agreed between yourselves and the factors aboard your ship and the factors of Leghorn, to whom we are now writing to deal with you in that behalf. If any, to anticipate the market, hazard their goods thither beforehand, any avania or accident therein must be borne by them, not by us, who disclaim such rash proceedings. [Levant papers, Vol. IV., p. 260.]

Feb. 25. Levant Company to the factors at Leghorn. The news of disturbances at Aleppo, rendering it unsafe for Capt. Seaman to proceed on his journey to Scanderoon, have decided us to order him to stay till the circumstances be over, which may be a month. We shall allow him a reasonable demurrage, which we request you and the factors who are passengers to agree on, for a month, which agreement shall be complied with by a leviation on the goods in the ship, to be paid by those to whom they are consigned. [Levant papers, Vol. 4, p. 261.]

Feb. 25. Levant Company to passengers on board the Golden Fleece. We have intimated to Capt. Seaman, Chas. Longland, Hen. Mellish, Geo. Norleigh, and James Man and Company, our great fears of the rebellion at Aleppo, whither we are unwilling you should adventure till the disturbance is settled. Therefore we have ordered Seaman's continuance at Leghorn for a month, or till you receive encouragement to proceed. Meanwhile, with the assent of those of Leghorn before named, you are to agree with the Captain on a reasonable rate of demurrage to be levied on the ship's goods. If any, in hope of extraordinary markets adventure their estates thither before Capt. Seaman, and thereby fall into any hazard, they do it at their own risk, and we disclaim any such proceeding. 97. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I am much importuned to send a petition from some merchants of Hull for a convoy; they have been long without any trading, and this embargo will be much to their loss. The Dunkirkers and Ostenders ply close upon the coast, and take ships daily, and are very insulting. Some of them told our men to tell the Protector that, while he is fetching gold from the West Indies, they will fetch his coals from Newcastle. One of 20 guns now rides at Humber mouth. Pray send some men-of-war to curb their insolency and beat them off. [1 page.]

Pres. Lawrence to Maj.-Gen. Hezekiah Haynes, Edw. Ward, high sheriff of co. Norfolk, Cols. Brampton Gurdon, Robt. Jermy, and Robt. Wood, Maj. Ralph Wormer, and Hen. King.

His Highness and Council having received a petition from the worsted weavers of Norwich and Norfolk, showing how profitable their trade has always been accounted to this nation; that when the artificers of their trade grew numerous, and many abuses crept in, whereby their goods were loathed and rejected both at home and abroad, to redress this evil an Act was passed in 1650 for 3 years, and, having a good effect, was revived in 1653, with alterations; but some persons, desiring to return to their former deceits, oppose the same, and occasion suits, causing obstructions to the petitioners, and encouragement to offenders. Council desires you to advise with the judges of assize at the next circuit for the petitioners' relief, and the preservation of the quality of their manufacture. [I. 76, p. 563-8.] taken from them, but the sale stopped, or they allowed to be purchasers. They have showed us an order from a Parliament Committee which grants them favour therein. We think it just to have the same continued, and as the fleet often resorts there, and is assisted by the petitioners, we send you their address and the order, that you may consider what should be done. [1 page.] Annering,

- 108. I. Petition of Rich. Estis, John Culmer, Step. Peirce, and Thos. Scarlet, pilots, and the seamen, seamen's widows, and other inhabitants of Deal, to the Generals now riding in the Downs. We have erected at our own cost houses on the beach waste ground, not worth 2s. an acre, that we might serve the navy and merchant ships, but our houses were surveyed in 1650, and returned as built on the waste of Court Ash Manor, Deal, late part of the Archbishop of Canterbury's possessions; they were contracted for to be sold, but by favour of the Committee of the then Parliament, the sale was obstructed.

We find they are now again on sale, to our utter ruin, and therefore beg you to interpose for us to his Highness and Council, that the sale may be respited till next Parliament, or we permitted to purchase the 11 acres of ground at the highest rate of any land sold thereabouts, or that the whole matter may be referred to Maj.-Gen. Kelsey, Lieutenant of Dover Castle. [1 page.]

- 108. II. Order in the Committee of Parliament for Obstructions, that stay be made of leasing or selling the said houses at Deal till report has been made thereon to Parliament, or further order given. 21 Feb. 1650-1. [Copy, ½ page.]

- 108. III. *Report thereon by Sir Wm. Roberts, Thos. Ayres, Edw. Cressett, and John Blackwell, on a reference from the Protector. The lands and buildings belonging to the late Archbishop of Canterbury, worth 364l. a year, are the chief security of debts due to lenders on the credit of Bishops' lands, amounting to 222,909l. 19s. 6d., besides what is unpaid of the first and second ½ for lands already sold, for which the Excise pays 8 per cent. interest. We therefore thought it our duty to sell them,—the Committee for Obstructions and the Parliament of which they were members being dissolved,—but the purchase is only in treaty, and nothing concluded. - 109. T. Ross to [Sec. Nicholas.] I am glad to find your firm hope of the King of Spain's shortly entertaining the King. I hope your opinion is better founded than that in England that Cromwell would come to a composition if he could, notwithstanding the bustle he makes. I write you not by guess, but what I receive from my friends, who will, I believe, be just to you and me. You say some think me not enough resolved in what I write, but I never undertook to be oracular or infallible, and have always been cautious in delivering anything positive, unless given by my friends; indeed I mostly send their letters. 110. [Dick Pile to T. Ross.] I cannot advise you as to your design for Portugal, because the Kings of Spain and Portugal have agreed to a suspension, if not a peace, and the articles of agreement between the King of Portugal and the Protector are sent back hither, with a positive denial of 3 articles.

1. Concerning our merchants' liberty for their religion.

2. Reception of our ships into his ports for refreshing. The third I forget.

Last week 2 merchants went in a frigate from the Protector to demand 5,000*l.* from the King of Portugal, being $\frac{1}{4}$ of what was agreed to be paid for damages done to our merchants; if it be refused, our fleet will be there to make him repent it within 14 days.

The fleet wants men, and money will not be had at any condition. Kemp's delay has distracted me; I had done with him long ago, had I not expected him here, but now it's impossible, and I must be patient.

Our terrible fleet is nearly ready to sail, and 40 ships are preparing, so you may believe your passage hither will be secured. Last week some rogues from Flanders boarded a frigate in Dover Road, cut cable, and stole her away.

We hear the King of Sweden has lost 6,000 men in battle, but keeps the field. If the King sends not to me soon, I am undone, and cannot quit this place for which I have importuned Mrs. Ross.

Col. Lockhart is preparing to go ambassador to France. Send the goods soon or the customs will be raised; the Protector has sent to the merchants to raise them 4*l.*; 30*s.* per cent. on exports, and 50*s.* on imports. [1 page. Italics in cypher, undecyphered.]

1. Petition of Dan. Thyssen, merchant of London, to the Protector. Being a subject of the States General, my ship, the Golden Falcon, was seized by English ships, part of her lading of wines and fruit was claimed by and restored to Flanders merchants by this Admiralty Court, but my claim is yet undecided. During the wars with Holland, I lived at Ostend, and became a burgher there, and never assisted the Hollander. I am a member of the Protestant church, and have transplanted myself, with my wife and children, to London, living in Philpot Lane, and intend to trade here. I beg protection, on obeying the laws and paying all customs, and exemption from seizure of ships and goods for once living in [March 3.] Levant Company to factors at Leghorn and on board the Golden Fleece. We hear in a letter from Rich. Lawrence at Constantinople, of Dec. 31, that several Turks there had received advice from Aleppo that the siege was raised and the rebels departed. Whereof, although we doubt not that your intelligence is more speedy than ours, and that at the first notice of security the ship will be speeded away, yet we send you this brief notice, that the ship may be delayed no longer than necessary. I have given her captain orders to treat with the masters whose companies do not come into the town to furnish 100, and then to suffer them to make their ships ready. They would all have sailed last week, notwithstanding the embargo, if the Fagon had not been in the road, for they understood, by the Lord President's letter to the Commissioners of Customs, that the New-foundland ships may go whether the fleet sail or no, and they think it hard that their men should be taken when the State gives them leave to depart. I do not understand the mystery of the embargo.

I have one of the Brest ships ready, and am proceeding with the other. I desire no more New England masts, having 4 of white pine, which I am loth to use. I will write the Ordnance officers for guns for the frigates. I beg you to allow Mr. Rowe an interview, should he seek one, on my behalf. There is now an order to stay the sailing of any vessel. Desborow to get him an augmentation of 30*l.* a year; if it could have been had, he would never have left. I send informations taken by Capt. Pley respecting the Spanish fleet, the originals of which have been sent to Gen. Desborow. I assume that those of Owen and Trankmore cannot be true, and that Ellis is a Cavalier. I recommend Rich. Penhallow, who has had a command in the Straits, and is a pretty artist, with a good landed estate, and Isaac White, as commanders for the two Bresters, but can say little on behalf of Finch. 4. [Sec. Nicholas] to Jos. Jane. The Archduke's orders to the Admiralty in Flanders for issuing commissions to take English ships were strangely perfunctory, but a few days later came an explanation that the prizes taken from the English should be judged according to the ancient ordinances of the Admiralty.

We hope soon to know what countenance will be given to ships of war having commissions from our King, whom we expect here this week, and then we shall know what we may expect from the King of Spain's ministers.

VOL. CXXIV.

March 4.

I am of your opinion as to the French endeavours to stay the Duke of York in France because of the many strangers in their service; but if the King shall be well and firmly united with the King of Spain, I am persuaded the duke will not remain with those ungrateful French (?) who, when they had served themselves of him so long, agreed to abandon him so unworthily at the instance of him who had murdered his father.

There may be an overture made to the States to join with Cromwell, France, and Sweden; but if embraced, it will be their ruin, for that is the design both of Cromwell and the Swede, who make religion the cloak of their ambition, and defame the Protestant profession, and make it as full of hypocrisy as that of the Pharisees or the Jesuits.

The governing party in Holland should not incur Cromwell's displeasure by revoking the Act of Seclusion, for he will look upon it as a leaning to our master's interest, which cannot be separated from that of the Prince of Orange. The French show much the greater respect and kindness to the Princess Royal, the Duke of York, and all that family now there, thereby to injealous the King of Spain, and to keep Spain from joining with the King, but I hope their craft shall fail (?) them.

I hear that Sir Kenelm Digby has become a great pensioner of Cromwell's, and that his business in France is to hinder any agreement between Spain and France, which he will not find difficult, as long as Cardinal Mazarin rules absolutely; for war, not peace, is his interest.

It is said that at the meeting of all the army officers at Whitehall, there will be greater transactions than have been for many years; they are to settle the legislation solely in Cromwell and his Council and their successors; to establish the succession; to confer new titles on Cromwell; to order all tithes to be paid to the public Treasury; and then, when all is perfectly established by them, a Parliament will be called, which will be regulated and limited.

Is Mr. O'Neale there now at the Hague? for there is a report that he is gone into Flanders, which I cannot believe, though he is more of the secret council than I am, being a great confidant of Hyde's. I wish he may prove worthy the trust reposed in him, but it's no wisdom to make those who are not sworn to be secret privy to the secrets of state, and how can it but give great discontent unto sworn counsellors, and bring much disquietness to those that are instrumental in it? but I pray keep this to yourself.

The fleet in the Downs is very mutinous. Blake and Montague were sent by Cromwell to pacify the seamen, who are angry because Lawson is not Vice-admiral. Cromwell took his commission from him, suspecting him to have had a hand in last year's mutiny. Badiley takes his place, but it not so well beloved as the other. The discontent among seamen is so general that, if they had known they would have security in the King of Spain's ports, by his having made a fast conjunction with our King, many, nay most of the fleet would have abandoned Cromwell, who is said to be most odious among the seamen. You will have heard of the orders for pressing

2,000 young women in England to be sent to the West Indies ; 400 are already put into 10 ships that are soon to be sent with provisions for Jamaica. This is an excellent expedient to pay the godly women for their silver thimbles and bodkins, lent the rebellious State at the beginning of the rebellion, for in those Indies, they may have wedges and ingots of silver, to make thimbles and bodkins for all the holy sisters in England.

Capt. Carey has brought into Dunkirk 3 English prizes, worth 2,000*l.* or 3,000*l.* Several persons are now sequestered for being in the late King's garrisons in time of war, though they only lived there because their estates were there, and never acted ; but nothing will satisfy the Majors General, whose wills are laws in the country. I am very sorry for the sufferings of these neuters. I hear Heenvliet's daughter is come to Holland to marry Somerdike's son, but I think so wise a man will marry his son into some noble family. When do Heenvliet and his lady go for France ? Lady Hume is dangerously ill. [4 pages ; the italics are in cypher, undecyphered.]

19. Judge Advocate J. Fowler to Robt. Blackborne. Four days of last week have been taken up in examinations concerning the Pelican and the captain of the Nantwich; 13 persons have been examined for and against Capt. Jefferies, of whom Woods, Rogers, and Waters, the cook, were the last, being sent from your Board; they arrived yesterday before the Court sat. The result was that none of the tickets alleged against him would bear ought, save that of Sherman, the pretended minister, who had a ticket for 7 months, and Jefferies received the money at Plymouth, but who never sailed nor officiated in the ship, and the Court ordered Jefferies to pay back the money, viz., the minister's monthly groats per head, to the Secretary of the Fleet, to be disposed of by the Generals for the relief of the sick and wounded, and the 18s. a month which each minister receives to be repaid to the Navy Treasurer, for the whole time that Sherman was kept upon the books. Wm. Fox the purser was also ordered to repay for his victuals, and fined 20 nobles for making the ticket.

The small trunk said to be taken from a Guernsey ship proved to be from a Frenchman, and so was not censured, and the tobacco and furs out of the Salt prize were held inconsiderable. The 4 packs of linen cloth out of the Constant Warwick prize were not claimed, and the 200 pieces of 8 proved to be 110 given by Collart for saving his men, and were proved by the oaths of 3 or 4 who received their share to have been satisfactorily distributed.

The 3 brass guns taken from a Jerseyman he was ordered to restore, and was fined 40*l.*, one moiety to the injured party, and the other to the Secretary, to be disposed of as aforesaid; so that upon the whole he stands fined in 60*l.*, with stop of pay until he produces proof of having performed what is enjoined; but the pay already due is granted him, the better to enable him to pay his fine speedily.

The Court did not think meet to expel him, being an active and stout fighting man, in this conjuncture, when so many have laid themselves aside. Customary swearing was only proved by the cook; as he had sometimes sworn at the men's cross working of the sails, or because the guns were not ready when in chase, he received a severe reproof and admonition from the Court. If the fleet's sailing does not hinder, something may be said and done to the cook, who at Plymouth gave his commander abusive language, and run both his fists in his face.

The trial concerning the accident to the Pelican has yet to be heard, unless the sailing of the fleet prevents. I do not find by the examinations that any punishment will be inflicted; but as evil customs produce good laws, I have drawn strict orders for preventing accidents, which were read and allowed by the Council of War, and will be sent up to be printed and distributed. I hope the fleet will not carry me with them, although many of the captains desire it.

The fellow on board the Preston has been sent by Gen. Blake's order to the commander in the Downs, to be kept until my return thither; and I should like a letter from the Commissioners implying a need of me there, which will be equally if not more than with his fleet. I have not heard or seen anything more of Capt. Sperling. My son presents service to you and your virtuous lady. [3 pages.]

March 11. 27. Intelligence from Dunkirk. The packet boat for Dunkirk goes Dover. and comes as formerly, but I do not know how long it will continue. Three frigates, carrying 22, 15, and 8 pieces of ordnance, have left Dunkirk for the north ; a new one of 18 guns has been recently launched, and two others to carry 56 and 20 guns are on the stocks. At Ostend there is the Leopoldus of 26 guns, and 10 or 12 small ones, some of which took my ship, the Abraham, coming from Newcastle 3 months since. I went over and bought her again, and sent her back to Newcastle, when she was again taken in Aldborough Bay, and carried to Dunkirk, where she was condemned and sold.

The ships before mentioned were fitting out when I was there, had commissions against the English, and have since gone to sea ; there are 40 men-of-war from Dunkirk and Ostend now out, and bringing in prizes, 5 whereof were lately carried into Flushing, as they could not gain Ostend, and the three men-of-war who took them put to sea again for new purchases. There was one of their King's ships at Ostend, but I do not think they will set her to sea ; all those that are out and fitting out, as also the great one building at Dunkirk, belong to private men. The Ostenders intend building a frigate of 36 guns this summer, and have most of the timber for that purpose. [1 page.]

March 11. Proceedings in the Committee on the business of money. They considered the business of the Customs ; also the rules for regulating the Prize Office. [I. 124, p. 5.]

On consideration whereof, and of the great merit of some of the officers, a declaration was published, and they have now sent an agent to England to beg a speedy course for stating their accounts, and issuing debentures for their English services which can be exchanged in Ireland—that the Commissioners at Worcester House for stating army accounts state them according to their former instructions, and allow debentures to all who went over to Ireland as above, which are to be exchanged by the Commissioners for soldiers' accounts sitting at Dublin, and if they disallow the claims of any for arrears, they are to send a list of the disqualified to Ireland, with the reason why they are disallowed. 34. T. Ross to [Sec. Nicholas.] I am glad you have such fair hopes of the King of Spain's conjunction; it will advantage him no less than you. I have nothing from England, Dick Pile and my friends being absent from London, and not having my letters. The Norfolk gentleman I named has gone to the sea-side, and has sent for some of his friends over to understand the state of his country. I may not name him, but he is a papist and yet loyal, 50 years old, his father still alive, is heir to 5,000*l.* a year, and has bought the reversion of his estate of Parliament long since. Your removal into Flanders will animate him to appear more for you than yet he does, but he is loyal and honest.

I think well of Read, as you do, and know not why Pile, who was his friend, censures him. I have added the name you sent [as cypher] for the Earl of Norwich. I hear of the Earl of Strafford's health by his kinsman just come over, who tells me that Davison, Holder, and the other gentlemen that killed their keeper to escape, though formerly acquitted by the jury, will be tried again. The press of land and seamen continues.

Rich. Hopton is still here, and will stay till Armorer's return from you; he will begin his journey next week.

I am troubled at Sir F. Vincent's neglect, that a person of honour should promise so much and be so long in performing; but perhaps both he and Hungerford (whose father pretends to policy) suspend their resolution till they see what the King of Spain will do. Sir K. Digby is here, but I only hear through him of Whitelock's passing this way to Sweden. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages. Italics are cyphers decyphered.]

March 13. 35. Hum. Robinson to Jos. Williamson. Arrival and dispatch of letters. Your cousin Lamplugh has gone 20 miles up the river. Sir Fras. Norris had the last letters sent him to Oxfordshire. I presume Mr. Whorwood has his for the Stillyard. You are beholden to Mr. Thorndick for your Bible; Drs. Walton and Ryves refused me, and the Provost said all his were disposed of. Ask the book-sellers there to give you a catalogue of their choice books, with the ready money price.

The embargo is to last 10 days more. Spain bought lately 40 sail of the Dutch, who have taken many of our colliers. [1 page; much faded.]

March 14. 36. Petition of Col. Thos. Ogle to the Protector. Having found out, by God's assistance, and with great charge and industry, the art of making saltpetre out of salt water—an invention never before practised here, but to our honour and advantage, as we have been formerly furnished from abroad,—I beg a license for 14 years for the sole exercise of my invention. 36. I. Col. Ogle's proposals, as in his petition; also that within 12 months of his patent, he and his partners will set up works, and supply the State with 2,000 barrels of gunpowder yearly, at 40s. per cwt., after which he requests leave to sell or transport the overplus. Noted that the patent is to be in the name of Edw. Gethings and Clement Oxenbridge, and the State's powder to be double refined. [1 page.]

March 14. Order thereon in Council that the Customs' Commissioners take care that the 2 said ships be seized and secured till further order, as also his house, goods, and papers, but that they be carefully inventoried and kept from embezzlement, and that Tim. March 17.

Weymouth.

40. Capt. Geo. Pley to Col. Jno. Clarke, Admiralty Commissioner. The Dunkirkers and Ostenders begin to grow numerous, and do much mischief daily; within the last 15 days, they have taken two ships of Lyme, coming from St. Malo, within two hours after leaving their convoy, viz.:—the Boyar, and one richly laden with linen. Since then they have taken one of Topsham, bound for Newfoundland; another of North Yarmouth, with wine from Bordeaux, was driven on shore and boarded, and as they could not get her off on account of the soldiers in [Portland] island, they fired her, and carried away the master, but the fire was quenched and the ship saved.

On the 15th they took several ships in sight of Weymouth, and the same day met 2 more, one from Virginia, and the other from the Palm Islands, but the latter being of no force, they all went about the Virginian, and fought very stoutly, until the enemy threw a granado into their gun-room port, which lighting the powder, blew up the ship; the master and 6 others were slain outright, and 12 men and one woman grievously burnt and wounded; notwithstanding their condition, they stripped them all, and in doing so, plucked off skin and all, and turned them on shore in a boat, and they are now in Weymouth in a sad condition. The ships of Lyme from Dunkirk report that there are 20 sail there ready to come forth.

I am sorry to hear the general complaint, both of merchants and seamen, that they are not regarded, but left a prey to every rogue, and no course taken to prevent it, as they cannot hear of a State's frigate for weeks together. I humbly desire some course may be taken for the security of merchants and trade; if but a small frigate or two were designed to be between Portland and Alderney, these rogues would be quickly cut short; they frequent this place from its being a headland and the narrowness of the channel, and consequently they cannot miss coasters and such as pass up and down. If the frigates so to be appointed were also ordered to look into Weymouth once a week for intelligence, I do not question but some of them, if not all, would shortly be destroyed. [1 page.]

March 18. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

1. 44. On Desborow's report from the Committee on the report concerning defective powder—that on examination of the powder makers and ordnance officers, they find that 6,827 barrels of powder delivered to the State are defective—that Council is satisfied the powder makers have broken their contract, and defrauded the State by delivering in unserviceable powder, and that the powder makers be obliged to make good $\frac{2}{3}$ of the defective powder, by delivering in so much good and serviceable powder, and undertaking that the same continue 2 years; the Admiralty Commissioners to proportion it among the powder makers as they find just. The Committee to sign a report of the matter of fact in this case. Annexing,

44. 1. Report alluded to, that though the powder was Tower proof on delivery, it soon became unserviceable; that of 15,098 barrels delivered since Aug. 1653, 6,827 are believed defective, and 4,312 should be repaired, and that the makers should make good $\frac{2}{3}$ of it, but have leave to transport the $\frac{2}{3}$ defective beyond seas if they desire it. [1 page draft, corrected.]

2. The contract reported by Desborow from the Committee on Moneys, with the words "are or" added in the last clause, agreed to, viz.,—

- (1.) That the Customs' Commissioners be chargeable with all sums received by themselves or deputies in any ports from 25 March 1656, except such part as shall be taken away by violence or hostility.
- (2.) That at the end of every week, they pay all custom money received into the Exchequer, deducting salaries of officers and necessary charges, and at their yearly account, make good all sums standing out in their receivers' hands.
- (3.) That 3 months after the expiration of every year, they give in their year's account to the imprest auditors, and pay into the Exchequer all moneys due thereupon.
- (4.) That the Commissioners provide at their own charge parchment, wax, pens, paper, ink, and books for themselves and deputies, and for all the checks in the out ports, as fully as the late Commissioners did by their contract; also all fire and candles used in that service; and that they keep a register of their proceedings at the Port of London for the State's service.
- (5.) That the Commissioners shall not use any trade as merchants, in import, export, or transport.
- (6.) That the Commissioners, for their services, have a salary of 4*d.* in the pound, to be paid at the end of every quarter.

(8.) That the Commissioners shall observe all such regulations as they receive from his Highness and Council.

3. The paper now presented to explain some particulars in the contract recommitted to the same Committee, to consider and report.

4. 45. Order—on the following report from the Admiralty Commissioners, viz., that on viewing the condition of the navy victualling, the Commissioners find the victuals for 10,000 men lately ordered will not be enough for the 4 second rate ships and others now preparing for the channel service, besides those already abroad; it is thought that it will conduce to the welfare of the Southern fleet that a present provision of 2 or 3 months' flesh for the whole fleet, to last until a winter slaughter, be made, if the fleet is out so long as to want it, but nothing can be done without present money; also that some course should be settled for disposing of prisoners taken in the State's ships, as many committed to goals have escaped and may do more mischief—that two months' flesh be provided for the fleet, and the Admiralty Commissioners take order accordingly, and that the Majors-General be requested to take order for the better disposal of the prisoners. Approved 20 March.

5. 46. Order for a letter to the Majors-General, written 20 March. [See p. 234 infra.]

College news. With verses on the motto, Stulte veretur ipse quas faciam Deas, arguing that Williamson had himself created in fancy the charms that he worshipped in the lady, and exhorting him to indifference:—

Inc. "Cease blind idolater, no zealot yet
Those gods e'er worshipped which he did beget.
Vaunt superstition! to whom thy knee
Doth bow, she owes yourselfe her deitie,
'Tis but an image your owne pencil drew such numbers as will be best for their safe keeping, and preventing their doing mischief, and to take care that they have work to earn their livings if able; if not, to allow them 4*d.* a day, to be paid on appointment of the mayors or other officers of towns. [March 21.] 52. Petition of Capt. Step. White to the Protector. I was desperately wounded near Heddington Gate, Scotland, lost horse, arms, &c., value 100*l.*, and also much blood and the perfect use of my limbs, so that I lost my command. You ordered several sums to those wounded in the Scottish service when I was out of town on public service, and had no notice, so that I could receive nothing, though I have been at great charges for my recovery. I beg a special order for the same allowance as others. With reference thereon to the Lord Deputy of Ireland and Lord Lambert, 26 Jan. 1655-6. [1 page.]

March 21. 4. 53. Order on report from the Admiralty Commissioners—that they had an order of 23 Oct. last, for 31 vessels to guard the channel, to carry 3,010 men, but that on the late emergencies of service the several ships mentioned in a list already at sea exceed by 420 the men contained in the order,—approving the 3,430 men, who are to be provided for accordingly. Approved 31 March.

5. Order on report from the Commissioners on Thos. Violet's petition,—praying that certain bonds seized by the Committee of Salop may be restored to him; as they were for 40*l.* used by the Committee for public good,—that on his paying 40*l.* he receive the bonds, which he may sue, as he might have done before, and that John Corbett see the bonds delivered. March 21.
Cologne.

54. [Sec. Nicholas] to Jos. Jane, Hague. I hope it's but an imagination that all the King treats of in Flanders is discovered to Cromwell, who will incline more to peace with Spain, if he is assured there will be a firm conjunction between the King and Spain. Enquire more about the knight of Malta, whom you name to have been there with the Spanish ambassador, and now to be gone for England. I believe Spain would not refuse a secure peace with England as now governed, but considering Cromwell's league with France, and his engagements with the Indies, I do not see that he can accommodate with Spain, and keep up his credit at home and abroad.

VOL. CXXV.

There are great distempers now among the great ones that rule in England, and Cromwell is more full of jealousies than ever. Lambert is the army's darling, and the only person courted; he has acted more these three weeks than in all his time before. He is daily in Council, and carries all before him; he has chosen all the new life-guard, who are absolutely his creatures. Col. Lockier [Wm. Lockhart] who married a kinswoman of Cromwell, goes ambassador to France, but with him Lambert sends his secretary, a subtle villain. The rebels are still in great want of money, and Cromwell intends, by his Majors General, to make the rich citizens pay him good sums. Many gentlemen are leaving London, choosing rather to fall into the hands of the country Majors-General than into those appointed for London and Middlesex. People that never thought of going beyond seas are now meditating how to get out of England speedily.

I hear nothing of a peace between Spain and Portugal, but it would be an infinite advantage to Spain in his war with Cromwell.

Sweden will not treat with Holland unless the States renounce their league with Spain, which the Dutch cannot do without infinite inconvenience, beside the dishonour of such an act.

I know nothing of O'Neale's negotiations, but being of the cabinet, he may go for Flanders.

Ambassador Nieuport is shortly returning from England, to discover to the States some great secrets from Cromwell, which are to abate the Dutch inclinations for the Spaniard; should these prove ineffectual, he is to offer the repeal of the Act of 1651 for regulating trade and navigation, and for Cromwell to join the Dutch against Sweden, if they will join him against Spain. Tell M. Reinswood and 613* this, and sound them about it. Divers of the Prince of Condé's officers are leaving him, having made their peace with France, and Spain is not much sorry for it.

Meadows is sent to Lisbon for the King of Portugal's last resolution about ratifying his treaty with Cromwell, who has left out the article about religion, rather than not have the liberty of the ports in Portugal. Some say the fleet stays to know whether those ports will be open to them.

We hope next post to know whether the King will return here to expect the ratification from Madrid of what has been agreed on in Flanders.

I hear Mr. Cha[ncellor Hyde] intends to bring his lady to Breda to lie in, but if the King return hither, Mr. Cha. should not stir from hence. My wife enquires if your wife goes to England this spring.

P.S.—I am sorry for the good doctor's sickness. I fear it is caused by the troubles he meets with in the family where he is. [3 pages.]

March 22. 55. T. Ross to Sec. Nicholas, Cologne. I shall keep yours of April 1. 21 March as a monument of your unmerited favour. I cannot serve Paris. you as I desire, but it is not through neglect. I have thrice told Dick Pile your wish that he should send intelligence direct to you, but he has forgotten or disregarded it, or else he has no safe way to convey his letters, because my wife, for want of maintenance in London, has been obliged to retire to my mother's; all my letters passed through her hands. Had she been in London, you would not fail of weekly intelligence. If Hungerford and Pile fail I have no way left but by Hopton, who will stay here till Armorer returns from the King, that he may go over fully instructed by him. He will put his business in your hands only, and relies on you to present him to the King as he shall merit.

I have committed to Armorer a suit for myself; Pile would send me a messenger, but I think it not needful till Hopton and they compare notes, and then an express should be sent to the King. Shall I meet it and come with the message to you?

Pile says there is great discontent in the fleet, and wishes means to be taken to continue it. Some in London of Maj.-Gen. Massey's acquaintance would be the fittest instruments. I think "Mallard's son by his first wife" [see 21 Feb., p. 197 supra] must mean the Presbyterians, for he [Massey] has neither son nor wife as far as I know, so it must mean the first quarrel he espoused, which was the Presbyterian. By "Heyman's antidote" he must mean some assistance from the King to allay disanimations there. [2 pages; italics cyphers undecyphered.]

March 22. 56. T. Ross to Nicholas. Since writing my letter, I have heard April 1. from my wife and Pile, who, because he cannot come to Calais, has Paris. sent her. I shall hasten thither. I think some sudden business has caused it. I have no news but that Cromwell has resolved to govern the city by Majors-General, and has sent for the Lord Mayor and Aldermen to acquaint them. You can best judge how acceptable this will be to the city. [1 page.]

March 23. 57. C. George to Jos. Williamson, Saumur. I send you letters
April 2. received yesterday. [Scrap. French.]

March 24. 58. Petition of Manasseh Ben Israel and 6 other Jews in London to the Protector. We thank you for leave to meet in our private houses for devotion, and beg to have a protection in writing, that we may meet without fear of molestation, as we desire to live peaceably under your government. Also we beg license that those of us who die may be buried in a place out of the city, with leave of the proprietors. 7 signatures. With reference, signed by the Protector, to Council. [1 page.]

March 25. 59. Petition of the inhabitants of Towcester, co. Northampton, to the Protector, that the augmentation of 31*l.* a year from the reserved rent of the impropriation there, lately belonging to the Bishop of Lichfield and Coventry, and of 19*l.* a year from the impropriate rectory of Maple Durham, Cotterstock, and Chipping Norton, may be continued to Robert Wallwin, their minister, presented 6 June 1655 by the Commissioners of the Great Seal to the Commissioners for Approbation of public Preachers, approved, and admitted to the vicarage there. The parish is a very great market town, and a great thoroughfare, and the vicarage only worth 26*l.* to 30*l.* a year; 10 signatures. [1 page.]

10. The Earl of Cleveland not to have liberty to go into the country for 2 months on parole.

11. The Lieutenant of Tower to attend Council to-morrow morning.

12. The report concerning satisfaction for Wm. Minheire, respecting a verdict at law given against him concerning fee farm rents issuing out of Lord Herbert's estate, which Minheire could not receive according to his purchase, to be considered to-morrow.

13. A bond of 16 May entered into at the late Council of State by Sir Thos. Middleton in 16,000*l.*, with 2 sureties in 5,000*l.* apiece, for his appearing on summons, and meanwhile doing nothing against the State, or allowing Chirk Castle to be so used, to be delivered up to him to be cancelled.

14. The draft of a Proclamation prepared by the Attorney-General, concerning daggers and pocket pistols, referred to Sydenham, Jones, Lambert, and Desborow; Mr. Secretary to assist.

15. The Lord President informs that Lord Willoughby of Eresby, and Geo. Bartlett, who were arrested by order of his Highness about a quarrel, are now waiting at the door.

16. The Admiralty Commissioners to consider the petition of Thos. Paris, Nath. Hering, and other owners and employers of the Lion of London, bound for Newfoundland, and to grant them a warrant preventing the impressing of 30 men from her, if they see no reason to the contrary.

18. Council to meet again to-morrow morning.

19. Approval by the Protector of 2 orders of 25 March. [I. 77, pp. 1-4.]

Hull.

63. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I received your instructions for Capt. Boost to take the Amsterdam ships also under his convoy to London, and desired the merchants to order their affairs so as to give less trouble therein for the future. The merchants of Hull return thanks for the favour, but decline to accept it, as the dangers of the seas from Hull to the Thames are greater than from Hull to the Texel. Having perishable goods on board and lying so long at sea, and then going from Hull to the

Vol. CXXV.

Thames and thence to Amsterdam, they would not endure the voyage; also the insurances effected on the faith of their sailing direct from Hull to Amsterdam would be forfeited if the route was altered. As Capt. Boost is to return to his station after convoying the London ships to the Thames, and will pass the Humber's mouth, they desire he may be ordered to call there and convoy their ships to the Texel; in order that no time may be lost, they will be there ready to meet him. Having imprisoned Jno. Hall in York and Wm. Deerlaw in Hull, for receiving press money and then deserting, I want to know what I am to do with them and others of a like nature. [1½ pages.]

March 25. 64. Petition of Capt. Jas. Greenaway and 5 other captains of ships of London, Yarmouth, and Leith, bound for Rochelle and Bordeaux, to the Admiralty Commissioners, for a convoy. Are richly laden, and there are many enemies on the coast of France who have taken several English ships coming home under convoy of 3 French men-of-war, and took 2 Bristol ships; 3 frigates of St. Sebastian's almost surprized the 3 French men-of-war. [1 page.]

March 25. Assignment by Thomas Zachary of Twickenham, co. Middlesex, to John Gell of St. Martin's in the Fields, for 10% of the residue of a lease for 14½ years from Michaelmas 1653, of a messuage in Twickenham, rent 8%.; endorsed with an agreement that John Gell pays all taxes, &c., on the house. [Parchment signed, Interregnum Box 3, No. 3.]

March 26. 65. Capt. Wm. Whitehorn to the Admiralty Commissioners. I. The Gainsborough, Downs. could not grant a convoy to Rochelle without your order. The Pembroke and Drake could take the ships, and would do much good, passing in and out of the Channel. A rich vessel for Scotland wants a convoy; I can send her to Yarmouth. What shall I do with the prisoners, and what about convoys generally? A Dutch vessel from Cadiz reports that 18 men-of-war are fitting out there, and that 30 of their Naples fleet sailed from thence a month since for the Straits. Capt. Hugh Wilson, of the Anthony of London, from Virginia, was boarded three times off Beechy by an Ostend man-of-war of 8 guns and 60 men, but on the last attempt, he forced many of them overboard and took 6 prisoners, with the loss of two of his own and 4 wounded. The packet boat from Dunkirk having reported that an Ostender was at the back of the Goodwin Sands, I have sent the Pembroke and Drake to look after him. [1 page.]

March 26. 66. Petition of Capt. Sam. Chamblett, master of the Prosperous, on behalf of the laders and owners, to Council, for a protection for 60 men, she being chosen a general ship by the Turkey Company, and laden with lead, cloth, &c., value 10,000%.; she has paid 4,000% customs, but has been waiting 3 months, unable to depart because her men are always pressed out of her. [2/3 page.]

67. II. Certificate by J. Brett of the names of the officers, and note from Lord Deputy Fleetwood that he fears there will be uncertainty from what time to state their accounts, unless taken from the dates of their commissions. 20 March 1655-6. [1 page.]

March 26. Order thereon in Council that the Commissioners for accounts in Ireland grant them debentures for pay from 6 weeks after the date of their commissions to their first muster in Ireland. Approved 31 March. [I. 77, p. 9.]

March 26. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

5. The President reports his Highness's approval of the orders upon the officers of Customs, with one clause which he amended:—

That the Accountant General be appointed by his Highness, wholly dependent on the State, and answerable for his clerks. That he also act as a check on the Commissioners of Customs and their officers, as to daily receipts for customs in the Port of London by bills of exchange, &c., from the out-ports, and as to moneys paid by the Commissioners for half subsidy, incident charges, salary, &c.

That the Cashier General and receiver in the Port of London, and all the collectors in the out-ports be nominated by the Customs' Commissioners, and approved by the Committee for Preservation of Customs.

That on this new settlement, the Commissioners of Customs present to his Highness the names of all the present officers, that those of honesty and integrity may be continued, and those excepted against discharged. The Commissioners to have power to suspend their officers, giving an account thereof to his Highness, that if they are thought fit to be removed, others may be placed in their room.*

That the clerks of the checks shall not compare their books with those of the Commissioners or officers, nor allow them to be compared, on pain of loss of office. Annexing,

68. Draft of the above orders, 25 March 1655. [$1\frac{1}{8}$ pages.]

8. On report from the Committee on a proclamation against the use of pocket dags, several amendments were made, and the same was recommitted on a clause now in debate, to be brought in tomorrow morning. Mulgrave added to the Committee.

* This is the clause amended by the Protector; in the draft it stands thus:—That only such officers be continued in employment as are approved by the said Commissioners, and that the Commissioners have power to remove officers, and nominate others to be approved by the said Commissioners.—Ed.

10. Order that notwithstanding the representation of the Trustees for Sale of Lands forfeited for treason, the Treasurers of that receipt do, according to the order of Oct. 11, 1655, pay into the Exchequer all sums as they come in, and not otherwise dispose of them except the 112*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* ordered to-day to Rich. 11. The report from the Committee for removing Obstructions, on an order from a Committee of Council on the petition of Wm. 13. John Harvey of Wange, co. Essex, to be a commissioner for the monthly assessments in his county.

14. Order—on petition of the Governor and Fellowship of Merchant Adventurers of England, for protection from impress of their officers and mariners bound for Hamburg, viz., 38 belonging to the Roebuck and 42 to the Hamburg Merchant—that the Admiralty Commissioners grant the warrants as desired, if they see no cause to the contrary.

March 27. 70. Petition of Edw. Greene, executor of Col. Manwaring, Col. Geo. Langham, Fras. Dashwood, Sam. Foote, Jas. Smith, jun., Edw. Backwell, John Callingwood, and Thos. Langham, to the Protector and Council. We are sued in the Exchequer as sureties in large sums for Capt. Hen. Langham, late cashier for the Customs. He says that if he could have liberty of his person, books, and vouchers for stating his accounts, we should not be damnified, but his estate would satisfy his debts. As we are sure you do not wish us to suffer unjustly, we beg this liberty for him. Also Petition of Edm. Harvy, Rob. Tichborne, and Mark Hildesley to the Protector and Council. We are anxious to perfect our accounts, but find that our vouchers for the year ending 24 June 1654 and since, to the value of 600,000*l.*, have been taken from our cashier, and without them our accounts cannot be allowed. Also we cannot

Stone. [1 sheet, signed by all.]

March 27. Order in Council thereon that Langham be set at liberty, on bail in such sums and sureties as the Preservation of Customs' Commissioners shall order, and on their certificate the Serjeant-at-arms is to liberate him. [I. 77, p. 11.]

7. Order, on report from the Committee on the complaint about the Swedish ambassador's servants, that Geo. Sanderson and Thos. 9. Order that the Customs' Commissioners examine the lading on board the Tobias, now in the Thames, and bound outward, and whether any part is on account of Spaniards, and report. [I. 77, pp. 10-12.]

March 27. Victualling Office. 71. Capt. Thos. Alderne to the Admiralty Commissioners. I hoped the consideration of the new declaration would have prevailed for more money than the ordinary assignments; the want of it will disenable me to proceed any further; I beg some addition, the rather as the butchers are now killing; 6,500*l.* is already due on the weekly payments, exclusive of this week, and 3,000*l.* of the last. I do not know how you understand it, but I am sure I want more money than is assigned, and if the New England bills interfere this week to lessen my receipts, I will only say that I judge it more

72. [John Weston to T. Ross.] I am to tell you that Cromwell (?) has strictly charged me not to mention that you desire to admit the King (?) to any composition, saying it is your due, and you shall have it soon, for he has agreed with one Streight to see him arrested, and then to have his reward. One of Stanley's family, who has lately been 2 or 3 journeys to where the King is, will assist him. An intimate of Lambert's, a most cunning fellow, is sent into France; remember that if the King cannot make him his friend, he must try to make him not his enemy. Six times the men that the army allowed the fleet, the King of Spain has allowed the King of England to furnish him in his journey, so says the Council of State. My friend is sick of the mother, but I laugh at her, knowing she can help it. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page; italics are cyphers, partly decyphered.]

73. [Alice Ross to ———]. Hearing that you could send the enclosed to the King, I trouble you with these lines. John Weston says there is a colonel allied to the Wildman family, who does not receive from the King the kindness he expected, and it is feared it may make a breach between the families, and then there is no hopes of the match between the King and Wildman. Some that know the intentions of Wildman's friends should speak with the colonel, and recover the former neglect.

Our merchantmen complain much for their last loss. Dick Pile tells me with much sorrow that a Dutch ship was brought in by our ships, the goods claimed, and the claim acknowledged, but while they were getting an order to regain them, 8,000*l.* value were sold. This will be ground enough for a quarrel between us. I wish I could always be in town to wait on the King's affairs, but I am obliged to retire into the country. Endorsed [by Nicholas], "In it was sent one from John Weston to the King," found with the preceding. [1 page; italics are cyphers undecyphered.]

Hasten his return to Paris, for when Hopton receives your commands by him, he will go to England, and faithfully follow your instructions. I will soon send back my friend to satisfy the impatience of our friends. Nich. will tell you what we have returned. [1 page.]

75. Dr. Tanaquil Faber to Jos. Williamson. In reply to your queries whether Sarranius rightly made that person a herald, I have no answer to give, because I have not a copy of the letters I wrote you two months ago. The differences between ἀρέγγη, ἀρεγγῆ, ἀρέγγη, and ἀρίγγη, and between ποιήσαι, ποίησαι, ποιῆσαι, distinguished, with reasons in each case for the position of the accents.

I do not exactly know who edited (?) Ovid within ten years, but think it likely it was Dr. Nicholas Heinsius, who has hitherto forgotten his promises, though I know he has most diligently searched all the libraries in Italy to obtain the MSS. Codexes of Ovid. In haste. [Latin, 1 page.]

- March 29. 76. Report of the Customs' Commissioners to the Protector and Council. We have received your orders of 26 March [see p. 241 supra] and beg to represent that we should thereby be left destitute of an accountant, and yet our accounts have to be delivered in within 4 months of the end of our year. We request that we may have an accountant with the same salary as the Accountant General. Sad consequences would also ensue from the order against the comparing the books of the clerks of the check with those of the Customs' officers, which is one of the greatest securities, and the means of finding out the mistakes which must fall out in such various business, and of retrieving loss. We therefore beg that we or persons appointed by us (not the collectors) may have leave to peruse the books of the clerks of the check in the Port of London and the out-ports. [1 page.]

Whereas lands, moneys, and goods of value, belonging to us in right of the Commonwealth, are unjustly concealed and detained, and whereas several well affected persons are ready to discover them, if it could be done more speedily and cheaply than by bills in the Exchequer, and if they could be assured of a competent reward,—we, by advice of our Council, appoint you to receive all informations thereon, and send for witnesses, records, &c., provided that the informers first give security to make good their informations, or pay damages to the persons molested. You are to enquire into the said cases, and certify the discoveries to the Treasury Commissioners, that they may issue process from the Exchequer for their recovery, and you are to have a salaried registrar, who is to take no fees except for writing.
- You are to sit at 9 a.m. at Worcester House, Strand, and to sit 3 days a week for a year. The discoverers are to have $\frac{1}{5}$ of the profits of their discoveries. All who discover their own concealments to have free pardon, and a full $\frac{1}{5}$. Pres. Lawrence to the President and Council in Scotland. The monthly assessments of the Commonwealth falling short of the necessary charge for the forces, and the remaining revenue being otherwise employed, it is difficult to fill up the deficit. Considering that 2,000*l.* a month was abated from the Scotch assessment on lands destroyed by the war formerly, and conceiving that they may now have sufficiently recovered from the effects thereof, Council commends it to your serious thought to consider whether some proportion of the said 2,000*l.* may not be raised in Scotland, and if you find it so, it shall be put into a convenient way of execution. You are to consult herein with Gen. Monk, to whom his Highness referred it last October to advise with you about raising 500*l.* a month out of the said abated assessments, for the Council's contingencies in Scotland. Pray signify what the monthly sum likely to be so raised may amount to. [I. 77, p. 838.]

- (1.) That 100 butts of caveare, by an Admiralty warrant of 1651 arrested on the high seas at the suit of John Dickens and others, and possession thereof decreed and executed ; notwithstanding which, a prohibition at common law, was awarded against John Robinson, a merchant employed by Dickens on an action of trover at the suit of one Rutts.
- (2.) The case of Thos. Rich, merchant of London, concerning a contract with the children and heirs of Geo. Ettenherd, for lading some pieces of eight aboard a ship beyond seas, and a bill of lading for the same, which not being performed according to agreement, and Thos. Rich arresting some wools of Ettenherd's in 1652, and the cause being ready for sentence in the Admiralty, Philip Ricott, in 1653, moved the Upper Bench for a prohibition.

That the matter is of great public concernment and hard to be settled, that people may be relieved with ease and certainty : Order that the report be agreed with, and that letters be written to the lord chief justices and judges, requesting them to be more sparing in granting prohibitions, and to consult with the Admiralty judges before doing so ; and also to the Admiralty judges to be careful not to entertain any causes in their court which are within the jurisdiction of common law only. [See letters, 5 April.]

10. Order in the cases of John Robinson and Thos. Rich, merchants, annexed to the merchants' petition concerning prohibitions and all such other cases depending, that Col. John Jones, Nath. Bacon, Master of Requests, and Ed. Carey, call before them the plaintiffs in the Admiralty Court, and also the defendants, who are also prosecutors at common law, learn the facts of the cases from them, and if they shall not agree therein, the referees must state the fact as it appears to them, and report to Council.

Minheire—that he bought fee-farm rents for 1,118*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* in doubled bills, and 9*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.* ready money; that Lord Herbert, out of whose lands the rents issued, pretending that the Act of Parliament by which they were conveyed to him discharged these rents, Council ordered a trial at law, and a verdict passed against Minheire, and therefore he ought to be satisfied for his purchase. Also on certificate by the Committee for Obstructions that the purchase of rents, value 90*l.* 4*s.* 10*d.* a year was made 23 Sept. 1651, and the value to 20 March last is 451*l.* 4*s.* 0*d.*, which, with 60*l.* 15*s.* 0*d.* interest, 80*l.* charges, and 9*l.* 8*s.* 0*d.* paid in money [as well as 1,118*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.* in doubled bills] comes to 540*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*;—that the fee-farm rent treasurers give Minheire bills or doubled bills for the 1,118*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*; that he bring in to the fee-farm trustees public faith bills or debentures value 540*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*, and then that they pay him the same in ready money, and that he apply the money only to doubling the said bills, and they give him the doubled bills in the usual form, and that he thereupon deliver up his conveyance of the fee-farm rents to be vacated. Pres. Lawrence to the 2 Lords Chief Justices and the rest of the Judges of Common Law at Westminster. Several merchants have complained to the Protector that they began suits in the Admiralty courts for matters done upon the high seas, and contracts made beyond seas, and were obstructed by prohibitions from the Courts of Common Law at Westminster, and actions brought and prosecuted at law, for the same matters as have been decreed in the Admiralty Court. This matter, being referred by his Highness to Council, was seriously considered by Council, with advice of the judges of the land and Admiralty judges, and others learned in both common and civil law, who thought a great grievance was therein done to the people, whose charges in the one court were wasted and they left in uncertainty how to obtain relief. His Highness and Council therefore recommend you and the other judges to be very sparing in granting prohibitions, and to consult with the Admiralty judges touching the particular cases before granting them, to determine in which court such cases may best be tried. Approved 5 April. [I. 77, pp. 30, 838-9.]

Pres. Lawrence to the Admiralty judges. Several merchants have complained of the hindrance to their cases depending before you caused by the prohibitions granted by the judges of common law to stay proceedings in your court. This will be prevented if courts will keep within their own bounds, and entertain only such causes as are fit for their determination. His Highness and Council therefore desire you not to admit any case more properly within the jurisdiction of common law. Approved 5 April. [I. 77, pp. 30, 839.]

35. Capt. Geo. Pley to Rob. Blackborne. I could not deliver Capt. Sanders' letter, as he had gone for Jersey. Two of the enemies' frigates chased 10 sail of merchantmen and others, and ran two on shore near here, one of which they fetched off again; the company of the other took away her sails and cut a hole in her side, so she was saved. They made after the rest of the fleet, and came up with them in our view, so we judge most were taken, or at least as many as they could man. I advised Col. Clerke to have some frigate lying off Portland, being the best place to do good upon these rogues; but those designed for this station are sent on other employment, so the enemy has opportunity of doing mischief meanwhile, and for the most part keeps the English coast where most purchase is to be had. I wish those ships designed for here had orders to rendezvous here, stand off for Alderney at night, and come into shore in the morning, and then they must meet with them.

P.S.—If our frigates kept the Narrow between Dover and Calais, they would redeem many a ship, as they are taken daily. [1 page.]

36. Capt. Jno. Parker to the Admiralty Commissioners. I set sail with the ship with the masts and oars, and 8 sail bound along the coast for Plymouth, but had to put back to Portland Roads, and am waiting a wind. While in Portland Roads, we saw a frigate standing in with the State's colours at 9 p.m., which we supposed to be the Boyer; and upon hailing whence she came, they replied Whitehall, and first that her captain's name was Staynard, then Nichols; but at last said, "You dog, my name is Swart," and commanded me to hoist out our boat. I answered his demand with a broadside, which he returned, but as it was small shot it only damaged our rigging; after bearing up and firing again, he put to sea, and sailing very well, we lost him in the darkness. The next morning we found two of the ships under our convoy had been taken by Swart's consort, a frigate of 12 guns. It is their own fault, for I told them to keep near me, my order being to keep to the fly-boat, which sails heavily.

P.M.—This is the third time I have fallen in with the enemies' men-of-war, but cannot catch any, as they are too swift, which causes me to regret not having a better sailer, that I might destroy some of them. [1 page.]

They ground their claim on treaties specified from 1495–1630; they 38, 39. Isaac Basire to the King. Since your royal father adopted me as his subject and servant, my allegiance has been so firm that to bind it needed not the addition of your gracious letter to my now master, the Prince of Transylvania; yet gratitude improves my sense of duty, which I hope to prove when the King of Kings restores you to your throne, which is my chiefest wish. The delivery of your letter was providentially seasonable at the very time when the nation's representatives were met at their diet, and it was noised that, by reason of a public act of mine some months since in the university before the Prince, against independency and presbytery (flown over hither from England), and for episcopacy, that crew was so incensed against me that they threatened to cite me before their national assembly, as now they do before their general synod, where by the better, though not the bigger part, I am chosen to preside. I trust the success with God, who still places me on the militant side.

The effect of your benign influence has been the constancy and improvement of the Prince's favour, but this increases my opposers' envy. I renew my homage and vows for your preservation and restitution, with increase proportionable to your royal magnanimity, yea, Christian long-suffering. Endorsed as received 29 Aug. [2 pages.]

46. T. Ross to Nicholas. On my return from Calais, I met my wife, sent hither by Pile and his friends. Yours of the 4th was the more welcome that you think the King will finish his suit to his content, which I have seen confirmed from the place where he is. Armorer is now there, and accompanied me to Calais, whence he went by post to the King. I referred to him the relation of what my wife had to say, because I did not think he would find the King where he is and was unwilling to commit anything to paper. Armorer was resolved on his journey before I knew of mine, but I was glad to send by him, as Pile wished the business to be transmitted with expedition, and I had scarce money to carry me to Calais; but nothing committed by me or Hopton to him is to pass through any other hands than yours. If he break his oath he will forfeit his honour, and the business will not be accepted from other hands than yours. Hopton only waits his return to go where he is much desired.

I have sent to the King our friends' desire, that he may be fully instructed in his business, that is, towards Sir John Grenville. His business about removing Cromwell was one great motive to Armorer's journey, and if the hoped for return be made, it will be effected. Hopton is resolved and is ordered by his friends to deal with none but yourself, or immediately with the King. I know that Armorer is in frequent commerce with Sir Edw. Hyde, but he said it was the King's command, or he would not have relinquished you, to whom he is bound by great obligation and affection; but I will so watch him that he cannot divert our trade from its channel. I hear from my wife that at Bristol there were ready 3,000 men which should, on the King's command, be employed to purchase a manor near Chepstow Castle, well furnished with necessaries, but our friends will not settle there, but rather be nearer to Gloucester, where we have 1,000 men, and doubt not in case the King cannot join, to make good the suit. They want 1 or 2 good attorneys like Hopton entertained. At my arrival here on Saturday, I found an important letter of Pile, and being troubled, went and showed it to the Duke of York, whose elder brother it concerned. I wrote to my friend to explain it, viz., who was Lambert's confidant, &c.

I have sent by my wife both to Sir F. Vincent and Hungerford, and shall do the same by Hopton. I hope I have taken such order that in future you will not lack intelligence.

I cannot tell what to say as to your writing that Lambert is the darling of the army. It is true that he is the only active person in England, and the man used by the Protector formerly to cajole the army, so that I hear that the army are not well pleased with him. When ambassador Lockhart arrives, I will enquire as you desire.

P.S.—I hear the Duke of York is, as you say, much courted to remain where he is. Add to your cypher Uxbridge for Chepstow Castle. Endorsed as received $\frac{20}{30}$ April. [2 pages. Italics are cyphers partly decyphered.]

47. Capt. Geo. Pley to Col. Clarke. I desired Mr. Blackburne to inform the Admiralty Commissioners what mischief the enemies' frigates did last week upon the coast. Yesterday, while Capt. Baker, of the Hopewell pink was convoying some 8 sail, mostly with linen, from St. Malo to Weymouth, a frigate of 22 guns came up, exchanged broadsides with him, and took one of his convoys, commanded by Mr. Beare, having goods worth 12,000*l*. Beare made no resistance, but the taking of that ship enabled Capt. Baker to get away, after having a man killed and his purser wounded. I always had doubts of the fitness of the Hopewell pink for a man-of-war; she being old and rotten; will be a constant charge, and of little service. Had the enemy boarded her she must have been taken. Weymouth is infested with these rogues more than any other place, and they do mischief daily without any check; the frigates appointed as a guard are absent on other service. If the wind is westerly, they send their prizes to Dunkirk and Ostend, and if easterly, to St. Sebastian's. There are several Weymouth ships waiting to put to sea, but cannot do so, as there are some 16 of these pirates laying off Belle Isle, and so little safety for the merchants and others. I will supply Capt. Baker with 14 days' provisions without order. Please to acquaint Capt. Alderne so that it be allowed on account. I should have a general order to supply ships on the coast in cases of emergency. [1 page.]

48. Capt. Danl. Baker to the Admiralty Commissioners. While off Portland I chased an Ostender for some hours, and fired at her, but she escaped in the darkness. I was forced into St. Malo by the weather, and being much importuned by some merchants and masters of English vessels to give them convoy, and considering that my instructions were to protect English ships in their trading, I consented, and came from thence with 8 sail, dropped 4 bound for Ireland, Looe, and Apsham on the way, and made for Weymouth with the remainder. When off the Berry, we met another Ostender, whereupon 3 of my convoys stood in for the shore, but the 4th—being a Mr. Beare of London, and a ship of great value, and having 6 guns—stood along the Channel, and instead of fighting, very unworthily, though I was within $\frac{1}{2}$ a mile of him, hauled his foresail upon the mast, and stayed for the Ostender, who took him without firing a shot. I attempted a rescue, losing one man and having another wounded, but was compelled to desist through the violence of the storm, and not being able to use my guns or follow her up. I regret such a bad business, but hope you will believe I did my best. I

50. Col. Rowland Dawkins to the Protector. The work in South Wales is forward, though we cannot yet give a full account. The Commissioners send a list of those whom they judge fit to be sent beyond sea, with their reasons. We have gone over the work of decimation, and shall soon send our proceedings. We will prosecute the other heads of our instructions as we have time.

The effects of our work are very observable; our enemies are much terrified, our friends encouraged, peace secured, and wickedness suppressed. Though the dealing is severe, the people of this country think it necessary and just. Indulgence has but hardened them in their malignity, and but for our proceedings, the good interest had been overtopped by the royal and worldly. We are satisfied that we have God's mind in these proceedings, and now the people bless God for their enjoyments through you. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages.]

51. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. You write that you do as much as you are able, but if speedy course is not taken, we shall be a prey to the enemy, for all the vessels they take they fit out as men-of-war, and they have now 70 out, and not one English frigate in the Roads, since you ordered me to send one to Rotterdam; 50 sail came over last week from the Maas, with two Dutch men-of-war, but those laden with goods would not trust themselves with the Dutch convoy, and there are 20 sail yet to come, and two at Yarmouth, richly laden with stuffs and stockings, ready to go thither. Thanks for your order sent to Weymouth, but the Hopewell pink had already gone to St. Malo, so my vessel lay there still; but if you send to Portsmouth there are always some ships about the Wight.

If the State wants money to carry on the works, and 60,000*l.* a month will not do, 120,000*l.* must. The Hollanders say that the English are asleep, and that nearly 70 English sail lie there without convoy. I hope this will be well taken. [1 page.]

52. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. I gave you an account of the prize taken by the Constant Warwick, as also the one called the Raven, that you might see how the seamen plundered them. I have dealt very plainly with the captains that took them, but they say they cannot remedy it, as if they take a man-of-war that fights them, the sailors are so violent that they will scarcely leave a thing that is portable; and that they are the more unruly because the promised gunnage and tonnage has not been paid them. There is also a fault in boats going off from hence when a prize is taken. I have ordered the captain to throw shots into them to sink them as also the lieutenant of the fort to send out his boat to take the other boats, make the men prisoners, and frighten them, if not worse. I do hope from henceforth there will be a reformation of this great abuse, as since Beach was taken, I have never seen vessels so handled as the last 3 or 4 prizes were. I beg an order to Jas. Blackburne, check in the prize office at Plymouth, to go on board every prize as soon as she is brought into the Roads, and take an inventory, with one of the Sub-Commissioners of Prizes. [1 page.]

Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish. Since our last of 24 Dec. we have received yours of 25 Oct. by your son, who is safely arrived with the Merchant's Delight. We are glad not only that the action at Tunis has been so well salved up, but that you give us such confident assurance of security for the future, and we trust your endeavours to prevent such hazards as that and the frequent changes of Government may occasion. Lose not the opportunity of the friendship you have contracted with the new Vizier, as well as the Muftie, by whose means you have already obtained some favours and acts of justice at a charge which is agreeable to us, and will be settled when the Treasury accounts come.

We much wish you may be able to procure the release of Geo. Davis, now returned thither with the Capt. Bassa; also of Thos. Gallilee, or any other poor Christians.

The goods brought in the Mayflower, which omitted payment of impositions, have now given satisfaction; thanks for your past care; we desire a continuance as to the enjoyment of our duties on the ships bound for Smyrna and the Porte, whereof our husband will tender a particular account for guidance of the treasurer in collecting the same on the goods entered here, and those which escaped payment.

We have reviewed and settled the rates of consulage, as also of tonnage and freight, whereof a list shall be sent you. Since our debts are totally extinguished there, to our abundant content, it behoves us to acquit ourselves speedily of those lying on us here at home, to which end we have resolved on a consulage extraordinary, to be taken on all goods out and in at all places in Turkey, to go upon credit of those to whom money is owing in the Company's books, at the rate of 5s. the dollar, and to be paid down by the rest, which we pray you to have collected with the other duties.

P.S.—John Abney, our late treasurer, complains of an arrear of 1,728 dollars owing him on his late account, beside 244 spent for interest on moneys taken up for us, and notwithstanding our order to Smyrna, only 344 dollars are paid. We beg that the rest may be made good to him. [Levant papers, Vol. IV., pp. 264-5.] notwithstanding incidental charges, such as the ill custom begun by Morat Bassa, of visiting that port with his galleys, of which, if we may not be wholly eased, we desire to undergo it at as easy charge as possible.

We note your appointment of a successor to Jeffery Keble as chancellor, with the advantages you expect from the change; you may make trial of him.

Your trouble in receiving our dues, through the course taken of entering goods in one name and giving bills of lading in another, we will reform, and shall oblige the pursers of ships to deliver us manifests of their lading on their departure hence. Meanwhile, see punctual satisfaction of the bonds there given for $2\frac{1}{4}$ dollars per cloth, unless those concerned produce certificates from our husband that they have cleared here.

We are not content with your account of the lading of the Mary Rose, on which we gave so express order for and you so resolute a promise of the broke, and yet you comply rather with the private desire of those offenders than our order, which how late soever made, is now no novelty; this want of execution is the principal means of encouraging persons to unjust dealings in defrauding us, and of their mean esteem of our power, which is really sufficient to bear you out in executing our orders. Therefore suffer us not to be injured either by slighting your own and our power, or by the loss of consulage and brokes, whether on goods or money brought thither, wherein we are greatly wronged, to the continuance of our debts. We insist on this in respect of the large quantities of cloth laden on the Prosperous and Batchelor, bound for that port, beside another for Constantinople, of which you will receive a particular from our husband, to guide you in the collection of duties on those fairly entered here, and on the rest which escaped payment, on all of which you are to receive our consulage extraordinary in lieu of the leviation. Our debts being cleared, we would have this invested in silks or some good commodities, and sent hither for lessening our debts at home, but the extraordinary consulage is to be laid down only by such as are not creditors to the company; those that are must be charged with the value thereof hither to be placed to their accounts, and a list shall be sent you of who are and who are not creditors. We also send you a list of the rates of consulage, tonnage, and freight, as newly settled, which you are to observe.

We desire you to satisfy the arrears due to John Abney on his account as treasurer at Constantinople, which we hear is not cleared yet.

We take exception against these particulars in your account, viz., 146 and 173 dollars expended at meetings in 5 Nov., and at the publishing of peace with the Dutch. As we have expressly forbidden the charge of feasting to be put to our account, we have disallowed them, as also 150 dollars on account for house rent. [Levant Papers, Vol. 4, pp. 266-8.]

employment as treasurers, and desire your care in collection of duties on board the several ships laden for Smyrna. A particular of the duties entered and paid has been transmitted to the consul, that $2\frac{1}{4}$ dollars per cloth may be better levied on the rest. We also send you the new rates of ordinary consulage, and of tonnage and freight to be used in future.

To clear off our debts, we have ordered an extraordinary consulage on all goods, both in and out, to go on the credit of the company's creditors and to be paid down by the rest.

We also desire your notice of certain exceptions to the last account, viz., 150 dollars for the consul's half house rent to Aug. 1654; 146 dollars spent at the publication of peace with the Dutch, and 173 spent on Nov. 5; all are disallowed by a court on a former resolution against such frivolous expenses, which we desire you to put an end to. Never assisted the late King or his son in their wars against Parliament; was sequestered on a groundless information in 1646, but discharged by the Committee for Sequestrations. [April 15.] 54. Statement of the case of Eliz. Salmon's children's claim to lands, &c. in Chatham.

John Dulling devised by will, 26 Oct. 1638, Westcourt manor in Gillingham and Chatham, Kent, purchased of Sir Rich. Leveson to Eliz. Salmon, his daughter, and by several mortgages it passed for 1,650*l.* to Geo. Bowers, since whose death, his son and heir George has held the estate, but having committed high treason with John Gerard and others, is fled. Eliz. Salmon, now dead, conveyed her interest therein to her children, John, Bonner, Dulling, and Eliz. Salmon, all of age, and they offer to sell it reasonably to his Highness for the State, the manor and lands lying near Chatham dock. With order thereon by the Protector that the Treasury Commissioners inquire into the title, and contract with the parties for the transfer of the premises. 17 Jan. 1655-6. [1 page.]

[April 15.] 55. Report by the said Commissioners that no contract should be made therefor, because: (1.) By the Ordinance none are to be prosecuted for high treason except during the year, and Bowers is not yet prosecuted.

(2.) Before his treason, he conveyed the premises to his mother, Anne Bowers, for 1,000 years. If the title could be proved, the premises would be useful for the navy. There are presumptions that — Wiseman, a witness to the deed, was privy to the late rebellion in the West, but being never convicted of perjury, a jury would admit his testimony. 27 March 1656. [April 15.] 57. Petition of the French and Dutch Protestant strangers in or near Hatfield Chace level, in cos. York, Lincoln, and Notts, to the Protector. Being unable to exercise our religion at home, we fled here, and had a church erected at Sandtoft, where we worshipped 20 years; but the inhabitants of the Isle of Axholme have barbarously destroyed our corn, houses, and mills, exposing us to cold and famine; they then took out the doors, windows, seats, and pulpit from our church, but finding we still frequented it, they made it a slaughter house and buried carrion in it. We still meeting there, they came with Dan. Nodell, their solicitor, and drove us away by force.

On an order from the Council of State and writ of assistance from the Exchequer, for possession of part of the controverted lands to the participants of the improvements, Nath. Reading, a participant, ordered the cleansing and repairing of the church. On 21 Jan. last, Nodell and the rest came and threatened to pull the church down, and sell the stone and timber. We proved this before a Committee of the Long Parliament, but the order for the trial of the rioters not being executed, we are impoverished by long attendance, and they have been animated to these latter villainies.

We beg renewal of an order to free us from their violence, and provision for our former sufferings and future safety, having fled

April 15? 58. Petition of Josias Dewy to the Committee of his Highness's Council about gunpowder. Holds Chilworth powder mills, which having certainty of water, can work in a draught, when other mills are stopped. Supplied 150 barrels weekly during the Dutch war, and sent 1,800 to Portsmouth, but has not sent any to the Tower for nearly 2 years. All that he has made new has been Tower proof, and some of it has gone to sea 3 times and proved good; but if the old powder repaired by him does not hold, he cannot help it. Unless he has work given to keep his mills going, must demolish them, which would be a great loss to the State. Bad powder can only be mended by drawing the petre from it; if sold again here, the merchant men might buy it, which would be a great loss to them and the nation. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

April 15? 59. Petition of John Freeman to the Committee of Council for powder. Has been a powder maker 4 years, and been at great charge in building mills, stores, &c., for which he was promised some satisfaction, but has received none. During the war with Holland, supplied good powder. Has 2,500*l.* due for powder supplied since Feb. 1654-55, and will be undone unless speedily paid. His new powder was as good as possible, but the old and Hamburg powder could not be made so good unless the petre had been drawn off, and then it would have cost 40*s.* to repair a barrel, whereas he only received 17*s.*; but the Committee forced the Hamburg powder on him, and would not pass his debenture unless he would take it to mend. The powder now reproved is tried with a high proof, though made long since and is serviceable, though not Tower proof. Begg payment, and dismissal from further attendance. [1 page.]

April 15? 60. Petition of John Freeman to the Admiralty Commissioners. Has never dealt unfaithfully with the State, and could not have maintained his family had he not another trade by sea as a merchant. Has been a powder maker 4 years, but gained nothing thereby, the mills being 6 times blown up, so he and his partners have had to borrow 1,200*l.* at interest, and cannot go on unless paid. Always double refined their powder, and ordered the master workman to make it good, never stinting him. Made 28 $\frac{1}{2}$ barrels of a ton of double or treble refined petre. Protested against the Hamburg powder, knowing it was made of bad materials, and could not be made good, and the master gunner said it would be better cast into the Thames, for the stores would not be clear of it for 20 years. All the mischief has been through this powder, and some wetted with salt water. Also to the effect of part of the preceding. Begs not to be obliged to mend the powder for nothing, nor to have a dividend made upon him for what was formerly spent. [2 pages.]

April 15? 61. Petition of Rob. Davis, Thos. Carter, Chris. Eyless, and John Knapp to the Committee of Council on the business of gunpowder. In 1653, when the State had great need of gunpowder, they spent large sums in making it; three of them being ignorant of the art of making it, contracted with the other, Rob. Davis, on better terms than he had from others, and he made new powder and repaired the old, at far greater rates than now, for several years together, he having all materials allowed. Davis has done his best without fraud to make the powder, and to remake what was found not Tower proof. What has lately been found defective is what they got from Hamburg; what they have made new they warrant to last 2 years. They have supplied none since 1653, except a little in 1654, which is good; so far from defrauding the State, they have been great losers in what they have undertaken. Beg not to be altogether discouraged from service. [1 page.]

April 15? 62. Petition of Wm. Molins, Rob. Davis, Abel Richardson, and Thos. Carter to the Admiralty Commissioners. Some of the powder delivered in by them has continued good since 1653 and 1654, but will not now bear the same strength of proof as when first delivered, and yet they are required to change it for as much new powder. Disbursed large sums in erecting mills when the State stood in much need of powder, and had 2,000 barrels of Hamburg and some decayed powder delivered them, which they could not make as good as new, and this they believe to be the powder that proves defective; they declared beforehand, as did the ordnance officers, that it would not last. Think they should only make good as many barrels as are in excess of the Hamburg and other decayed powder. [1 page.]

April 15? 63. Petition of Wm. Molins and Abel Richardson to the Committee for powder. Having a commission to make English saltpetre, and having contracted to make it into powder at 30 barrels the ton, we entered into partnership with John Jarvis, of Casholton Mills, to make it, having then no skill therein, and supposed the undertaking was fully provided for. But on second proof, a defect appears in the powder delivered. We always offered to exchange any saltpetre against which the workmen objected, and to bear our part of the waste of double refining. Jarvis provided the other ingredients, and the work was managed by him, Lewis Fassam, and John Pepper, who now beg to acquit themselves by pretending they were forced into an engagement to which they consented willingly. We offer to repair our proportion of defective powder, saving our remedy at law against Jarvis, and beg a favourable construction of complaints against us by those who wish to free themselves. Order in Council, on report from the Admiralty Commissioners according to an order of 10 April of the several conditions and actings of the powder makers, that the former Committee on the business consider the report, and send for Dan. 64. Report alluded to on the several powder makers. Josias Dewy ; his powder generally good, of 805 barrels delivered by him, which were tried, only 141 were defective.

John Samyne, the same ; 1,132 barrels tried, 536 defective. The State owes him large sums, for want of which he has suffered much, and he has repaired a great quantity of powder.

John Freeman ; 586 barrels tried, defective 263.

Thos. Carter and partners ; of 385 tried, 232 defective. Some of them plead ignorance, and transfer the fault to Davis, the partner who managed the work.

Dan. Judd is one of the most guilty ; of 261 barrels tried 139 were defective.

Wm. Molins and partners willingly exposed the State to hazard by making the powder of bad materials ; of 384 tried, 293 were defective.

Mr. Wich had 209 tried, of which 120 were defective. [1 page.]

Order on report from the Scotch Committee on a letter from the Council in Scotland of Feb. 21 1655-6, concerning the differences between debtors and creditors in Scotland, on consideration whereof it appears the laws of Scotland are very rigorous against debtors, and if so left, will ruin many and their families, especially since the lack of money occasioned by the late war;—that creditors may not be dissatisfied, wanting their money, the annexed expedient for securing the peace of the nation was read, approved, and agreed to.

21. Order for the relief of debtors willing to satisfy their just debts, and for moderating the rigour of comprisings, and the severity of proceedings by creditors against debtors in Scotland:—

That every debtor of Scotland—giving in a list of his just debts to the Commissioners for Administration of Justice, and swearing his inability to pay in money or personal estate, and declaring that he has lands or other real estate, which he is willing to have set out in compensation to his creditors, and valued by indifferent persons appointed by the Commissioners;—if he swear that they are sufficient to satisfy the debt, principal, interest, and charges, it shall be allowed, and he shall convey the lands to the creditors according to priority.

In such cases, and to such persons (principals as well as cautioners), the Commissioners are empowered to grant suspensions for a convenient time, not more than a year after date thereof, and to do all necessary to put the premises into execution, providing that the debtors, &c., do it at their own expense, and that the lands, &c., so conveyed be completely settled within a year from the suspension; otherwise the benefits claimed will be null, unless the Commissioners find the delay has not been caused by the debtors:

Provided that these presents shall not have force to stay the executions of the creditors against the personal or moveable estate of debtors, wheresoever it can be found, before the settlement of the lands, tithes, or other real estate, nor hinder any whose principal debts amount to not more than 1,000 marks Scotch money from liberty to proceed in execution against the debtors or their estates, or at their own choosing to have the benefit of these presents, and come in with other creditors:

Provided that where the lands, &c., of debtors are insufficient to pay the creditors, they be equally divided pro rata portionis between all the creditors, allowing only to such as have the prior diligence their proportions respectively, and their charges in obtaining the said diligences, excepting all comprisings whereof the legals have already expired; also all comprisings deduced before May 1, 1652, and all final transactions, &c., thereon:

Provided that debtors' lands, &c., nearest the creditor's dwelling, and lying nearest the Lowlands, be first set out and conveyed, unless the creditor desires to have them in the Highlands:

Provided that debtors not seeking the benefit of these presents within a year from now be not allowed to do so hereafter. Approved 12 May.

Pres. Lawrence to the Lord-Deputy and Council of Ireland. A petition has been exhibited to the Protector by Dame Katherine, widow of Sir Alex. 68. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Col. Jno. Clerke. Particulars of ships. I will proceed with the 2nd rate ships. The only commanders I can recommend are Capt. Badiley, master attendant at Woolwich, Capts. Plumleigh, Potter, and Heaton, and the master of the Constant Warwick. The Friendship of Plymouth, bound to Ireland with salt and deals, was taken off Scilly by Nich. Hayes, an Irishman holding a commission from James, Duke of York, who put his quartermaster, Harry Wade, and 6 others, 4 being desperate Irishmen, into her, with an order to carry her to St. Sebastian's for condemnation. Wade, who had formerly been pilot of a vessel of London bound to Portugal, which the Bresters had taken, wanting water on the way to St. Sebastian's, sent two of the Irishmen in a boat to one of the islands, and when they were gone, seized and bound the 2 other Irishmen, bound these on their return, and when the wind was fair, gave them a boat to go on shore, and then put for Plymouth, where they now are. There are several of the enemy both within and without the Channel, so that a great stop is put to trade. The merchants from all places crave convoy; I supply it as far as I can, but more vessels are needed. I suppose you feel the Spanish war already in the Customs, and it will be felt much more if trade is not secured. [2 pages.] Annexing,

69, 70. Petition of Edw. Nevey to the Protector. The late Rob. Mason of Lincoln's Inn, on his marriage with my mother Hester Nevey, promised me 1,000 marks when I was of age, and left it me by will, having a good estate. But his son and executor Robert has only paid me 66, with interest since it was due, 4 years ago, and he being outlawed for high treason, I am deprived of the money which is my whole livelihood. I beg that the balance may be charged on the estate. With reference 3 March 1655-6 to 3 of the Commissioners

April 16. 71. Certificate of Thos. Dunn, registrar for receiving appearances in the city of London, to the Protector and Council. On your order of 22 Jan., I have spent much time in finding a house fit for my office; there was one in Dorset Court at 70*l.*, but I feared you would think the rent too large; I cannot find anything at less rent than one in Fleet Street at 60*l.*, which I have agreed for, but meanwhile have to pay 52*l.* for 2 or 3 rooms in a house in that street. I beg allowance of the rent, and also, having had a trial of the work, I find I shall need 3 clerks, with allowance for fire, stationery, &c., from Nov. last. The deputy and clerks have received fees volunteered by some gentlemen, though told plainly fees are not to be paid. [2 pages.]

April 16. Order thereon in Council that 60*l.* be allowed for the rent of the house, and that, besides Dunn's salary of 300*l.* a year, he be allowed 40*l.* a year for a clerk. Approved 26 April. [I. 77, pp. 49-50.]

1. Aldermen Thos. Foote and John Kendrick, and — Frederick, sheriff of London and Middlesex, to be added to the Commissioners for securing the peace in London. Approved 26 April.

2. Ald. Fowke and the 2 sheriffs of London, being at the door, were called in, and said that the Lord Mayor and court of freemen had sent them to say that there are 300 sail of ships at Newcastle to take in coal, but they are hindered by some new imposition of the hostmen, which has already raised the price of coal here, and unless quickly remedied, will prove very prejudicial to the city and especially to the poor. They therefore pray some course that the ships may be speedily despatched with coal at last year's rates, and the new imposition examined into.

3. Order—on report from the Committee on the petition of the captains, masters, and owners of ships trading to Newcastle for coals, complaining that the price on the river Tyne, which was 10*d.* a chaldron, has in the two last years been raised to 12*d.*; and that the fare for each keel carrying 8 chaldrons to the ship has been raised by the hostmen from 7*s.* to 9*s.*, and since to 12*s.* a keel, and by a resolution given to the petitioners on April 3, has been again raised to 21*s.* 4*d.*, which will advance the price of coal 4*s.* 8*d.* a chaldron, and thus many ships be unladen, &c., and the coal trade much obstructed,—that the corporation of hostmen be enjoined to allow all ships trading to Newcastle for coal to lade for the next 6 months, or while the matter is still depending before Council, at the same rate of coal and fare of keel as in April 1655; and that the hostmen come or send deputies to Council on May 21st next, that the matter may be settled, when the traders are also to appear with their complaints, and any gentlemen owners of mines concerned may come or send, if they have anything to offer. Annexing,

No coals can be sold without a hostman, and they prevent bad coals being sent abroad. [1½ pages.]

74. Capt. Dan. Baker to the Admiralty Commissioners. On your late order, I convoyed all the vessels ready for the Downs, being 8, and delivered them to Capt. Whitehorn. While going over, near the Isle of Wight, I met the same pirate I engaged with on the 11th; I bade my convoys keep together and stand to their course, and spread my colours, and we exchanged shots, but I thought it best to keep with my charge, as there was a vast disproportion between us in reference to force; nevertheless, if he had followed, I would have done my utmost for defence and security of my convoys, but he did not attempt it. I met Capt. Whitehorn plying westward near Dover Road, and he declared to me the necessity for his proceedings, and demanded my aid in carrying on the present expedition. I freely gave my consent, being only too glad to do anything that may tend to the service of the Commonwealth. [1 page.]

85. Capt. Wm. Whitehorn to the Admiralty Commissioners. This day I met Vice-Adm. De Ruyter from Cadiz, with 8 men-of-war, a fire ship, 3 merchantmen which he convoyed, and several Englishmen and Hamburgers, as also 4 or 5 Biscaneers bound for Bilboa, who parted with him near the Bay. He was very submissive; I kept him under my command 6 or 7 hours with his whole fleet, although it was very thick weather. I did not think fit to engage with him in regard to his numbers, as there was no ship that I could challenge as an Ostender or Dunkirker, and he said he had none. He would not part with his convoys unless I forced him. Cornelius Everson is now at Cadiz, and will be homeward bound with several ships in 3 weeks. Only 2 of the plate ships have come, 3 having foundered at sea, and they daily look for 18 sail, which may be the fleet of 26 or 28 sail seen by the Hunter off the Northern Cape. 85. I. Capt. Wm. Whitehorn to Vice-Adm. De Ruyter. I hope you will not break the happy peace between us, as I only demand the merchant ships that came with you from Cadiz; but if not complied with, I must use force, which I am very unwilling to do. I hope you will not cause the spilling of any more blood, and do what you cannot answer hereafter; but the State has intelligence that the ships under your convoy have plate and money for our enemies, which I cannot let pass. 19 April 1656. 86. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to Col. Jno. Clerke. Being at Exeter on public business, and to meet Capt. Pley respecting the survey at Dartmouth, I heard of the great loss sustained by the taking of Beare, who was deemed a champion of Weymouth, or of Lyme, where he lived, without firing a shot. It seems strange that those who were employed as factors and master should put such a value (8,000*l.*) under convoy of such a vessel as the Hopewell pink, knowing the many men-of-war there were in the Channel. To prevent such losses, I suggest that for the future all vessels which trade to France be forbidden to go or come without convoy; that convoy be allowed for Newhaven, St. Malo, and Morlaix 4 times yearly, and 3 times for Nantes, Rochelle, Bordeaux, and thereabouts, and for other places as shall be thought fit. This would induce the traders to go and come together, and also be a benefit to the State in the Customs and Excise, which sustain great losses by those that flirt to and again in small vessels, and deceive them of most thereof. By these means you would quickly lessen the enemy. The convoys to be granted ought to be such as can go and return safely.

The Sorlings and Bryer have returned from convoying the vessels for St. Malo and Morlaix, and want victuals, but knowing they were wanted on their return to convoy some vessels from Plymouth, Dartmouth, and Exeter to Newhaven, with goods valued at 20,000*l.* or more, as also from those places to London, to the value of 10,000*l.* or more, I left orders for their supply before going to Exeter. I intended the Bryer and Truelove to convoy those to Newhaven, and the Sorlings those to the Downs; but as the Pembroke has put into the Sound, with the Marigold and other victuallers under her convoy, I purpose to join her to the Sorlings, there still being many of the enemies' men-of-war in the Channel, and to give the charge of the Marigold and the others to Capt. Potter, to convoy them to the Soundings. Particulars of ships. [2 pages.]

87. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. There is a captain of a man-of-war of St. Sebastian's in the Castle, and I will keep him safe until further order, as Capt. Sydrach Blake is still a prisoner at St. Sebastian's. When at Exeter, I saw an order of Council for setting at liberty Beach's wife, who undertook to procure the enlargement of Capt. S. Blake, but there can be little dependence placed upon her, unless she has given security. Beach boasts that he walked out of prison undiscovered, by putting on a suit of black and a periwig that his wife brought him. I hear from Capts. Morris and Parker, lately returned from convoying some vessels to St. Malo and Morlaix, that they spoke at St. Malo with Mr. Bee're, who was taken while under convoy of the Hopewell pink; they offered, if he would accompany them with 6 or 7 others they had under convoy to Morlaix, to see him safely back to England.

As our stock is diminished and the enemies encouraged to greater mischief by the riches they take, and most of this caused by the carelessness of the masters of merchant vessels, I propose that all those who trade with France (Marseilles and Toulon excepted) be inhibited either to go or come without convoy, and that convoy be allowed to those trading from Morlaix eastward 4 or 5 times a year, and from Nantes, Rochelle, &c., 3 times a year, by which means the enemy on the coast will be deprived of their greatest hopes. The Morlaix, St. Malo, and Newhaven vessels are generally small, and the Ostenders and Dunkirkers being the same, lie about the rocks hidden, so that few can escape them without convoy.

Particulars of ships and convoys and of officers wanted. [2½ pages.]

many columns in one face as might take both parts, not tying this edition to the Antwerp copy. The Rome (?) copy is printed with the differences of the copy at St. James's, and for the Chaldee paraphrase of that copy, that of Broxdorf, reserving to the end a list of the differences. The Æthiopic of the Psalter and Canticle is added. The intent is to add it in the New Testament, translated into Latin, also Jonathan's Targum on the Law, and the Persian, with their translations in Latin, though not in columns, because there were so many before. The government is in Dr. Walton, who has for the Hebrew and Chaldee Mr. Clarke, for the Syriac and Arabic Mr. Castle, with a third for the Greek and Latin. The purpose is to give what England affords for the verifying of the several copies; so the Greek of Albus and of Antwerp is compared, and the differences listed.

In the Syriac we have written copies, which are compared to the same purpose. If M. Capel move anything to make the work more useful, I will promote it. [1 page; damaged.]

April 22. 89. Petition of Col. Edm. Harvey, Rob. Tichborne, and Mark Hil-desley, late Commissioners of Customs, to the Protector and Council. By your order of 15 April, we are to perfect our accounts with your auditor. We would gladly do it if we could, but,

The books and vouchers of the cash and account were not delivered till 12 and 19 April, and some are still in Mr. Whittell's hands as not inventoried, and the cash book cannot be posted up till examined with the ledgers kept by the accountant. 8. Order on report from the Excise Commissioners according to an order of March 15, 1654–5, on the paper signed by Thos. Brookes on behalf of Matt. Young, and on Young's petition—the Commissioners certifying that Thos. Young, Rob. Smyth, and Rich. Pym farmed the excise in Kent for one year, from June 24, 1652 to 1653, at the rent of 12,525*l.*, which is paid; and that Thos. Young alone farmed it for one quarter, ending 29 Sept. 1653, at the rent of 2,100*l.*, being 531*l.* less than the rent of any preceding quarter, for payment of which rent and performance of articles Matt. Young became bound with the said Thomas, for which rent there yet remains due 1,475*l.* 5*s.* 0*d.* and interest at 6 per cent. amounting to 200*l.* 0*s.* 9*d.*, in all 1,675*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* The Commissioners also finding by a report from Commissary-Gen. Whalley and Col. Goffe, on a reference to them from his Highness, that it appears by a certificate from Fras. Allen, alderman of London, that he, by warrants from the Committee of Lords and Commons for the safety of the kingdom, and from Lord Gen. Essex delivered 604 quarters of oats in the custody of Thos. Manley in the Mews, and it was ordered by the Commons in Parliament, Nov. 29, 1652, that the moneys due to Manley, the purveyor who provided those oats, should be paid from the Exchequer, and it appearing by certificate from Falconbridge that no money was paid Manley for the oats. Also finding by another certificate that, on an order from the Commons of Aug. 16, 1644, directed to Wm. Cross, for issuing forth the oats of Thos. Manley, seized at St. Katherine's, to Alex. Bence and Sam. Vassall, aboard the Dolphin, and the Star, he finds 512 quarters of oats were delivered; also that Thos. Manley, junr., son and executor of the purveyor, by a poll-deed of Dec. 1653, assigned all the benefit of the said oats to Mat. Young for a debt of 800*l.* owing to him for a marriage portion from Thos. Manley, which oats being 1,116 quarters, the Commissioners, on enquiry made concerning the price of oats in 1642–44, estimate it at 12*s.* the quarter at the time of sale, amounting to 669*l.* 12*s.* 0*d.*, and with interest at 6 per cent. to 1,154*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.*—That Mat. Young pay to the Excise Treasury 521*l.* 3*s.* 9*d.*, being the surplusage with interest of the rent arrears, over and above the 1154*l.* 2*s.* 0*d.* due for the oats; and that his Highness issue warrants to the Treasury Commissioners to strike a tally in the Exchequer for the whole 1,675*l.* 5*s.* 9*d.* arrear of rent with interest, and that the bond of Thos. and Mat. Young, Rob. Smith, and Rich. Pym be delivered them to be cancelled, and the production of the tally be sufficient warrant and discharge for the money, and delivering up the bond; before the tally is struck, Mat. Young and Thos. Dr. Wilkins has married Mrs. French, the Protector's sister. This year's proctors are Littleton of All Souls and Carpenter of Christchurch.

An Act has passed Convocation to take away collectors in Lent, and 2 ordinary bachelors are to be deputed to order their determining in the schools, like to the collectors of Austin's.

Our public acts are like to go down, i.e., no doctors in any faculty to answer them, nor to keep any terræ-filius, and union of the Acts, and modo replicavit to be quite taken away, and only some philosophy disputations, at the same time with Cambridge commencement, to prevent resort of company hither. The old stone pulpit of St. Mary's is taken down, and a large new one of wood erected. We have no divinity reader this year, nor any election, either of fellows or tabitors. Private news; Sir Fras. Norris has sent a letter would load a horse. [1 page.]

April 23. 92. Petition of John Streater, and others concerned in printing the Bible, to the Protector. We have seen your order that the copy of the Bible should be entered in the register book of the Stationers' Company to John Field and Hen. Hill. We beg to inform you—

1. That the copy is not the right of Barker, but of Bill, and was only in Barker's hands in trust for Bill.

2. That this order will lay us open to be sued by Field and Hill for 6s. 8d. on every book we possess by virtue of the Act of 20 Sept. 1649, by which Act thousands may also be recovered of the Stationers' Company, Miles Fletcher, Roger Norton, and Roger Daniell, who have all engaged great stocks in printing the Bible. We beg a hearing, and time for perfecting impressions, and selling stock, before the Bible be entered to any particular persons, and a proviso as granted in divers other statutes, allowing the sale of goods in hand at the time of the prohibition. 96, 97. Petition of Capt. John Baskett, late governor of Cowes Castle, Isle of Wight, to the Protector. I was one of the first that took arms in 1642, and was not the least in securing the Isle of Wight. When the Earl of Essex was defeated in the West, 5 companies were commanded out of the island to relieve Plymouth, but the others threw down their arms, and I carried my company into Plymouth, and did good service in the siege. I mortgaged my estate for 600*l.* to raise my company, and maintained myself in the service.

I did singular service at Bridgewater, Bristol, Hereford, &c., and when Col. Birch deserted the engagement in 1647, I came away to the army, was with Col. Hammond in the Isle of Wight all the time the King was there, for 8*d.* a day, and though I brought money to redeem my estate, my charges were such that they brought me further into debt, and it is still unredeemed. I was most instrumental in preventing the King's escape, and bringing him to justice.

I have ever since been faithful, and spent 200*l.* on the garrison, which I cannot get back, yet I am without cause put from my command, and a most inconsiderable person put in my place, to the utter undoing of me and my family, and I presume without your knowledge. I beg restoration to my command at Cowes, though but for a month, that my honour may be vindicated, and then I shall be willing to serve elsewhere; also repayment of the 200*l.*, and leave to speak with you. With reference thereon to Lambert, Fleetwood, and Sydenham, 18 Jan. 1655-6; their report in favour of the payment of the 200*l.*, and further reference, 23 April 1656, to Council, to order payment. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings (cont.)

102. Report from the Admiralty Commissioners, on the reference of 22 April, on the petition of Elizabeth, wife of Roger Beerè, late commander of the Malo merchant, now prisoner in Dunkirk, that Beere behaved unworthily, by delivering up his ship without the least resistance, though the Hope-well pink was coming up to his defence; also by persisting in sailing with a weak convoy, though 2 frigates offered him a stronger one, if he would sail with them to Morlaix and thence to England. That the Commissioners think the exchanging of merchant seamen for those of men-of-war taken is prejudicial, as it makes traders go into desperate adventures, when they can be so soon redeemed, and recruits the enemy's strength.

The Commissioners also desire a more particular intimation of Council's pleasure about the quality and force of the vessel to be provided for the West Indies. [1 page.]

13. Order—on report from the Admiralty Commissioners that since the beginning of the war with Spain, many ill affected of this nation have acted with hostility, and committed piracy, and have entered themselves aboard ships of war belonging to Spain, receiving commissions from Charles Stuart, and James, his brother, and have surprised English merchant ships laden with goods, and committed several abuses, to the damage of individuals and the prejudice of trade;—for timely redress whereof, since, by an Act of April 1650, all English mariners serving abroad under any foreign prince were to withdraw and return to England within 4 months, and not take foreign service again without licence, under pain of death;—that his Highness be advised to declare by proclamation that no native of England, Scotland, or Ireland, found bearing arms against the Commonwealth on any Spanish ship, pirate ship, or vessel, by commission from Charles or James Stuart, shall, on being taken by a Commonwealth ship, receive quarter; and that the Generals at sea and Admiralty Commissioners be authorised to proceed accordingly. Approved 26 April.

14. Order—on report from the Admiralty Commissioners that according to former directions 4 advice boats were built, which are now plying in the Channel with 48 men and 8 guns each, viz.,—the Eaglet, between Dunkirk and Ostend; the Hawk, between Beachy and the Ness; the Roebuck, about Lynn Deep; and the Hind, between Harwich and Orfordness; beside several small vessels provided and sent along with the fleet under Gen. Blake and Gen. Montague; and the Raven, a small vessel now ready at Plymouth;—that the Commissioners return to Council a list of the war vessels bearing 14 guns, with their several stations, and consider how a convenient number of them may be disposed about Portsmouth and Plymouth, to be always ready to start from thence on service.

Thanks for your giving us till Tuesday to exhibit our account to 29 Sept. last, but we find our late cashier has so complicated it with that up to 25 March, that we could not have it ready in less than 3 weeks, so we beg a month, when we will have that and the account to 25 March ready. April 25. 107. Petition of Capt. John Hunt, in Col. Rich. Ingoldsby's regiment, and Capt. Edw. Botsford to the Protector. On 13 July 1654 I, Hunt, petitioned and had a report that no way was so fit for my relief as discoveries, but as the late Parliament was near sitting, and you were full of business, you quieted me for the present, promising to be mindful of me.

I, Botsford, served in both wars, till the disbanding of part of Col. Haines' regiment in Jersey, and on 26 July last, on your order to the Committee for Accounts, &c., they certified 1,300*l.* due from Peter Evans on my discovery. This discovery I have prosecuted 2 years, and have been a long time prisoner in the Fleet, my debts being 2,400*l.*

That Hunt should be paid his just debts out of the discovery of Peter Evans, according to a report on a petition of Capt. Hunt and Capt. Edw. Botsford, and some one appointed to receive the discovery and pay him. Also that he should be paid for his great losses from other discoveries.* [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

[April 25.] 109. Petition of William, Earl of Lothian, to the Protector. By an Act of Parliament of Scotland of 5 July 1650, there is due to the Earl of Cassilis, Alex. Brodie [of Brodie], George Windram [of Liberton], Sir John Smith [of Grottale], Alex. Jeffray [provost of Aberdeen], and myself 9,000*l.*, which we have power to levy from the shires and boroughs of Scotland, and to appoint collectors therefor; this we did till disturbed by the late troubles, and by an order from the English Parliament Commissioners at Dalkeith, discharging any general collection without particular order, although this being a private debt, we have a right to it by law. We beg discharge of this restraint, and leave to levy the money. [1 page.] Annexing,

[April 25.] 110. Statement by the Earl of Lothian to Lord ——— of his services and claims, giving the following additional particulars. I was Governor of Newcastle 1640 and 1641, paying all dues and taking no quarter, and then Lieut.-General of the Scots' army into Ireland, but receiving no pay; I was also President of the Committees that were with the Scots' armies 1645 to 1647. With particulars of his several requests as given in his petitions. [1 page.]

April 25. Order in Council—on a report from the Committee for Scotland, that in 1650, John, Earl of Cassilis, William, Earl of Lothian, and the 4 others named, were sent Commissioners from the Parliament of Scotland to Holland, to the late King of Scots, and borrowed there by warrant of Parliament and on the public faith 9,000*l.* to furnish the King with provisions, and gave their own security therefor, which debt was charged by Parliament as an assessment on the shires and burghs of Scotland, and part levied—that the Commissioners in Scotland give warrant for calling in that part of the debt which is already levied, and for levying the remainder.

Order—on a like report that the said persons borrowed 7,500*l.* which is raised by interest to 9,000*l.*, and that the Holland merchants are recovering the debts by law from the said persons, to their great prejudice, and that no other way appears for the redress of the said Commissioners but by payment from the moneys to be so levied—that the said sum shall be so levied, and the debt discharged. I think the situation of the school is very inconvenient, being so remote from houses, and it would be much more convenient, especially in winter, at Pwllheli; but I do not know whether by will it can be done, as the testator wished the school, "if it may be," to be in Melltyrn or Bottwonnog parish. 23 April 1656. 117. Capt. Hen. Hatsell to the Admiralty Commissioners. I received yours desiring to know how the western parts may be associated in relation to convoys. The greatest trade for St. Malo and Morlaix is from Lyme, Topsham, and Dartmouth, who might have notice to prepare their vessels together and go under one convoy, but two or three vessels will be needful for their security, as they are numerous. The 5 frigates are now gone as convoys to Newhaven or London, but will return to their stations between Portland and Land's End

If vessels may not go without convoy, there will be 20 ready at once, and then on notice they should be taken to St. Malo or Morlaix, and fetched back when reladen. There are now several richly laden at Morlaix to come back, for which convoy is earnestly desired, and there will soon be some at St. Malo, richly laden, as this is the chief time of the year for cloth. The Dunkirk and Ostend men-of-war are probably lying in wait for them. I shall write to the merchants not to stir without convoy, and send the Sorlings for them on her return. Plymouth is the most convenient place for a rendezvous for Topsham and Dartmouth vessels trading to Nantes or Bordeaux. The ships for Newhaven are rich cloth ships, and go 4 or 5 times a year, those from Spain, Portugal, and the Straits only twice, and the frigates ranging the coast might convoy them. [2 pages.]

April 28. 118. Capt. Rich Pettock to the Admiralty Commissioners. While attending, as ordered, the Broadhempson and Hastings fishermen at the North Foreland, I met a Dunkirk man-of-war near Pevensey, with whom I was engaged for an hour, and after my sails and rigging had been shot away, and several of my men were wounded, he boarded us with 100 men, and we surrendered, and were carried to Dunkirk, where I and my company of 37 persons are now prisoners. The Lords of Dunkirk will release the rest, but keep me prisoner till they receive the same number of their men from England. The Lords say that there are 2 of their captains with all their companies in York prison, and that if these are set at liberty, they will ever hereafter set at liberty all the English they have in Flanders. [1 page.]

April 29. 119. Thos. White, Mayor, to the Admiralty Commissioners. The 36 seamen of the Cat Pink, taken by a Dunkirk man-of-war, have just arrived from Dunkirk in the packet boat, but Capt. Pettock is detained in prison there until as many of their seamen, together with a captain, are sent back in exchange, as there is one of their captains in prison in York; I entreat that he may be sent over so as to release Pettock. April 29. 120. Petition of John Fox and the garrison of Pendennis to the Protector. On the late reducement our chaplain was removed, and we have no ministry within 2 or 3 miles, which, if we attended, the enemy might take advantage. We beseech you to further the interest of our poor souls by settling a minister among us. With reference to Council, 24 April 1656. 149 signatures, 56 being by mark. [1 sheet.]

April 29. 121. Petition of the Committee for receiving the accounts of the Commonwealth to the Protector. In Nov. 1652 we represented to Parliament our powers, our obstructions, and our services without salary or allowance. The case was referred to the Committee for Petitions and by them to a sub-committee, who reported that we had served $3\frac{1}{4}$ years and examined accounts amounting to 1,800,000*l.* without pay. Upon this the Committee for Petitions reported their opinion that John Greensmith and the 6 other members of the Committee should be allowed 200*l.* a year each for 3 years ending 11 Oct. 1652, in Irish or Scotch lands, and from 11 Oct. 1652 as long as they continue in office 200*l.* a year from the Treasury. This was to be reported to Parliament, but it rising before report was made, they have only had 200*l.* each on a Council of State order, which also made a proviso for the same payment to Thos. Richardson, one of their members, called to service in Ireland. 6 signatures. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

April 29. 125. Petition of Capt. Wm. Beck to the Protector. I was 6 years commander of ships for the State. Last year, being master and part owner of the Hopeful William of London, I went to St. Sebastian's. I was there embargoed from 30 Aug. to 9 Dec. 1655, and then my ship and goods, value 500*l.* were seized; I escaped, was brought by a Frenchman to Rochelle, and thence came to England Jan. 1655-6. I beg for my losses letters of reprisal against the Spaniards, or authority to seize such Spanish goods as I can discover. Also the command of a ship for present subsistence. With reference thereon to the Privy Council, 14 March 1655-6. [1 page.]

April ? 126. Petition of Capt. Wm. Beck to the Protector and Council. I deserted merchandizing to my great prejudice, and engaged with the Trinity House against the revolvers, gaining over many seamen and doing much service, and have commanded several vessels and been in 3 engagements with the Dutch. That service being over, I returned to the merchandizing, and bought and freighted the Hopeful William for St. Sebastian's. There she was seized last August by the ministers of the King of Spain, and I stripped of all, on pretext of damages done to the King by English ships in the West Indies. By this I lost 800*l.*, and my losses by servants, clothes, instruments, charges, debts, and interest since are 800*l.* more. Being in great extremity, I beg an order to the Admiralty Judges to set out a man-of-war to seize ships belonging to the King of Spain, till I have repaired my losses. [1 page.] Annexing,

128. Capt. Wm. Whitehorn to the Admiralty Commissioners. I have ordered the Redhorse pink to ply off the North Foreland with the fishermen, and sent the Pembroke with a convoy for Calais, and then to ply in the Narrow, until the Amsterdam ships are ready, and sent the Sparrow to Dover to clean. I hear from Mr. White at Dover that the packet boat has brought over 36 men belonging to the Cat pink, and that the captain is detained until another is sent in exchange. The ship that took her had 22 guns and 180 men; she defended herself very bravely until her masts were shot by the board, and then she was overpowered by the number of men. I will distribute these 36 men in the ships. The Hastings and Brighton fishermen are much dismayed at the loss of the pink, and none will go out without two convoys. I will content them if possible by sending another vessel to the Redhorse pink, and shall endeavour the same for Rye and Hastings. When more frigates come, I will keep two in the Narrow, and do my best to protect trade. I have much to do with vessels about convoys. [1 page.]

129. Petition of Wm. Maister, mayor of Hull, Thos. Raikes and 23 merchants and mariners of Hull, for themselves and the merchants of York trading to the East Country, to the Admiralty Commissioners. Most of our trade is the vending cloth, new draperies, &c., to the Baltic ports, Sweden, and Norway; but by reason of pirates, our ships, richly laden, may be surprised without convoy. We beseech you to order us a standing convoy, to be at disposal of the mayor and Major Elton, deputy governor, and to send us one speedily, as we have ships here laden for the East Country, and ships there waiting to return. 25 signatures. 4. III. *Report, signed by Miles Fleetwood, Capt. Griffith Lloyd, Rob. Jenkinson, and John Cary, that the forest, containing 16 miles, consists, beside common land, of 39 coppices, whereof 18 belong to the State, and 21 are not rightly part of the forest, though the deer pasture there; of these 21, 10 belonged to Lord Craven, and sold, on sale of his lands, for 3,017l., which the purchasers are willing to exchange for other of his lands of like value, and to pay in 200l. which they have received for sale of underwood. That the other owners of coppices are also willing to treat for their sale. The wall will cost the State 700l. to finish, on the former conditions, viz., the owners of inheritance-lands to dig the stone, the tenants to carry it, the King to build the wall. That the Drury House Trustees should settle the exchange of lands, and all officers concerned see to the perfecting of the wall, and part of the money be raised by sale of the coppice woods. The draft of an order prepared by Dr. Walker on the order of 15 Feb. last, agreed to, viz.: On information from the Commissioners of Prize Goods that before the universal reprisals against the King of Spain, there were several orders in the Admiralty Court for restitution of goods and proceeds of goods to Spaniards and Flandrians, which have not been executed on account of the said difference, his Highness and Council, considering that the King of Spain has not only made declaration and done open acts of hostility against these nations, but has seized the goods of the English in his dominions, and imprisoned them, think it just that seizures should be made in the Admiralty Court of all goods and proceeds of goods ordered to be restored to the King of Spain's subjects, and that they should be confiscated, according to the course of that Court in cases of universal reprisal; and his Highness's advocate is to move the said Court for the said seizures, and the Commissioners for Prize Goods are to deliver him written particulars of them. 9. Petition of the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers to the Protector. We have prosecuted Thos. Baker in the Exchequer, to recover large sums detained by him for first fruits, and also the ledger, books, evidences, records, and bonds about that revenue in his custody. He was adjudged to be sent to the Fleet for 4 insufficient answers to our bill, and for refusing to deliver up the books, &c., but he has concealed himself, and he prints and publishes scandalous papers, to obstruct us in receipt of the revenue, and to affright ministers from payment of their first fruits to us. Also by having the bonds in his hands, he procures first fruits to be paid to him. Thus the heads of the Universities, to whom they are chiefly reserved, cannot receive their augmentations. We beg your assistance to bring him to conformity, and obtain the books, &c. [1 page.]

11. Petition of Wm. Coxiter, master, and John Chadwick, merchant, of the Mary of London, to the Protector. Sailing for Teneriffe in October, I, Coxiter, called at Santa Cruz for directions from Don Simon de Herara, to whom the goods and ship were consigned. There we were forcibly taken into the port by a bark, and the captain of the castle committed us 10 days prisoners, without food or beds. He also boarded the ship, and though no resistance was made, wounded several of the men, and brought the ship into harbour, where it still remains. I begged his testimony how the ship was taken, and restoration of clothes, books, and papers; also payment of the freight towards our maintenance, which was refused, and we hardly escaped with our lives. I beg that as some Spaniards in London refuse to pay freights for their goods which I carried over, and I suspect that they designed to betray me, as I was stopped before the embargo, and 8 miles from any harbour, I may have satisfaction from estates of the King of Spain's subjects here on my discovery thereof; or employment, being experienced in the language, or letters of marque, or some relief. I beg that these latter may be returned, and the office books, &c., not put into the hands of my adversaries, but inventoried and secured in the hands of the clerk of Council, that I may have access to them to defend myself against unjust suits, and clear my accounts. 3 copies. The Speaker, before Cadiz.

17. Thos. Pointer to the Navy Commissioners. Those in the fleet regret being idle. When we left England we expected to have done great things, and should have done but for slackness and false intelligence. The Spaniard keeps his fleet in, is strengthening his garrisons, and does not intend making any attempts upon us, but merely tries to weary us out, and we, with our present strength, are not able to molest him. We are too self-conceited and selfish. Men are troubled for want of prizes, but not that the work of God does not go on, and that we do no service against our enemy, one of the main supporters of the whore of Babylon. England's glory must be performed by England's self-denial.

The Portugal begins to be very jealous of us, and is afraid of his Brazil fleet, which is expected home in six weeks. He has denied the building of an English church in Lisbon, as the Pope and Jesuits will not consent, and no men are allowed to go further on shore than the watering place. The fleet is in good condition, and men healthy. We are expecting ships from Holland, laden with munition, and 2 great Holland merchantmen are stayed on suspicion.

The English fleet is much troubled by 3 gallies that come out of Cadiz every morning in calm weather, and as they keep beyond the guns' range, there has been a great waste of powder and shot on them without anything being done. [1½ pages.]

I hope to hear next post whether the King [of France's] money is current. The provost was here, but he has forgotten to write. [½ page.]

19. Petition of John Frederick, alderman of London, to the Protector. I was ordered to pay the value of the 11 bars of silver into the Exchequer [see 5 March and 18 Dec. 1655], which I have not done, because I claim to be the first discoverer, and made it known to you by your proctor and Col. Cock, and therefore I hope the usual favour of a moiety, considering my loss in buying the ship. I beg you to review the Admiralty report, and the narrative given in by me annexed thereto; also I beg a copy of Lady Darcy's petition, and a hearing before Council. With reference to the Privy Council, 29 April 1656. [1 page.] Annexing,

19. i. Statement before Ri. Tomlyns that on 29 Feb. 1655-6, Nath. Hearne deposed before the Barons of Exchequer, that the Anne, formerly the Mary of St. Malo, being cast away about Birling in Dec. 1654, the owner lost 354l., the loss being the greater because the mariners, having some silver to secure, were diverted from securing the vessel. [Parchment.]

19. II. *Notes on the case. Ald. Frederick waives any claim of his own to the silver in the interest of the State, though he thinks he paid for it in the price of the ship, for Lady Darcy's statement that he bought it cheap is untrue. The information which Frederick gave to his Highness preceded in time that of Lady Darcy, and therefore there is no colour that she should have any part of the value, which was 282l. 3s. 2d., but the expenses, 29l. 15s. 6d., left a balance of 252l. 7s. 8d. May 9. 20. Petition of the inhabitants of West Ardesley, alias Woodkirk parish, to the justices of the peace for the West Riding of co. York. The fair has been yearly kept on 2 days in harvest time, and was formerly for woollen cloth; but since the settling of a cloth market at Wakefield many years ago, no cloth has been brought there, so that it is now a tumultuous meeting of idle persons, where there have been lives lost, and the labourers neglect the harvest. The wares, except a few poor horses, are only peddling goods, which may be bought any market day at Leeds or Wakefield. We beg the suppression of the fair. 30 signatures, 4 being by mark. With note from Thomas Lord Savile and Earl of Sussex to Mr. Tempest, that though the fair is ancient, and belongs to him by charter, the justices can do as they please, for he would not have his profit stand against the good of the country. [1¼ pages.]

May 9. Pres. Lawrence to Lord Savile. His Highness and Council having received the above petition against the fair, doubt not that you, as lord of the place, will dispense with your own interest, and beg you to forbid the fair, and to signify this in the nearest market towns, and request that there may be no more meetings on pretence of the said fair. Wells, captain of a privateer that had weighed anchor with them when they first set sail, ordered them to come aboard him, which they readily did, and shewed their sea passes, letters, and papers, clearly showing they were bound for Portugal only; but nevertheless he detained them and still detains both masters and ships, though the latter are laden in part with corn and other perishable goods;—that the Admiralty Judges and Dr. Walker order the security given by Wells in the Admiralty Court to be put in suit; and if the Admiralty Commissioners find the statements of the petition to be true, they are to take speedy means to release the ships, and to consider the damage sustained, that Wells may give satisfaction for it. In 1643 I was taken to be in the plot of Waller, Tompkins, and Challoner, only for knowing of it, and sequestered till August 1645, when to free myself, I compounded. In your late declaration, you say that if any who have adhered to the late King's party can say with truth that they have changed their interest, and will live peaceably in future, they shall be dealt with accordingly. I have long lived peaceably and paid all taxes, and never bore arms; I was not at all concerned in the late insurrection, and my livelihood depends on my credit, which if involved with that party, will be ruined. I therefore beg to be freed from the present proceedings against delinquents, and to carry on my profession. With reference thereon, 20 Nov. 1655, to Ald. Sir Thos. Vyner and Chris. Proclamation by the Protector:—The merchant adventurers of England have for ages enjoyed privileges here and abroad as a corporation, and on 12 Oct. 1643 Parliament ordained, for the regulation of that ancient and great trade of clothing, that they should continue a corporation, and that none others should trade into the parts limited by their charter on pain of forfeiture of goods, provided they excluded none from their fellowship who desired it by way of redemption, on paying 100*l.* if they be free and inhabitants of London, or if not, 50*l.*

The fellowship is and has been authorized to select places in Germany and the Netherlands, with consent of the chief governors thereof, for their residence and mart, and since the late peace with the States General, they have chosen Dordrecht in Holland for their mart and staple, and have entered into a treaty with it by our consent. We therefore, with the advice of our Council, ratify their charters and treaty, and require all the merchant adventurers in Holland to remove to Dordrecht, and carry on their trade there only. We also forbid the export of the woollen manufactures of England, Scotland, or Ireland, to any other towns in Germany or Holland

7. The Committee for Durham College to meet next Thursday at the place appointed; Col. Lilburne added to the Committee.

10. The Lord Mayor of London and the other Commissioners for regulating printing to cause all copies of "Ex otio negotium, or Martial's epigrams translated"—being stuff tending to the corruption of manners—to be seized and delivered wherever found to the Sheriffs of London and Middlesex, who will order them to be burnt.

11. Mr. Sydenham, Bowes, Hodges, and Fillingham to meet for consideration of the arrears of pay to the forces in America, in the Painted Chamber, Westminster, and those who keep the key of the chamber to take notice.

16. Order, on a letter from the Council in Scotland of 3 Jan. 1655-6, about the several necessary uses of the Great Seal of Scotland, that the Great Seal be forthwith sent to the Council in Scotland, and his Highness advised to appoint Commissioners to keep it, till further consideration is had for its disposal.

18. To advise an order to the Treasury Commissioners to pay 2,000*l.* to John Embree, the surveyor, for repairs of his Highness's houses.

20. To prepare a letter and direct it to those whom Lord Lambert shall appoint, for taking care that the usual oath be administered to such as hold the office of justice of peace in co. York.

21. The report from the Committee of Council on the Exchequer in Scotland,—shewing that they think the commission for establishing an Exchequer Court there is not contrary to the laws of Scotland, but that the proposed additional powers desired are, by Act of the Scottish Parliament in 2 Charles, limited to the Lords of Sessions, and cannot be used by the Exchequer Court,—agreed with, and his Highness to be advised to appoint—

Geo. Smith,	Sir James Lermont, and

41. T. Ross to Nicholas. I rejoice that your health is better, and that you are able to set out for Flanders, where I hope mine will now find you without loss of time. The importance of those I gave the Duke of York may well excuse my application that way, as I knew no other way of sending to the King. The Duke ordered me, and the King fortifies the command, to let him know weekly what I have of consequence. What you say of Armorer's sending a duplicate of those letters to the King might infer levity in me, but I had a letter for him, referring him to those letters, and it being late when I met him, I had to leave them in his hands; if he transcribed them, you must not blame me, nor suppose I imparted it to many because I did to him and the Duke of York.

I have one letter from Hopton since his arrival in England. He and Pile are to follow their business together in the country. I hear nothing of Mart. Clifford and the rest of the perjured promisers. My wife has taken great pains to follow them, and having no one else to write, has ventured to write to you herself, and send you hers to me. Col. Veall is a very worthy person. The Earl of Strafford is going to live in Lancashire, with his wife's mother, and if the King has any business there, I can procure a servant of Lady Strafford's mother, and a confidant of her husband's, to carry the King's commands to Lady Strafford to serve him there. I wrote a fortnight since to Lord Gerard about a young gentleman here, Lady Strafford's brother, whose mother wants me to have his governance, and if the King travels, she would send him with him in a good equipage. Ask Gerard if he had my letter, and let me know his pleasure.

This King is said to go to the campaign next week. Col. Lockhart, the Protector's agent, whose doors here are still shut close, attends him in the army. It is believed the levies in England for this country will come slowly, those for Sweden being more important, and hardly procured, and the Protector recruiting his army, out of which, and some levies formerly made, he has sent in both fleets near 20,000 men, so that it is now difficult to raise men as well as money. I hear that Cromwell is much troubled that he cannot get to know more of the King's affairs. Lambert's clerk is here. I want to know your mind about him. May 20. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

disposed of, to whom, and what debts are charged on it, they recommend you to certify the same to his Highness, that answer may be sent to the King of Sweden. [I. 77, p. 854.]

May 21. 42. Sir Rich. Hare to Williamson. I have but just heard that you have taken goods, value 30*l.*, from Hum. Robinson, bookseller, at the 3 Pigeons, Paul's Churchyard. I have paid him, and now I send you a bill of exchange, which will be paid at Saumur. Send me a receipt, and tell me what you hear from Lady Lowther about her son's allowance, and her intentions concerning him. I have been much away from my sister lately, and am unsettled, and going into Norfolk. Commend me to your sister and my nephew. [1 page.]

May 22. 43. Petition of the master, wardens, and company of gardeners of London to the Protector. King James, by patents of 3 and 14 James, incorporated the gardeners within 6 miles of London, and they drew up regulations for themselves, which were approved by the lord chancellor, lord treasurer, and chief justice; and the late King, 10 Car., by proclamation inhibited several abuses which had crept into the trade. Yet these regulations have long been contemned by persons who have never served as apprentices, nor been admitted to the company, yet use the trade without knowledge, and sell useless and corrupt trees, plants, and seeds, so that the trade is injured, and many who have been apprentices are without a livelihood. Beg that as their trade, if well ordered, is useful in producing food, and setting thousands of poor to work, their charters may be confirmed, and their opponents not allowed the privileges and authority of the company, so that those bred to it may proceed with alacrity. [1 sheet.]

[May 22.] 44. Petition of Col. Edm. Harvey, Ald. Rob. Tichborne, and Mark Hildesley, and of Hildesley as executor of the late Dan. Taylor, Commissioner of Customs, to the Protector. We have delivered the auditors our final account, ending 25 March 1656, which is most sad to us, as it brings us in debtors 23,000*l.*, for which we throw ourselves at your feet. Dan. Taylor being dead, and his heir within age, moneys cannot be raised to pay his share without an extent. We are the first who ever engaged to make good the whole receipt of customs, and in times of great interception of trade with Holland and Portugal, and prohibition of French commodities, we yet improved the customs several hundred thousand pounds. The rest now on our account is the whole arrear of 2,200,000*l.*, and it appears by the account of our predecessors, that in a less sum than a million, 40,000*l.* is lost by the collectors of outports, &c., which they were not obliged to make good. Of our debt of 23,000*l.* there is 4,000*l.* in lands, houses, leases, and fee-farm rents of Capt. Langham's, and 7,000*l.* his debts and security, and 2,000*l.* is still in the hands of our port collectors, which cannot be quickly made money of. The remaining 10,000*l.* will be a heavy burden to our estates if required of us. We therefore beg leave to pay the 13,000*l.* to the late Navy victuallers, and $\frac{1}{2}$ of the remaining 10,000*l.* (of which we have paid

May 22. Reference thereon in Council to Sydenham, Desborow, and Jones, to consider how the moneys due may best be brought in, and to report. [I. 77, p. 135.]

May 22. 46. Petition of John Taylor, scrivener of London, to the Protector, for letters patenting for 14 years his invention of a better way of making white salt out of bay. It is commonly powdered and engrained with iron rust, and deprived, by evaporation in too violent a fire (to make it sooner precipitate), of its best piercing qualities, and rendered apt to dissolve into water. Has learned how to preserve these qualities. Can also so improve earth as that it shall in a short time yield a great quantity of salt-petre. Both inventions are advantageous, the one for the food of the people, the other for easing the common grievance of breaking up their floors; but as many workmen must be employed, it will be impossible to keep the secret of the invention. With reference, signed by the Protector, to Council. May 1656. [1 sheet.]

May 22. Reference thereon in Council to Jones, Strickland, the Lord Deputy, Pickering, Wolsley, Lisle, and Mulgrave, to report. [I. 77, p. 138.]

May 22. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

2. Order on the desires of some merchants, suspending the proclamation for settling the staple at Dordrecht, that the Trade Committee receive all papers and petitions relating thereto, reconsider the whole business, and report. Approved in person.

3. Order approving a certificate from the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers of May 6, that the parish of Northover, co. Somerset, should be united to that of Ivelchester, and a parcel of Socke Dennis parish united to Ivelchester and Northover. Approved in person.

8. Lambert and Desborow to withdraw and confer with the Admiralty Commissioners about the business now in debate. Skippon added to the Committee.

[His Highness withdrew.]

9. The petition of John Lyme,—stating that being engaged in the business of Colchester, he was committed to the town of Yarmouth, and is still detained there, and praying his liberty on the same terms that were allowed to others,—referred, as it was before by the Protector, to the Major-General, to set him at liberty on those terms, if they see no cause to the contrary.

11. Like reference on the petition of Sir Ralph Verney, and a certificate from the Deputy-Major-General and Commissioners of co. Bucks. Approved 30 May.

12. Order on report from the Commissioners on renewing charters for corporations—shewing that they had considered the petition of the mayor and corporation of New Sarum, praying that their charters might be renewed, and the circuit and precinct of the close of New Sarum, with St. Nicholas' Hospital and other privileges inserted; and that they had also considered the old charters, one of 9 James, and the other of 11 Charles, and some alterations and additions proposed, and some clauses to be inserted concerning the close and hospital,—to advise the confirmation by patent under the Great Seal of the said charter, with the desired changes, the persons whose names are in a paper annexed to be the first officers of the corporation.

13. To advise the acceptance of the resignation of Col. White as ordnance officer, and the conferring of the office on Major Lewis Audley, nominated by White, who was requested to give in the name of a deputy.

14. Order that the charge expended by the Somerset House Trustees about receiving the money assigned to them by bills of exchange out of Scotch fines be reimbursed to them, and that Sydenham, Vaughan, and Evershed examine the disbursements, and certify. Annexing,

47. *Note by the Trustees for sale of the late King's goods. They were ordered by his Highness and Council to receive 9,857*l.* 19*s.* 3*d.* of Geo. Blackleck, mariner, for release of Peter Rumbout, prisoner at York, in exchange for himself and ten of his company, who were released from prison at Dunkirk on promise to obtain Rumbout's freedom,—referred to the Admiralty Commissioners, to order release or exchange, as they see cause.

17. Approval of an augmentation of 20*l.* by the Trustees for Ministers to Warmington, co. Northampton. Approved 30 May.

19–21. Orders confirming certificates from the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers, of April and May 1656, for uniting the parishes and rectories of West Clandon and Merrow in co. 50. T. Ross to [Nicholas]. I shall tell our friends in England that you are going to the King as they will be pleased. Sir Edw. Hyde is that correspondent of Armorer whom Hopton was ordered by his friends to avoid, but Armorer will be unable to wrest that business out of your hands. I shall be on my guard with him to avoid scandal. I have sent to enquire from Pile who Halsey's man is, and who the servant sent to you by Cromwell. Have you got my wife's letter, giving you particulars of the business which Douce is sent with to the King?

I have enquired after Lambert's secretary, who came hither with Cromwell's factor; a pernicious dissembling knave he is, and shall be used as you will have him. I spoke freely thereon to Col. Chas. Finch here, and he has engaged his honour that if the King will accept it as a service, he will have the man arrested by trusty serjeants and sent to Flanders, where the King may get out him all he knows, and such a pledge may advantage you.

The soldiery here think the Cardinal will bring them to a battle this year, if possible; if conqueror, will stand on his terms; if conquered, will make himself the author of a peace so universally desired. The English agent attends the King everywhere, but has little satisfaction.

I never wanted a general order from our master for money, because an ill use has been made of such things, but I want a grant of what I can beg from those who are willing to lend him money, that I may serve you, and be redeemed from the chains that lie on me. Lord Gerard promised when he left to help me therein. What is his mind about Mr. Stanley?

P.S.—I hear that Hopton and Pile are still in the country. Blake is ordered to attend the return of the Portugal fleet from Brazil. [2 pages; italics are cyphers undecyphered.]

51. Sir John Lowther to Williamson. I find from my son that my letters to him are missing; they commended improvement in his style and matter, and reproved some excess in expense; he must not exceed the allowance of a younger brother, but I find by cousin Northleigh that he is too much given to tennis. Tell me his faults that I may use my authority to cross them. Be circumspect of his carriage, and remove occasions of folly from him. I will send the salary, and if the fruits answer our hopes, I will be mindful of you. Can you receive a youth of 17, son of a special friend of mine, who is to be sent to France, and if so, at what allowance? [2 pages.]

Alex. Rowley to the King. Pray have compassion on the miserable estate of your poor servant who presented the great sphere to you, being then at Richmond, a little before the war began, and since dedicated my book, called the Scholar's Companion, to the Princess Elizabeth, your sister. Since then I have been 6 times imprisoned for speaking my conscience against their wicked proceedings, and my goods taken away 4 times. At last I fled to Holland, lest they should take life and all, and have remained a year, but never could present my service to you. My wife writes that she has neither clothes nor shoes, and our children cannot help themselves. I was returning privately to help them, when I was taken by an Ostend frigate, and though a poor passenger, imprisoned with the rest, where I must perish unless you, remembering my services long since, acknowledge me as your servant, which the Lords of the Admiralty here say is the best means of my release. This I presume to beg of you for Christ's sake. Endorsed by Nicholas, &c., 18 June 1656, Alex. Rowley's letter to the King, whereupon the King got Mons. d'Oigent to get him released. great disorder by the suspension of the promised proclamation to settle their staple at Dordrecht, and the submitting the whole case on the request of some merchants, to a re-hearing; they could have cleared all objections, if they could have obtained copies of those addresses and reasons, but in "this darkness" set forth as follows:—

1. At the late treaty with Holland, they represented how they had had a settled mart in the Netherlands since 1596.

2. Not being provided for in the Articles of Peace, they informed you that though several towns invited them to return, it was on condition that their privileges should be continued, when you assured them they should not be prejudiced by the omission, referred them to Council, and in October 1654, granted them letters to the States General and Provincial, and to the towns of Rotterdam and Dort.

3. Last January they told you of their treaty with Dort, and you promised them the proclamation now so impugned.

4. They have done nothing surreptitiously or hastily, for the case has lasted since April 1654.

5. The objectors cannot pretend surprise, as the proclamation was grounded on an order of Parliament of 1643, granted after all opposers had been heard.

6. As this proclamation allows the plaintiffs to enter this corporation, no starting hole is left them but to decline government of the trade.

Beg consideration of the consequences of the suspension, as they have taken leave of Rotterdam, and ordered all their factors in the United Provinces to remove to Dort, where many have taken houses, and put the town to great charge in providing for them. Beg that the proclamation may take effect, and will submit to trial afterwards. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

55. 1. Reasons presented by Mr. Kiffin to Council, why the woollen manufactory should not be confined to a company, as taking away liberty of free export; abridging the freedom of London citizens; discouraging clothiers, weavers, and dyers, by giving the company power to use them as they please; oppressing trade by giving the large traders undue advantages over the inferior traders, and limiting other countries to buy in the places and quantities, and at the times they please. [1 sheet.]

3. The petition of Goodyear Hopton—for payment out of moneys thereto assigned of his arrears for attendance on the younger children of the late King till Nov. 1645, and of a pension of 140*l.* a year allowed him by the then Parliament, 432*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* being due before Sept. 1642, and payable out of the late King's goods,—referred to [Rich]. Sydenham, Vaughan, and Evershed, to examine whether this be within the rules for distribution of the money ordered to be paid out of the Scottish fines, and to certify. Annexing,

56. *Report thereon that the 432*l.* 0*s.* 8*d.* most insisted on is part of 1,566*l.* mentioned in the petition, which was due before 30 Sept. 1642, and that the Act for sale of the goods, &c., of the late King orders the proceeds to be for debts contracted before the late war, on lists presented by the Trustees for their sale; Hopton's name not being in the list allowed by Parliament, he cannot be paid out of the Scottish fines; but in the last folio of this list [see 16 Jan. 1656] his name occurs as recommended by his Highness and Council, with others, most of whom have received part of their money, but he nothing; he should therefore have a special order for relief, having received no pension since 1650, and losing the arrears not due before the late wars. 5. A certificate from the Commissioners of co. Dorset on behalf of Gregory Gibbs, whose estate is decimated by the said Commissioners, referred to the Major-General and Commissioners to discharge him if it be equitable. Approved 13 June.

10. A like certificate, of 6 March 1655–6, for dividing the hamlet of Sembridge in Upton St. Leonard, in the county of the city of Gloucester, and the farm and manor of Matson, from St. Leonard's parish, and uniting it to Matson parish, except a stipend of 16*l.* a year payable to the Minister of St. Leonard's, approved. 57. I. Brief notes of previous proceedings thereon in the said Committee. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

57. II. Letter from the said Committee to the lords of manors adjoining Sedgmoor. On reference to us by the Protector of the petition of Sir Corn. Vermuyden [see 29 Aug. 1655], we find that King James accepted 4,000 acres, and agreed to transfer the remainder for common land, and that King Charles granted the 4,000 to Vermuyden, and issued a commission to divide the same from the rest, which was not carried out because of the late troubles.

As he desires renewal of the commission, we signify the same to you, that if you have anything to offer, you may do so on 11 Oct. next, when we shall consider this business, and we wish you to give notice to the rest of the lords of the manors concerned, and to attend yourselves if you have anything to allege. May 29. 62. Petition of the inhabitants of Hill-Bishop, co. Somerset, to the Protector. Being almost past hope of having a godly able minister settled among us, our means being only 20 nobles a year, we recommend to you Nath. Charlton, our present minister, who is holy, useful, and well affected, even to blood and imprisonment. We also have had our goods plundered and our houses burned, and we are 500 or 600. Some years ago Mr. Charlton had 50*l.* a year granted from Sir John Stawell's parsonages, but received nothing, they being overcharged. We beg the settlement of the 50*l.* elsewhere. 41 signatures. May 29. 63. Petition of Capt. Peter Stanley to the Protector and Council. At the beginning of the war, I raised a troop of horse and one of dragoons for the service, and did good service, as proved by a certificate of the Commissioners of co. Chester. I ran 1,000*l.* into debt, for which I pay interest, and 1,400*l.* is due to me for service, but I have received nothing. I beg an order to Maj.-Gen. Worsley and

Bedford, consisting of 4 villages and many hundred souls, who have not had a preaching minister this 100 years, because the vicarage is only small tithes of 20*l.* a year, to be collected from 200 persons, and hardly paying the labour of collecting.

Dunstable parish, a market and road town, value 35*l.* a year, has been void these 14 years. Your Highness resolved there should be 2 able ministers for the places, with an augmentation of 100*l.* a year. We beg you to order 60*l.* of it for Houghton Regis, and to place Wm. Marketman, whose sad condition you well know, as minister. [1 page.]

The Protector and Council having determined to send to Jamaica, out of Scotland and Ireland, 1,200 men, besides officers, wish the vacancies so made not to be filled up till further order from his Highness; you are desired to give order accordingly, and to have an exact account returned to Council of the time when the men are shipped, the names and quality of their officers, and from what regiments drawn, and the amount of their monthly pay, according to the establishment in Ireland.

67. Elizabethth, Lady Lowther, to Williamson. The great commendation I hear of your ability and government makes me desirous to commit to you my eldest son, hoping he will retract his former errors and idleness. He will have a good estate, but much encumbered with debts and jointures, so that the present revenue will only maintain him answerably to those you have already in charge. He is at his own disposal, and therefore more likely for ruin, but good advice may protect him; and if he set his mind on study as he promises, it may fortify him against all assaults, especially play, which was his father's act, and for which he must bear the smart.

Give me your opinion of him in all things, that I may add my power to your's to rectify defects. I hope my [step] son Richard will yield my son all brotherly assistance. [1 page.]

2. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send a list of 35 prisoners sent from York by Major-Gen. Mr. Pearson, master of a Hull ship, writes from Dunkirk that he was taken with 19 merchant ships belonging to the northern coasts and carried in there; here is great lamentation in Hull, as the loss of that ship involves 10,000*l.* in many ventures. Several ships belonging to the town and other ports, laden with goods for their accounts, have been lately taken by the Dunkirk and Ostend men-of-war, as they were coming from Rotterdam and Amsterdam, under convoy of a Holland man-of-war, which is a great loss and undoing both to merchants and mariners. 4. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I will forward your letters. Capt. The Weymouth has just brought in 5 sail of fishers. The Pearl has gone with 200 colliers to Harwich. I have promised her to the merchants as a convoy for their ships to Rotterdam and Ostend. Also to surprise Gl[oucester] with 500, and 600 more to be ready at the same instant to assist them at the gates, and then this place and Bristol fort quickly to be made tenable.

If needful 2,000 of those in Bristol to march to Gloucester.

5, 6. Remonstrance of Thos. Knyvett of Ashwellthorp, co. Norfolk, to the Protector. According to your commands when you did me the high favour of admitting me to your presence, I send you a view of my case. Not to trouble you with the old business of Lowestoft, I was taken prisoner by you, and sequestered as conceived to have been in arms against Parliament, but discharged by the Sequestration Committee, chiefly by your testimony to my Lord of Manchester, who wrote to our county Commissioners.

Having behaved peaceably since, I do not think myself liable to decimation, but submit wholly to your mercy. With report thereon [by the county Commissioners for securing peace] that Knyvett was taken prisoner at Lowestoft in March 1643, and sequestered, but discharged in 1644; that he has given no proof of affection to Parliament, and therefore they have decimated him. 2. (1.) You are to take charge of and conduct the squadron of ships afore-mentioned, which will rendezvous in the Downs, and set sail when the weather permits, and by riding before Ostend and Dunkirk, and other fit means, you are to protect the ships and trade of this Commonwealth, and to destroy the enemies' ships as opportunity shall present.

(2.) You shall correspond with the commander of the squadron in the Downs, and with other ships on the sea who shall have like orders, and join with them as there is occasion. With list of the 11 ships of the squadron.

8. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send a list of the company belonging to the Bonadventure of Hull, John Pearson, master, taken by a Dunkirker, who are now prisoners in Dunkirk. I am earnestly desired by the mayor, aldermen, and others to solicit you to take some speedy course for their release, by exchange of as many others from Scarborough and York. The cries and tears of their wives occasion you this trouble. [1 page.] Enclosing,

Hull.

9. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I showed your's of 31 May to all the merchants of this place, and they return most humble thanks for the promise of a convoy for their Eastland ships. They desire that if Capt. Whitehorne, now on the northern coast, is appointed, he may have orders to call in at the Humber, as there are many ships there; and as there are a number to bring back, which are all richly laden, they hope the convoy will be considerable. There are also upwards of a dozen ships at Hull bound for London, also waiting for a convoy. I send you a list of the prisoners and captain released at York. [1 page.] ordered abroad, so that I could expect none till their return. Pray let me know whether and when it may be, as I long much for my departure, and if I cannot have a frigate, must think of some other way. London, 2 June 1656. [1 page.]

June 3. 11. Customs' Commissioners to the Admiralty Commissioners. Custom House, London. Being very sensible of the great necessity of the State for want of money, we presume to state that there is 2,000*l.* at Newcastle, 800*l.* at Bristol, and 800*l.* at Dartmouth, in the hands of the respective collectors, for which they cannot procure any returns. We beg you to adopt such course for the return thereof as you think meet. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

June $\frac{3}{13}$. 12. C. George to Williamson. Mr. Calander has arrived. I sent Paris. you a bill of exchange, but as you did not endorse it, no one can receive it. I hope you will have received letters for Mr. Whorwood. [French, 1 page.]

June $\frac{4}{14}$. 13. C. George to Williamson. I send your bill of exchange and Paris. some letters. My compliments to M^dlle. Calander, and all your young gentlemen. Mr. Calander writes me that he will be here to-day. [1 page, French.]

June 4. 14. Petition of Cosmo Manuche to the Protector. I have long laboured to serve you and this late distracted State, and acknowledge your bountiful relief to enable my endeavours. But in making discoveries of the disturbers of our present happy Government, I have spent 20*l.* more than I have received, which, if not speedily paid, will deprive me of liberty, and be my undoing, my former livelihood, by boarding scholars, being taken away. I have more knowledge now, and a better will to increase your store than exhaust it. Endorsed, with receipt of 10*l.* from Sec. Thurloe for public service. [1 page.]

June 4. 15. Capt. Jer. Smyth to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send The Essex, Downs. a letter from several English masters of ships at Rotterdam. A Flushing man-of-war saw 17 sail of Ostend and Dunkirk men-of-war last Sunday in one fleet, having from 16 to 20 guns each, and very full of men; they reported that they were going to ply off the Maas and Texel, and if they met with no purchase there, to go upon the north coast to meet the fleet coming from the Sound. I also hear that the admiral and vice-admiral of Dunkirk are riding under Mardike Fort. I have not heard of Capt. Whitehorne, and there are only the Essex and Reserve in the Downs. [1 page.]

June 5. 16. Petition of John, Lord Balmerino, for self and many others in like case, to the Protector. Last August I laid before you my great distress for public debts, entered into by my father and others [see 7 Aug. 1655], and you stayed proceedings till the Council of Scotland should think on some remedy to free us, but that Ordinance was only in force till Feb. last, and is now taken off, and our lands and goods exposed to our creditors, which makes our condition as hard as before. We beg to note the representation before you of the Council of Scotland, which is before the Committee for Scotland, in order that I (who have been 2 years forced out of Scotland, and to abandon my family because of creditors) and the others so engaged may be freed from these debts, and not ruined by our affection for religion and liberty, for which we hazarded all that was near and dear to us. We beg you to note what the Council of Scotland propose, that our protection be renewed for 3 months, till you appoint a remedy. [1 page.]

June 5. Reference thereon by Council to the Committee for the affairs of Scotland to report. [I. 77, p. 161.]

June 5. 17. Petition of Thos. Rawlins, [of Llangarran or Kilreeye, co. Hereford,] to the Protector. In the beginning of the late troubles, I was appointed a lieutenant of co. Hereford, and so enraged the enemy by my activity and faithfulness that I was obliged to fly this country [in Nov. 1652], when they seized my goods and defaced my house, to the loss of 1,500*l.*, and held my estate of 400*l.* a year for 4 years, so that I contracted great debts, and have been disabled from trying for preferment. I beg reparation out of 5,000*l.* concealed, which I can discover as due, that I may provide for my many children. With reference to Council, signed by the Protector, 23 May 1656. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.] Annexing,

June 5. 18. Petition of divers well-affected of London and elsewhere to the Protector, for acceptance of the proposals annexed, as the least offensive and burdensome mode of raising money needed for the vast charge of Government, the preservation of peace, and on account of the great suffering and discontent because the public faith debts, for which the honour of the nation stands engaged, are still unpaid. [1 page.] Annexing,

18. I. Proposals alluded to :—

1. That all innkeepers, victuallers, and others who sell ale or beer, pay 10 per cent. on all ale and beer sold.
2. That 3 or 4 Commissioners be appointed for London, and each county of England and Wales, to manage the business, and be accountable to the Treasury Commissioners.

June 5. Note of the reading thereof in Council, but no order thereon. [I. 77, p. 167.]

June 5. 19. *Petition of Thos. Cowell and Company to the Protector. Our ship, the John of London, sailed to Malaga in Aug. 1655 with merchandize, and in September arrived peaceably at Terreffe, where she was seized by the governor for the King of Spain, to our loss of 2,000*l.* We beg letters of reprizal, as usual by the law of nations. With reference to Privy Council, 26 May 1656. [1 page.]*

June 5. Order thereon in Council that they be granted, on proof in the Admiralty Court of the seizure and detention of the ship, and on the usual security. Approved 13 June. With the warrant for the letters, 19 June. [I. 77, pp. 168, 178 ; I. 112, p. 320.]

June 5. 20. *Petition of John James, merchant of Southampton, to the Protector. In 1631 I suffered 500*l.* loss by the Spaniard, and Sir Hen. Marten in 1642, and Dr. Wm. 13. Order on certificate from the Treasurers for Sale of forfeited Estates of 24 May last,—that demand has been made of 15,521*l.* 13*s.* 0 $\frac{3}{4}$ d. due for the latter half of purchase money of the Marquis of Winchester's estate, and that the limit of 14 days expired, and no money was paid, but a written statement sent by Geo. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings (cont.)

16. Order on report from the Commissioners for regulating the Excise on the petition of the workers of copper-gilt and silver thread [see 19 Feb. 1656]—that many thousand families live on the manufacture, which is much decayed since the excise was raised from 2*d.* to 1*s.*, and may be endangered unless it be reduced—that it be so reduced, and that the Excise Commissioners only demand 2*d.* in future. Approved 13 June. Annexing,

23. Report alluded to, giving as reasons for the reduction, —

- (1). *That all copper comes from abroad in bars, and pays custom on import, and excise of 1*s.* in 20*s.* in value of copper by the first buyer, the price of the bars being 2*s.* per pound.*
- (2). That French and Dutch merchants secretly bring in much copper thread, elude the duty, and sell it at lower rates than can now be afforded.
- (3). *That the English cannot now afford to sell the copper-lace thread, spangles, &c., they send abroad cheap enough, and therefore they will lose the trade. Thus the excise is likely to come to less at 12*d.* in the pound than at 2*d., and the manufacture will be overthrown. 27 March 1656. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

17. The report from the Excise Commissioners, on a reference of Council on a petition of the refiners, gold-wire drawers, and others, about the manufacture of wire drawing, and other trades depending thereon, referred to Desborow, Rous, the Lord Deputy, Lambert, Sydenham, Jones, and Lisle, to report.

Approved 13 June.

20. The above 795*l.* 15*s.* 6*d.* to be applied towards satisfying a Privy Seal for payment of 1,000*l.* to Col. Brayne, for contingent charges about Jamaica.

22. Order on Sydenham's report from the Committee of Council on Money, of some joint proposals made by Col Harvey, Ald. Tichborne, and Mr. Hildesley, late Customs' Commissioners, for themselves and Dan. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings (cont.)

(tallies being struck accordingly) as follows:—2,000*l.* this week, 1,000*l.* next week, and 7,000*l.* by halves in the next 2 months,—and that as to the 12,000*l.* balance, Tichborne for himself, and Hildesley for himself and Taylor, give security for 6,000*l.* each (half the remaining 12,000*l.*), and Col. Harvey for the other 6,000*l.*, to be paid at 3 six months; and that all the lands, securities, goods, and debts belonging to their account be made over jointly to them, to be turned to cash, and go towards the 12,000*l.*, and what is lost be borne by them equally, and that on receipt of the 12,000*l.*, the pipe rolls may be discharged—that the substance of the said proposal be agreed to, with this difference, viz.: that the remaining 12,000*l.* be paid in by 4 three months, and that the 10,000*l.* be paid within a month, on receipt whereof, and on security for the 12,000*l.* as above, the pipe rolls shall be discharged.

25. Desborow, Lambert, Sydenham, Jones, and Wolsley to consider a paper entitled “Col. Bingham’s humble thoughts and desires to Council on behalf of Castle Cornet, and the Isles of Guernsey, Sark, and Alderney,” and to report.

Pres. Lawrence to the Lord Deputy and Council of Ireland. Council hears that a suit is commenced against Sir John Barrington and the other adventurers for claims in Ireland, against Serj. Dendy, about lands in Ireland given him by order of Parliament for services in England, on pretence of a right grounded on the Act for satisfying the adventurers, whereby the serjeant and others in like case, and the interest of the State are concerned, and the prosecution of the suit will not turn to the advantage of any. Council therefore wishes you to call the parties before you, enquire into the business, and endeavour a reconciliation; or if this be difficult, to signify your opinion to Council that a just and equal course may be taken. You are to use all expedition, that it may appear that the suspension is not made to cause delay, but to bring the matter to a just and honest compromise. [I. 77, pp. 166–7.]

24. Petition of Abr. Forrester, gentleman, Wm. Muschamp, Esq., and John Baker, M.D., to the Protector. You and the Council having noticed many inconveniences by the badness of highways, made a public ordinance for their amendment and repair, which in many places has been vigorously prosecuted, and large sums expended thereon, but rendered ineffectual because the right way of doing it has not been discovered. We, desiring to serve our generation, have spent much money in experiments, and have found a new way, of which we have already made demonstration, for amending the highways, not exceeding the tax in the Ordinance, and so that they shall not need repair for many years, nor be injured by the weight of carriages, and thus the parish taxes will be lessened, and travellers can go further in a day. We beg a 14 years' patent for our invention, and encouragement in carrying it out. With reference thereon to John Trenchard, Denis Bond, and Sir John Trevor, 19 May 1656; their report that the thing can only be demonstrated by practice, and therefore some highway near London should be chosen for a trial, but that the petitioners request their letters patent before the trial, because in it much of their secret and way of doing it will be discovered, 26 May 1656; and further reference to Lord Strickland, captain of his Highness's guard, and Col. Phil. Jones, to consider and certify. 6 June 1656.) [2 $\frac{3}{4}$ pages.]

June 6. 25. Sec. Thurloe to the Admiralty Commissioners. His Highness is satisfied to make Capt. Smith commander of the Dunbar, and commands me to give you notice thereof. [$\frac{1}{2}$ page.]

June 6. 26. Capt. Thos. Alderne to Robt. Blackborne. I have no occasion for any money to be paid at Newcastle or Bristol, but if the Customs' Commissioners will order the 800*l.* at Dartmouth to be paid to Wm. Addis, the victualling agent at Plymouth, and take his bills on me for it, I will see that they are accepted and paid. If however this will be no accommodation to the State, I would rather make use of our credit at Plymouth to serve the State's occasions when required. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.]

June 6. 27. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. The Eastland ships are all ready, and the merchants return thanks for the convoy. There are also 12 ships bound for London, and as they have been waiting some time, their merchants earnestly desire one to see them to the Thames, the granting of which will be an encouragement to trade. I send a list of the prisoners with us, according to your orders. I have used them very civilly whilst here, and given them 6*d.* a day each, and 6*d.* each when they left, and passes for Dover. These and the former 36 have had nearly 5*l.* I hope I shall be reimbursed. [1 page.]

June 6. 28. Petition of Capt. Edw. Wood and other owners of the Edward of London to the Admiralty Commissioners, for payment of freight for carrying arms, ammunition, and provisions to Barbadoes for supply of the fleet, and some from Barbadoes to St. Domingo and Jamaica, as also for allowance for the loss of their ship while returning through the Gulf of Florida. 28. IV. Capt. Greg. Butler to Major Thomson, Navy Office. Capt. Wood's business was referred, by his own consent, to Capt. Blagge, Col. Buller, and others, who judged him worthy of the satisfaction contained in the bill of exchange, so I gave him one, and he had another for 100l. from one Dell of England. The rest of his freight was paid in the port. Capt. Wood would have given 500l. for the Parrot prize, but neither the Major-General nor Vice-Admiral would join with me in a bill of sale; they have since sold it to themselves for 250l. 18 July 1656. 28. V. Debtor and creditor account by Butler, of — Dell of New England, Cpts. Wood and Webber, and Jno. Bauton, bringing in Wood creditor for 381l. 11s. 4d., for which he had a bill of exchange. [1 page.]
28. VI. Report by the Navy Commissioners on the said petition of Edw. Wood, &c., that, finding that the other ships employed on that service have received 40s. a ton, and that the commander of the Edward received a certificate from Capt. Butler, Commissioner at Jamaica, for 381l. 11s. 4d. for her freight, which was much under the rate received by the others, they advise an order for payment of that amount, and for something further to be allowed, as the ship has not been heard of since she left Jamaica on her return home. Navy Office, Aug. 1656.

The
Hoseley Bay.

29. Capt. Wm. Whitehorne to the Admiralty Commissioners. After watering at Scarborough, we parted with the Portsmouth, which stood northwards. On Tuesday the 3rd instant, we espied 4 sail standing in towards Flamborough Head; and giving chase, we espied what they were, they not endeavouring much to conceal it. Their admiral had 27 guns, and 200 men. He presently put abroad his bloody ensign and pendant; the rest their Spanish colours. His vice-admiral had 22 guns, the third, 8, the fourth, 6, and all were well manned, both for number and ability of men. They intended to surprise any 4th rate frigate they could meet with, and they might have done much mischief to the northward. Their admiral was the same that lately took the Holland man-of-war with his convoys. Our frigates gained much upon them, which they perceiving, divided themselves. The Dartmouth and Drake gave chase to the two small vessels, and after much endeavours used, lost sight of them by thick mists; that of 22 guns, being much to windward, stretched away.

June 6.

The Advice and President gave chase to the admiral, but it was some hours before they could come up to him by reason of the calm. He resolutely defended himself, and was as gallantly opposed by the Advice in his weather, and by the President in his lee quarter. I was forced, with grief to myself and all with me, to be only a spectator at a great distance, this frigate not being able to sail for foulness, though, when clean, she is inferior to few for sailing.

Honest Capt. Sacheverell was slain at the third broadside. The fight was continued from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. by the Advice and President, with no small damage on all sides. It may be wondered how so contemptible an enemy should so long oppose two such considerable frigates. I assure you they are a resolute and daring enemy, and their advantage lies in being so often tallowed and fully manned, the want of which much hinders our frigates from performing what they otherwise might. The Dartmouth and Drake, returning from their lost chase, came seasonably to put a speedier conclusion to the fight. The Drake, by the advantage of her oars, got up to pass several broadsides very gallantly, and at last she yielded to the Advice.

When we first began to chase, I spared 11 able seamen to help the Drake, which did her good service, but night coming on, and a great fog, we were prevented using means to tow her. In the morning when we found her, her masts were gone, being very much shattered in the fight. The seamen whom Capt. Allen put on board of her were all gone, and the Dunkirkers reported that, fearing she would founder, being much torn, without masts, and very leaky, they had made their escape in the boat. We know not what has become of them, but I much fear there has been some treachery used by the Dunkirkers, for there were more left on board than was imagined. All means were used for preserving her, but that being impossible in her condition, and the wind being very tempestuous, I caused her to be sunk.

We have on board the several ships 154 prisoners, with Capt. Erasmus Bruer. This was the best man-of-war in Ostend or Dunkirk, and, I believe, one of their stoutest captains.

Since writing the above, we have had a severe storm, and the Gainsborough striking on a rock near the Whiting, her keel was so much shattered that we were forced to cut away the mainmast, and lighten her by casting out much ballast and her topmasts, and it will be now necessary to send her into a dry dock. De Bruer had 36 guns in hold, was bound for Spain, and intended to do some mischief to the northward. The main and fore-masts of the Advice and President are defective, and their sails and rigging much torn. I have sent them to the Commander-in-Chief in the Downs, and the Drake to Harwich to be refitted. I have kept the Dartmouth to tow me where I shall be ordered, and will ride about Woodbridge. The master of the President has behaved very well; I have charged him to be very careful of the frigate. [1 column.]

with 14 or 15 vessels, bound eastward; I have ordered Capts. Elliott and Large to sail thither, take charge of such vessels as are there, and convoy them to the Needles, and then convoy those at Weymouth, Lynn, Topsham, and Dartmouth, bound for St. Malo and Morlaix, and bring back those for England. I understand you have agreed to exchange Capt. Ensum for Capt. Blake; I hope Ensum will be kept safe. When he was brought into Plymouth, hearing what a notorious fellow he was, and that no person could hold him, I sent him to Exeter Gaol, where he has abode ever since, with gives on his heels; of the two, I judge him worse than Beech. Seven ships have put in with away by their oars if their sailing fails them. [1 page.]

Dunkirkers report, took to the boat in the night, thinking the ship

35. Major Wm. Burton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I understand by yours that 19 or 20 sail of Dunkirkers and Ostenders are gone out, and that you would have the Pearl and Weymouth to go to the Downs with the merchant ships; but the merchants will not venture their goods, for there is as much danger in going to the Downs as to Holland, and they will stay to hear what has become of the enemy. The Weymouth is at Harwich; I sent Capt. Smith to Newcastle to convoy the coal fleet, and ordered Capt. Sansum to come with them into the Roads, lest the enemy fall on the fleet. Capt. Wilkinson having left 2 anchors with the fishermen, who have put them on shore, I will take charge of them, but he has carried the cables to Harwich. The captain of the Wren desires order to victual, but his ship is so leaky and defective that her company is tired of her, and she is only fit to burn. There are 300 or 400 sail of the coal fleet afloat, and scarcely any to guard them, and if the enemy falls with them, they will take as many as they please; it is a shame to our nation that we are afraid to go to sea for 2 or 3 towns, with help of the Hollanders, who, I am persuaded, furnish them with half what they do. A Scarborough ship, commanded by Rob. Kirby, with 6 men in her, having been lately taken by some Dunkirkers, the gentry of the country, who know Kirby, desire that he and his men may be exchanged for some of those now set at liberty. 37. Major Rich. Elton to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send a list of 25 Dunkirk prisoners, arrived from York with passes from Major Geo. I am earnestly desired by the inhabitants of Hull and Burlington to move that some speedy course may be taken for their release by exchange. This town, knowing your wonted course about convoys, I am constantly entreated by the London merchants of Hull, who have had 12 ships ready to sail from Hull this last fortnight, for a convoy to the Thames; for want thereof, trade is depressed, and there is a daily loss, both of ships and goods. Levant Company to Sir Thos. Bendish, ambassador at Constantinople. On our petition to his Highness to ease the double charge on us there at present, we procured the revocation of Rich. Lawrence, which we enclose, desiring you to have it delivered, and send us notice. We have ordered him allowance for the full time, and 500 dollars for his return. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 271.]

June 9.

Levant Company to Sp. Bretton, consul at Smyrna. Yours of 31 Dec., 14 Feb., and 3 April, are all to hand since ours of 14 April. For supplying the employment of treasurer, our directions of 28 May suffice. We regret that Domingo Vaes de Britto finds new ways to defraud us of our due, by landing cloth at Leghorn, and afterwards sending it hither upon a Fleming, under protection of the Dutch consul, but have thought of no way to prevent it.

The goods brought hither on the Friendship, as our husband says, gave satisfaction, so no further trouble need be taken therein.

Concerning what you intimate about Mr. Winchester, if you make not a right use of the blessing of having a minister, the fault is yours; but if he discharge not his duty, then it is his.

Our remaining debts there being fully cleared by the dues on the ships last departed, we ordered on April 14 the continuance of an extraordinary consulage for extinguishing those here.

We are glad the disturbance at Constantinople, caused by the rising of the Spahis and Janizaries, has produced no worse effects than matter of charge in presents. We hope for some security in reference to the escape of Bogus.

As for the Armenians lading their goods on our ships, though it be a means to spoil our trade, yet since they would find that accommodation from other nations, who would make the same advantage by their consulage as we do, we are content with such ordinary gratuities as you have made for encouraging their lading on English ships.

Lastly, we remind you of our former resolutions for you to restore what you have heretofore received more than the Company allowed in gratuities, half house rent and minister's diet, for we may not give way to a precedent that may excite the consul at Aleppo or others to expect the like. Let us find the same put to our credit in the next accounts, that we may not have to suspend the future payment of any gratuity. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., p. 271-2.]

Levant Company to the treasurer at Smyrna. You are to pay the consul no gratuities till he complies with the reductions we require in his accounts. [Levant Papers, Vol. V., p. 273.]

Levant Company to Hen. Riley. Since our last sent, we have received yours of 27 Feb., not that of Dec. 31, which you mention. But we have learnt the great danger to your persons and our estates caused by the siege of Aleppo, and have had cause to acknowledge God's goodness in your deliverance and to content ourselves with the present effect of dearth produced by that diversion of trade, which we hope will be shortly restored.

It is well that Mr. Fowk and partners are reduced to conformity in payment of our dues, and that you are mindful of recovering the arrears. Your moderation of our expences, collection of duties, and endeavours to repair the injuries undergone in the time of Ipsire Bassa, and revoking that unjust sentence on money, we take well at your hands, and trust you will have good success.

We hear of some contest between our factor marine, and strangers lading goods on our ships, touching payment of duties, which though we conceive not to be due to him, yet as he has to give the Company an account of these as well as our own goods, you may, for Mr. Bodington's advantage, in a friendly way, try if you can persuade them to payment.

We have lately settled afresh the rates of consulage and of tonnage and freight, according to several lists enclosed, to commence on their arrival. [Levant Papers, Vol. IV., pp. 273-4.]

June 10. 39. Petition of Peter King, mayor, and the inhabitants of Shaston, co. Dorset, to the Protector. Our borough consists of 350 families, and we have not 30*l.* a year for a preaching minister, so that we cannot obtain an able man without relief. We beg an augmentation, that we may not be left without pastoral dispensations. 20 signatures. [1 page.]

June 10. Order thereon in Council to the Trustees for Ministers to settle 50*l.* a year on the Shaston minister, the late order of restraint notwithstanding. Approved in person. [I. 77, p. 169.]

June 10. 40. Petition of the magistrates, minister, and well affected of Pontefract, to the Protector. By Parliamentary order 50*l.* was assigned them from Sir J. Wornam's sequestered estate, and 40*l.* from Mr. Thimbleby's, as augmentation of the living, worth only 15*l.* The former is taken away by Wornam's composition, and the latter likely to cease on the death of Mr. Thimbleby, who is very aged, and has only a life estate in the tithes on which it is settled. The town is populous, extending into several townships, and by reason of fairs and quarter sessions, much resorted to, and yet has the "meanliest" provision for a minister in the nation, so that the disaffected might bring in one of their own way, and stifle the beginning of reformation appearing on the labours of Mr. Ferret. Beg a settlement of 80*l.* a year from the ministers' trustees in lieu of the 40*l.* from the Exchequer. Recommended by Wm. Rowe, one of the town, and Capt. John Drake, of his Highness's regiment. [1 sheet.]

June 10. Order thereon in Council that the said trustees settle a maintenance on the minister, in lieu of what was formerly granted. Approved in person. [I. 77, p. 169.]

June 10. 41. Petition of Sir Wm. Carr [or Kerr second] son of the Earl of Lothian to the Protector. June 10. Order thereon in Council that 100*l.* a year be paid him from the said profits, provided this grant do not diminish that to Provost Jeffryes out of the office. Approved in person. [I. 77, p. 169.]

[June 10.] 42. Petition of Col. David Barclay to the Protector. The Commissioners entrusted by you with the estates of the excepted persons in Scotland finding, by the release of so many of them, that the remnant will not answer the ends for which they were invested in them, represent the condition thereof to you by me, and request your speedy order. With reference signed of the petition, instructions, and schedule to Council, 13 May 1656. [1 page.] Annexing,

42. I. Instructions by the said Commissioners in Scotland to Col. David Barclay, to be presented to his Highness.

1. That the estates will not answer the intended objects, which were three:—

(1.) To pay the creditors of each estate, and provide for the wives and children of excepted persons.

(2.) To do the same for other estates which are overburdened with donatives.

(3.) The overplus to his Highness.

But overplus is impossible, as by reason of donatives, estates hardly bear their own incumbrances, and those that should have yielded relief are released from forfeiture.

2. That the Commissioners should have full release as to the disposal of those estates discharged from forfeiture, or the creditors may complain with reason of prejudice.

3. That they have obeyed his order for discharge of the Earl of Calendar's estate.

4. *That if the land worth 500*l.* a year, ordered by Parliament to be settled on Mrs. Mary Hamilton, now wife to Griffin Howard, and her children, some of whom are under age, be exchanged as ordered for the same sum out of fines, at 10 years' purchase, the children when they come to age may sue the Commissioners.*

5. *To ask whether the 4,000*l.* is to be paid to Col. Overton, notwithstanding his confinement.*

6. To ask whether mortgages on estates forfeited before 1648 shall be considered as debts, or whether the mortgagee shall have the estate, or be treated as other creditors, who have lands conveyed to them at 20 years' purchase.

7. To ask directions about the personal estates of excepted persons.

8. *To represent that, though by Ordinance the wives and children provided for are to renounce all title to their husbands' or fathers' estates, yet the Countess of Lauderdale, who had 300*l.* a year by this Ordinance, has now* got one for 600*l.* a year, yet has not renounced her jointure, which may be an incumbrance on the estate. [1 sheet.]

42. II. Commissioners in Scotland to the Protector. On your order of 24 Aug. last to set out lands value 600*l.* a year to the Countess of Lauderdale for life, we have set out to her all the lands undisposed of that were settled on her by her marriage contract with the Earl. But it is our duty to present to you the charges, by debts and donatives, on forfeited estates in Scotland, that you may consider it when applications are made. On 12 April 1654, you ordered that what came short to pay lawful creditors from one estate, by reason of donatives, should be paid from another, after its debts and incumbrances were satisfied; but many estates then forfeited are since discharged by capitulation with Gen. Monk, e.g., Earls Seaforth, Lowdown, Athol, Glencairn, Lords Kenmure, Lorne, Machlin, and the Laird of Womatt, whose estate would have yielded great relief to creditors. If particular persons receive grants out of the forfeited estates, the creditors will be great sufferers.

We would be far from restraining your favour or disputing your commands, yet as the condition of the forfeiture stands, we leave it to you. Leith, 16 Dec. 1655. [1 page.]

46. Capt. Robt. Colman to the Admiralty Commissioners. While attending the fishermen between Beachy and Dungeness, I chased three vessels; one proved to be the Fox of Ostend, of 8 guns and 56 men, and after firing several shots at her, I broke her main-mast, when she ran on shore at St. Valery en Caux. On sending my men to take possession of her, it blew so hard that they could not gain the shore or board her, and by the next morning, the French had so plundered her that they left nothing upon her but her masts and guns. I was troubled, and sent a note to the governor or general, who said I should have the ship with the prisoners; but he and the judges wanted to see my commission, which I would not send, and he refused to come or send on board to see it, but threatened to secure my men till better informed what we were. Finding uncivil dealings from those from whom I expected friendship, I fired a gun for my men to come on board, and was forced to leave the prize, after taking 3 guns and the foremast, and Mons. Picard, the judge, and the Vice-Adm. Mons. Fras. Regon, who had the prisoners in custody, let them go, after the French had stripped them.

Coming back I met and convoyed 8 sail of English merchantmen, bound for England, one of whom had a present for his Highness.

P.S.—Before I could get the things specified, I had to show them my old commission. [2½ pages.] Enclosing, 46. 1. *Capt. Coleman to M. de Brionoty, governor of St. Valery. As I have chased a Dunkirk or Ostend man-of-war on your shore, and we are friends and she an enemy, I beg your aid in getting her off, and delivery of the captain and officers, and of all English and Scots on board. 47. Capt. Jer. Smyth to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send copies of my correspondence with the Admiralty Judges at Dunkirk as to releasing the English prisoners there and at Ostend, theirs in England having been set at liberty. They have sent over as many as the packet boat could accommodate, and promised the remainder by the next passage. If our part is not performed, our men that remain will be treated still worse, though now I hear they were so miserably used there that they took up arms to free themselves. I want an order to send over a vessel for the remainder, with 50 or 60 Dunkirkers, that the rest of ours may return. The Admiralty Judges there expect an answer on Saturday.

P.S.—I shall dismiss no Ostenders who were in the frigate when the English left her; I find nothing to the contrary but that they took to the boat. I want further directions as to transporting the Swedish envoy, there being no fitting ship ready. [1½ pages.]

48. H. Thorndike to Williamson. I cannot write much to you or M. Cappel, being ill. It is not the intent of this edition [of the Bible] to warrant the credit of the Roman edition of the 70, much less to accept of Nobilius' translation thereof, but these copies were printed rather than those followed by the Antwerp and Paris editions; the same of the 2 Samaritans. The learned must judge of their credit. This edition is to give a true copy of both, and the Samaritan will be collated with the Jewish Hebrew if advantageous. The reasons for omitting the Masorah are undeniable. My late Lord Primate made me consult Manasseh Ben Israel about the original of it, which (as he had read) contained the bulk of a Bible carefully prepared in some of their synagogues, and he offered to pay for it, if it could be procured, so as to ascertain the reading of their Bible; but either skill or will to pleasure Christians was wanting, for I could not persuade him to comply. If it had been obtained, it could not have come into this edition, but somewhat might have been found about the value of the original.

The Syriac churches have 2 or 3 translations, one from the 70 and one from the Hebrew, which is here printed, but care will be taken to compare copies.

June 12. 51. Petition of Wm. Reyner, minister of Egham, Surrey, to the Protector. I have laboured 40 years in this parish, which is of large extent, and the people numerous, but the living only 40*l.* a year. I have nourished up a people who are so earnest for me to stay with them that, though I have had many better offers, I dared not leave them; but I am now disabled and need an assistant, and though I have had a late augmentation, it is a bare maintenance for my family, and therefore I beg its enlargement. With request, signed by the Protector to Council, to grant the augmentation.

June 12. Order thereon in Council that the Ministers' Trustees grant him an augmentation to maintain an assistant. Noted, "Approval com-prehended in his Highness's reference." [I. 77, p. 173.]

June 12. 52. Petition of the inhabitants of Helen's parish, Ipswich, Suffolk, to the Protector. We have obtained as minister Rob.
Gouge, faithful and painful, and approved by the Commissioners for approbation, but the maintenance being under 40*l.*, the Committee for Plundered Ministers on 13 Jan. 1646-7, granted our then minister 40*l.* out of the fines of Winston manor, Suffolk, belonging to the Dean and Chapter of Ely, but now sold away.
We beg an augmentation in lieu thereof. 5 signatures. [1 sheet.]

June 12. Order thereon in Council recommending to the Trustees for Ministers to allow 40*l.* a year, the order of restraint notwithstanding.
Approved 13 June. [I. 77, pp. 174, 179.]

June 12. Declaration of his Highness and Council, for the managing of the extraordinary tax raised by the Commissioners within the several counties of England and Wales, beginning 24 June 1655.

The Protector and Council having judged it necessary to raise militia, and to appoint Majors-General and associations to manage it, and having authorized a tax therefor to be raised on delinquents and disaffected persons, commencing from 24 June 1655, which moneys are to be paid in half yearly:—Order for its better management, that the Army Committee have the charge of getting in and issuing the said moneys, their orders to be complied with by the Majors-General, Receivers-General, and county treasurers.

The Majors-General are to give in to the Army Committee perfect lists of all persons charged with yearly or gross payments, signed by themselves and 3 Commissioners, and duplicates to the Receivers-General. Also to cause the county treasurers to send in accounts of their receipts within 10 days from 25 Dec. and 24 June yearly, noting any alterations from or additions to the former list. The Majors-General are also to return the addresses of the county treasurers, and cause the muster rolls to be sent to the Commissary General of Musters, and duplicates to the Army Committee; the Commissary General to obey the directions of the Army Committee.

The county treasurers are to deliver up to the Army Committee a perfect account of all sums received in the $\frac{1}{2}$ year ended 21 Dec. last, of their disposal, and by whose warrant, and of the balance in hand, which the said Committee are to allow, or if not satisfied, to refer to Council.

John Blackwell and Rich. Deane are hereby appointed Receivers-General for the said tax, which is to be paid to them by the county treasurers, and the Army Committee are to issue warrants for its disposal, in payment of the militia forces, with arrears. They have power to assign any part for immediate payment of the forces in the respective counties.

Blackwell and Deane, on receipt of all or any part of the tax into their hands as Treasurers-at-war, are to have full discharges as Receivers-General. All officers of Exchequer to conform to these orders. The Army Committee to appoint such clerks or servants to execute this trust, and pay them such salaries as they think fit.

Agreed to in Council and the blank filled up to 24 June 1655, 12 June. Approved by the Protector 13 June. [I. 77, pp. 178-9, 902-4.]

June 12. 53, 54. Instructions for survey of the 4 forests reserved for arrears of soldiers, &c. To enquire into the extent of the forests, the nature and validity of the claims thereon by towns or villages, bodies corporate, or individuals; the erection of buildings contrary to orders, &c.; all claims to be allowed that existed before 25 March 1641, excepting those held by grants from the Crown; they have power to make compositions, settle boundaries, highways, sale of timber, &c., and employ a messenger and clerk. survey of Forests, that though satisfaction is ordered to the lords of the soil of the waste for their interest, it is not to exceed $\frac{1}{2}$ without certifying Council. Approved 13 June. [I. 77, pp. 175-6, 179.]

[June 12.] 55. Petition of Margaret, Countess of Worcester, to the Protector. Not having received these 9 years more than 400*l.* in lieu of jointure, fifths or thirds, and finding only Worcester House unsold, I am in pursuit to discover some other things belonging to the late or now Earl, and beg the grant thereof. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

[June 12.] 56. Similar petition. I was married in 1639, with a portion of 20,000*l.*; the things to be discovered are my husband's, in right of his father. With reference thereon, 19 May, to Council. [1 page.] Annexing,

56. I. Henry, Lord Herbert, to the Marchioness of Worcester, London. I so really wish you to have Worcester House during my father's lifetime, that if it depended on my coming up to London, I would soon wait on you there. Let this satisfy you or any other thereof. Badminton, 9 April 1656. [1 page.]

June 12. Note that on reading the said petition in Council, and putting the question whether the prayer should be granted, it passed in the negative. [I. 77, p. 177.]

June 12. 57. Petition of Major Edm. Rolfe to the Protector. You referred my former annexed petition, on 7 Aug. 1655, to the Army Committee, to certify my debts to the State, and theirs to me. On 24 August they certified that 393*l.* 3*s.* 3*d.* is due to me; that I have 857*l.* 14*s.* 4*d.* due on public faith bills, but some are suspected as being bought from Mr. Manley, who is in Serjeant Dendy's custody; and that they do not think the allowance of 5*s.* a day is due [see 1 Sept. 1654.] I reply that I bought bills of Manley at 5*s.* 2*d.*, the current value, in October 1652, but did not know that he was suspected.

When I was employed as Commissioner in the Isle of Wight, you led me to hope for pay, though the public affairs did not admit time for settlement, and I was at Carisbrook Castle 218 days in the most expensive part of the trust. I would rather loose my public faith bills than usher in an evil precedent, and will obey your order therein, only I beg discharge from the debt. With reference thereon to Council, signed by the Protector, 10 June 1656. [1 sheet.] Annexing,

57. I. Petition alluded to, which is to the same effect as that of 1 Sept. 1654, begging discharge of his account; or pardon for the same in the Exchequer, and he will assign over the like sum in public securities. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

June 12. Reference thereon in Council to the Lord Deputy, Lambert, Sydenham, and Desborow, to report. [I. 77, p. 177.]

June 12. 58. Petition of John Warren, minister of Hemel Hempstead, co. Herts, to the Protector. The parish is large, and the market of great public resort. I have a family of 10, have preached 9 years, and undergone great hardship rather than remove. On the death of the sequestered incumbent, I have lately paid 40*l.* for first fruits, tenths, &c. There are 47*l.* augmentable profits paid in yearly by Rich. Combe, and 1½ years ago I petitioned the Trustees for Ministers for an augmentation, but after I spent much time and money, they postponed the case, and said they must have your special order. This I beg, the rather because a parsonage of 160*l.* a year has lately fallen to the Trustees in the next parish. With reference to Council, signed by the Protector, 10 June 1656. [¾ page.]

June 12. Reference thereon by Council to the Trustees for Ministers, who are to settle an augmentation, and order payment, the late restraint notwithstanding. Approved 13 June. [I. 77, pp. 177, 179.]

June 12. COUNCIL. Day's Proceedings.

3. Order—on petition of Wm. Selsby, yeoman of his Highness's guard, shewing that John Lee, citizen and saddler of London, unduly arrested him in the Court of Conscience—that John Lee and Edw. Stafford, the serjeant-at-arms who arrested him, attend Lord Strickland, captain of his Highness's guard, to give account concerning the matter when Strickland shall appoint, and that he enquire and report thereon.

4. Maj.-Gen. Goffe's letter of 7 May to Sec. Thurloe, and a surcharge enclosed of public money remaining with John Woodman, late collector of sequestrations in Hampshire, referred to the Treasury Commissioners, to see that the State suffer no prejudice.

7. Dr. Owen, Mr. Caryll, and Mr. Sterry to read the catalogue of books in the library of the late Dr. Usher, archbishop of Armagh, and to report what manuscripts or other books should be bought by the State, and meanwhile the sale thereof is to be forborne.

8. The Admiralty Commissioners to consider the petition of Margaret, widow of Capt. Benj. Sacheverell, commander of the President frigate, who was killed on the 4th inst. in an engagement with an Ostend man-of-war, and to report.

9. Order—on report from the Committee to whom the charters for corporations were referred—that Pet. Brereton, Wm. Shephard, Thos. Manby, and Gabriel Beck consider all charters the renewing of which is prayed, and draw up the alterations proposed to be made, with such variations as they find best for religion and good government, and the discouraging of vice. Also make an estimate of the usual charge of passing charters, that it may be reduced to a moderate proportion, and dispatched quickly, and present what they prepare to the Committee for Charters. Also that they consider the charter of Blandford Forum. Annexing,

60. 1. Notes of alterations proposed in the new charter; e.g., in the words of incorporation; number of the aldermen and common council, reducing them to 34 instead of 42; the choice of mayor, aldermen, and common councilmen, high steward, recorder, and town clerk; the mayor, aldermen, &c., to be chosen by the corporation, instead of a previous nomination by the free burgesses. Four attorneys chosen by the corporation to practise in the town courts, removeable on misdemeanour. Also alterations in the mode of removing officers; fining those refusing office; naming of the officers; and licensing alehouses. The mayor and aldermen to choose 4 free burgesses yearly as serjeants of the mace. No fishermen who bring fish up the Colne to break bulk till they bring the fish to Colchester Quay. The corporation to choose the members of Parliament if any be required to sit. [2 double sheets.]

12. Order, on Sydenham's report from the Committee on several reports from the Treasury Commissioners,—one being an account of proceedings on the late proclamation for convicting recusants, by their not taking the oath of abjuration; the other a draft of instructions for the best improvement of papists and delinquents' estates,—to advise a warrant to pass the instructions under the Seal of the Exchequer to the several counties in England and Wales, directed to such persons as his Highness shall approve.

13. The Treasury Commissioners to consider fit persons to be Commissioners in the several counties, insert their names in the commissions, and send them up to his Highness.

Hele in his composition, for maintenance of ministers in the county who have not been approved by the Commissioners for preachers), whereupon the trustees seized the tithes, and recommended 20*l.* therefrom to the minister of Alvington, and 50*l.* for St. Ives, a market town with only 14*l.* a year for the minister—approving and ordering the said augmentations. 21. Approval of a certificate from the Trustees for Maintenance of Ministers of 29 April, for uniting the parishes of St. Mary and Benedict, and for uniting the rectory of All Saints and St. John's, in Huntingdon. Approved by the Protector, 13 June.

62. I. Jas. Warner [Weston?] to the King. I told you in my last, which is not to hand, that the factor whom I recommended to you was only unfortunate ; he still wishes to perform what he conditioned for, but his partners have not had his inclinations since the last great north wind sunk their prime vessel, and made them throw over much rich lading, for such was the tempest that the best pilots had their ships scattered, though not sunk.
I told you that your friend Blackman is far gone in the scurvy ; he is to try a course of steel at the fall of the leaf. I wish I could see you here, but it cannot be unless you compound with your creditors and some debtors at a much lower rate than is your due. If you go to law, you will recover nothing ; but if you can engage some of them to be witnesses for you, in time you may bring them all to what you please. [1 page.]
- June 13. 63. Brome Whorwood, sen., to Williamson. I am troubled that you London. do not get my letters and remittances for Brome. I shall therefore write by Robinson rather than Carbonel's factor. I will consult with Sir Fras. Norris about your intended motion with your charge, which I like. I am sorry they make so slow progress with their French, but better creep than stand still ; do all you can to promote it. Tell Brome I am sorry he is such a blockhead, pleasing himself rather than me. [1 page.]

64. Hum. Robinson to Williamson. Your bills will be answered to your content. I hope Mr. Calander is with you, and the cloth, &c., arrived. Mr. Thorndick gave me your MS. to send to Dr. Lough. All are well at College; Justice Lowther says you have another gentleman sent you. Mr. Lowther's father is here.

It is rumoured that some of our men are to besiege Dunkirk; meantime we are furnishing 30 new frigates to secure us against their pretences, and 10 soldiers are to be drawn out of each company for them. Our merchants and seamen have suffered much of late.

P.S.—Your letters cost more postage than before, I pay mine outward. We want 6 copies of Saranius' epistles, and 6 or 10 French testaments with Psalms. Mr. Calander's landlord will not pay for the books without his order. [1 page.]

65. Petition of David Fithey, merchant, Thos. Hare, commander of the Anne Piercy, and Laurence Browning, commander of the Francis and John, to the Protector. Our ships, of 260 tons each, bound for Archangel, are not allowed to sail from Gravesend, because your Highness has commanded their stay for 14 days, till some other ships of great burden, but no force, can go with them. By this we shall be greatly damaged, as our charges are 100% a week, and we shall lose this fair wind and the advantage of the market for our goods. We beg either leave to sail, or for the other ships to bear our charges meantime. With holograph reference by the Protector to the Admiralty Commissioners. [1 page.]

66. Thos. Pointer to the Navy Commissioners. I fear to displease you with my weakness, but I have much disquiet. I find my present employment very irksome, and clogging my enjoyment of better things, and would gladly leave it if I could do without it.

The fleet arrived here on the 5th inst., and forced a conclusion of the 5 years' work already spent, which would have taken 5 more in shuffling, had we not come and lain between the Brazils fleet and home. The Colchester went to Lisbon and received the 50,000% ordered to be paid on the agreement, and it has since been shipped in the Sapphire and Phoenix for England. The Rear-Admiral with his squadron were also sent for from Cadiz here. The Spanish business does not look handsomely, but I conceive our designs will take effect, and be greatly for the honour of the nation. We hear 4 Hollanders got into Cadiz with anchors, cables, powder, and shot, while the Rear-Admiral was watering at Tanzy [Tangiers?]. I think Cadiz, with the Spanish Armada lying unrigged, is worth the sending over 8,000 or 10,000 men, as if Cadiz should not be taken, yet the beleaguering of it, while we are destroying the Armada, would save a deal of charge, by keeping less ships upon that coast, and the Spaniard would be wholly undone, and we should thus be able, with less danger, to possess and keep any place we have a mind to for the future upon his sea coast.

P.S.—The Generals hearing that the man-of-war which took the Cullen was gone into Vigo with her prize, have sent the Fairfax with 5 others, either to bring her away or burn her. [2½ pages.]

When our debts at that place shall be totally cleared (which we hope through your care will now be soon effected), we resolve that one consulage extraordinary shall notwithstanding be continued on all goods both out and in, at all places in Turkey, to go upon the credit of those to whom the Company owes money, at the rate of 5s. the dollar, to be paid down by the rest, which last consulage we would have invested in silk or some other commodities, and sent hither for the Company's account, to be employed towards lessening their debts here. 67. Petition of John Pimlowe, minister of Holbeach, co. Lincoln, to the Protector. You granted an order for examination of my articles against John Hobson [see 26 Oct. 1655, and 20 Feb. 1656.], and appointed further proof at last Lincoln assizes; but partly through my absence, I had only a day's notice, and some of the witnesses could not come, but would come next assizes, only Mr. Hobson has terrified them, by threats and arrest, to put their hands to the contrary of what they deposed. I therefore beg a special order to Major-Gen. Whalley to issue a summons to the officers of towns to bring up the witnesses next assizes, or it will be impossible to proceed. With order accordingly. 18. Order—on a particular of money acknowledged by the respective persons holding it, to the late Commissioners for Discoveries, in all 2,206*l.* 11*s.* 7½*d.*, beside interest thereon, according to the date of the bonds—that the said particular be sent to the Treasury Commissioners, to have the money got in speedily, and that all papers, &c., concerning it be sent them also, as evidence to make out the said debts.

19. To advise his Highness to authorise the Treasury Commissioners to pay Walter Frost 140*l.* for the Council's contingencies, on account for paying the salaries for ½ year to the officers of the Trade Committee.

20. Order on report from the Committee of Council on Sir Humphrey Styles's petition, and a certificate from the Treasury Commissioners thereon,—the petition taking notice of divers intrusions and encroachments, by building or otherwise, within the bounds of the palace of Westminster, certified by an inquisition in the late King's time, and a grant made to the petitioner, 13 Car., of ⅔ of all compositions for the same, the other ⅓ being payable into the Exchequer, beside an annual rent for ever; in prosecution whereof he obtained a decree in the Exchequer against divers intruders to demolish the encroachments, in case of non-composition, to his charge of 2,000*l.*, and praying the like commission and grant, which statements the Committee find true, and think his Highness's interest is recoverable by law in the Exchequer Court—that the Treasury Commissioners put the matter into the best way for clearing his Highness's interest in the encroachments, and get possession thereof, and also allow the petitioner such part of the discoveries as they think meet. Approved 27 June.

21. The petition of Wm. Marketman referred to Jones, Sydenham, Desborow, Lord Deputy, and Lambert, to report.

22. Order that as Nich. Lockyer has not received any part of the sums ordered him 15 Nov. last [see p. 100 supra], to advise a warrant to the Treasury Commissioners to pay them from moneys due before the late Commissioners for Discoveries, amounting to 2,206*l.* 11*s.* 7½*d.*, beside interest, till 2,500*l.* is paid him, in lieu of the said order, of an order of the late Council of State of 30 June 1653, and of his Highness and Council of 6 Feb. 1653-4, settling lands value 200*l.* a year on him out of the late Deans and Chapters' lands, and on receipt thereof he is to convey Hambledon and Blackwell manors, co. Worcester, by him purchased, back to the State.

discoveries receive such discoveries as Rugely shall make, examine and proceed therein according to their commission, and allow Rugely the above sums specified. [I. 77, pp. 179-185.]

June 17. 72. G. Bodurda to Jno. Powell, Admiralty Chamber. Pray inform Col. Clerke that the Lord Chief Justice Glynn desires to speak to him to morrow morning, at the side bar, before the sitting of the Upper Bench Court. If my lord had known where to have met him, he would have saved him the trouble. [1 page.]

June 17. 73. Thos. White to the Navy Commissioners. I send up Jasper
Dover. Henrickson, late trumpeter of the Greyhound, who has come from Dunkirk in the packet boat, with a letter from the Admiralty Judges, desiring that their men may be sent over, as they send ours. I hear that that ship cost them very dear, viz., the lives of 60 persons, besides 18 wounded. It is said that 13 sail of Dunkirkers are to the westward of Dover in 3 fleets; I hope our frigates will spoil their sport. The Lord put a bridle into their nostrils, for they grow very insolent and increase much. They brag that our ships are undermanned. [¾ page.]

June 17. 74. C. George to Williamson. I send you a bill for 600 livres, Paris. having retained the surplus, 11*l.* sterling, on account. [French, ½ page.]

June 18. 75. Sir Fras. Norris to Williamson. Mr. Whorwood only said
Weston. he would send for his son when I sent for mine, but only that I love Ned's company, I think he is as well there; if he wishes to go further, I will not hinder. The route you speak of for Italy is somewhat dangerous, both by sea and land. Tell me what Ned desires; he will be much bettered by this going abroad. Do not let him have too much disputation about religion.

We have hot weather. Ned should avoid violent excursions and strong wine. God preserve him from infection. Tell him his colt is a very fine one. Private news. Noted as received Aug. 19. [1 page.]

June 18. 76. Capt. Jer. Smyth to the Admiralty Commissioners. I send The Essex, two papers received from Dunkirk respecting the exchange of Downs. prisoners, but not noticing the abuse of the English with them. Knipple, whom they wish to exchange for Joel Mitchell, is, they say, still here, and his father has got several able seamen, supposed to be merchants, as his prisoners till his son is restored. I hear 9 Dunkirk and Ostend men-of-war have gone westward, and if Capt. Mackey with his ship's head had plied off the coast of Flanders, according to orders, he would not have missed them, but they ranged westward as far as Dungeness. The Advice should be sent there, her commander being very active, and knowing the coast well. I hear from Dunkirk that 4 of their frigates meeting the Greyhound, they had a sharp dispute and boarded her, when she blew up, killing 60 of their men, and only 2 English being saved. There are 4 ships named in the Downs. [1¾ pages.]

The Essex,
Downs.

77. Capt. Jer. Smyth, to the Admiralty Commissioners. I find that the English put on board the Ostender exceeded the Ostenders, but they going away in the night (as I hear by one of them who has arrived in the Downs, and said they all landed safe in the Ostender's boat), next morning Hamilton, a Scotchman, cried out that they should not come on board to plunder, unless they would save all their lives, by taking them all aboard their frigates, which was all the refusal.

I have told all the commanders within my reach about increasing their complement of men. I enclose a list of 14 suspected seamen, English, Irish, and Scotch, amongst the Ostenders, whom I have ordered Capt. Plumleigh to carry with others to Dover and deliver them to the Deputy Governor, and to bring back a receipt for them, which he has done, the number mentioned being 112; 50 inconsiderable men, 25 of whom were youths, I discharged.

I hope the Admiralty Commissioners will put a more favourable construction on my last to the Admiralty Judges at Dunkirk, as I merely suggested the exchange of prisoners according to their quality, and not in number. They want masters of merchant-men released in lieu of commanders of their frigates. There were then nearly 200 Ostenders aboard the several frigates in the Downs, of which you had no notice, neither knew I that they should be set at liberty. John Mitchell, designated as a Dunkirk merchant, is only an ordinary seaman, and I engaged for his discharge as such; as for Knipple, I never heard of him before; I believe the Admiralty Judges there are now satisfied. I have again written them your pleasure about their prisoners released here, and complained of the abuse of the English with them. Particulars of ships. [3 pages.] Annexing.

June 19.

78. Petition of Devereux Wyatt, captain of Tenby garrison, to the Protector, for letters of reprisal against the Spaniards, and for some place in the Customs about Pembroke, his birth-place. When master of the Jeane of Tenby, coming from Sebastian's, bound for London, she was met in 1640 by Bowden Suecart, captain of a Dunkirk man-of-war, who boarded her, and stripping him of his doublet, presented a writing to him to subscribe, threatening to stab him if he did not; the effect of it was that his said ship was bound for France. The said captain thereupon brought the ship and lading for Dunkirk, and on the enforced confession, condemned it as prize and disposed of it. The damage proved in the Admiralty was 1,700*l.*, and for satisfaction of his loss there have been divers agitations with the Spanish Ambassador and Agent of Flanders, Sigor Claugon, but without effect. Is aged, and has 9 children, one in service at sea. With reference thereon to Council, 5 May, 1656. [1 page.] Annexing.

June 19. 79. Petition of George Martin, mayor, and the aldermen and inhabitants of Leicester to the Protector. Our unworthiness has deprived us of our former blessing of able and pious ministers, and we are as sheep without a shepherd, being numerous, but with no settled ministry. There are 6 parishes and 5 churches, all without incumbents, because the maintenance of all is not 100*l.* a year. This will lead to a famine of the word, ignorance, and profaneness. We therefore beg augmentations, which, with the revenues which we can raise from our small estates, will encourage ministers to settle among us. 37 signatures, including Wm. Simes, lecturer at Leicester. [1 double sheet.]

June 19. Order thereon in Council to recommend to the Trustees for Ministers augmentations for 3 able and fitting ministers for Leicester, the former order of restraint notwithstanding. Approved in person. [I. 77, p. 186.]

[June 19.] 80. Petition of John Dillingham, of Mellwood. Isle of Axholme, gentleman, to the Protector. On intelligence from London, on 14 June last, that on trial, the jury had found a verdict for Nath. Reading, and the participants in Hatfield chace, against the inhabitants of Epworth, Isle of Axholme, the latter reviled and threatened me because of my acquaintance with Reading, though I have always tried to compose differences; and on 16 June, Jas. Mawe and his sons drove cattle into 60 acres of my meadow, and pulled down fences. The tenants neither dare repair the fences nor drive away the cattle, and the commoners say they have as much right to defend their common with their swords as the Protector has the government he has taken upon him. They also wounded, and attempted to kill one of my tenants, who was subpoenaed as a witness on the trial, and said they would hang his quarters in several places.

I dare not leave my doors for fear of my life, and there is no remedy at law, as the justices of peace dare not act against the pleasure of the commoners. I beg, for the sake of the public peace, a speedy suppression of these violences. [1 sheet.]

On 14 March 1654-5, the Wednesday after the late rising at Salisbury, and the day on which that party was taken at South Moulton, co. Devon, my eldest son, Carew, aged 20, went to visit relatives in co. Devon, but was apprehended at Apsam Ferry, and sent to Exeter gaol, on suspicion of going to join the party. the company of the Nightingale, commanded by Capt. Robt. Vessey; we beg that some cause may be taken for prevention of the like, it having of late become a general distemper, and if not prevented, will in time very much prejudice his Highness's revenue. [$\frac{2}{3}$ page.] Enclosing,

83. I. Jno. Putnam to the [Customs' Commissioners]. While Capt. Robt. Vessey, of the Nightingale, was riding at anchor within my charge, I saw and heard of divers goods being sent on board for transportation to Ireland. I therefore went on board, but was not only not permitted to view them, but received divers affronts from the seamen; and even to the hazard of my life, being but a weakly man, I was thrown into the sea by one of the boat's crew, when coming ashore; they gave no reason for their affronts, but I surmise they feared discovery of merchants' goods. I complained to Capt. Vessey, and he replied that if I wanted to come on board again, I must find my own boat.

When ready to sail, the captain sent for me, and when I durst not go on board, he sent me a warrant on shore for 4 trusses of merchants' goods which were entered to go in a merchant ship for Ireland, but taken on the frigate, as also other goods and passengers, to the great prejudice of the Commonwealth, as regards Customs, and of merchant vessels trading in Ireland. I beg an order to Capt. Vessey, and all other captains of State's ships coming to Chester, to permit me to discharge my duty without interruption, and also a commission to act as a waiter and searcher. 85. Petition of Charles, Lord St. John, eldest son of John, Marquis of Winchester, to the Protector. By provision of my ancestors, and an Act of 27 Hen. VIII, I inherit certain lands which neither my father nor ancestors could dispose of from me; but as by a late Act they are to be sold for the State, I put in my claim to the reversion, which the Committee for Obstructions, on opinions of Lord Chief Justice Rolle and Justice Jermyn, disallowed, without hearing me or my counsel. I applied to you, and you ordered that Committee to certify, and meanwhile suspended proceedings; but now an order is made for payment of the second $\frac{1}{2}$ for the lands, which adjudges against my claim. I beg suspension and examination, for many other lawyers think my father could only forfeit his own estate for life in the land. With reference, 20 June 1656, to the Privy Council. [1 page.]

There are in or near Grimstone 100 families, $\frac{1}{2}$ of them unable to read, and within 4 miles, 30 other villages without a schoolmaster; whereupon 20 years ago, some well disposed persons erected a school, and endowed it with 5*l.* or 6*l.* a year, but through these distracted times, no addition has been made, as was hoped for, so that the school house is fallen into decay, the master gone, and error and malignancy like to flow in upon them. But that learning may not be altogether discountenanced, these persons have now provided a well-affected schoolmaster, an M.A., and intend to repair the school. Beg an augmentation for the school, which will oblige them to double their devotion, and prayers for his long and prosperous life. 5 signatures. With reference thereon to Council. June 26. 99. Petition of Peter Sterry, minister, and Rich. Bradshaw, to the Protector. The late Parliament in 1650 granted Sterry 100*l.* a year for life from undervaluations of compositions, which has not been paid the last 4 years, the profits accruing to the State. There is 765*l.* due to Bradshaw on public faith, for money lent for the service. Both beg to be paid out of a debt of 2,000*l.* owing to the late King, or other discoveries to be made by them. June 26. 100. Petition of Thos. Dickinson, alderman of York, to the Protector and Council, for payment of his arrears and losses out of his discoveries in the county and city of York. Had all his estate plundered by the late King's party, and his lands seized by the Earl of Newcastle, and given to Gen. King; his houses in the city and county possessed 2 years; his rents and goods, value 2,000*l.*, taken; and he, to secure himself, forced to live at great charge in Hull. Got no reparation from Parliament, though an Ordinance was passed by the Houses to satisfy such persons. Was appointed by Parliament 14 July 1647 governor of Clifford's Tower, York, but is 4 years and 4 months in arrears of pay. [1 page.] Annexing,

100. I. *Certificate by Lieut.-Col. Rob. Lilburne, Chr. Percehay, and Ralph Rymer, that they have examined his accounts, and there is due to him for pay 1,222*l.* 14*s.* 11*d.* York, 22 March 1655-6.* [1 page.]

100. II. T. Dickinson to Lord Lambert. I send my petition and account, but if there be anything you think I ought not to desire, I would rather suffer than offer anything not fit to allow. Lord Fairfax says that the sums should not be lessened, for I had no free quarter, or I would have deducted it. I ask for my losses from discoveries only, knowing the necessities of the State. If my petition is granted, I hope Mr. Rymer, the treasurer here, may be allowed to pay me here as he receives the money. York 22 March 1655-6. [$\frac{3}{4}$ page.]

7. Order on a report from the Committee on the petition of the Walloon congregation of Norwich,—representing that the petitioners set forth,—

That they have lately been hindered from setting to work strangers that have repaired unto them for the free exercise of their religion, so that without remedy the congregation will be ruined, and persecuted Protestants abroad discouraged to repair hither for shelter, and their poor left unprovided for:

That Norwich was the first place that received Protestant strangers, who taught the English various woollen manufactures, which formerly were exported, and they pray that the privileges granted them by Edw. VI., may be confirmed for free exercise of their religion in their own language, and of their trade, and that such liberty may be given to Protestant strangers repairing thither. They produce a grant made 1 Nov., 7 Eliz., that such 30 Dutchmen of the Low Countries in Flanders, alien born, householders or master workmen, as shall be licenced by the mayor, citizens, and commonalty of Norwich, may inhabit that city with their families and servants, not exceeding 10 in a family, take houses in the city for a term not exceeding 7 years, and in case any of the 30 die or depart, the mayor may admit such others as he thinks fit, notwithstanding 1 Rich. III., 32 Hen. VIII., &c.:

That they may exercise their faculties of making baize, arras, sayes, tapestry, mockadoes, stamens, kersies, and other outlandish commodities not usually made in England without penalty. The whole number, men, women, and children, not to exceed 300 at a time.

That no information be admitted to the impeaching hereof, and the grant to continue till repeal.

They also produce certificates from the mayor, aldermen, and and justices of peace for Norwich of 3 and 9 Jac., taking notice of the said grant of Queen Elizabeth, and that the strangers admitted thereby had introduced into England several manufactures of native wool, and had given work to many poor; that they submitted to the good constitutions devised for the city by the magistrates and partly by themselves, for their government, and making their stuffs so as to prevent prejudice.

That officers were yearly sworn in before the mayor, to examine the length, depth, and number of threads in their stuffs, and to seal such as they approved. By the said certificates it appeared that the strangers had lived in the said city 46 years before 9 Jac.

They also produce an order of King James and Council of 29 March 1612, noticing the privilege granted them for free exercise of their trade, in making stuffs of new drapery and other manufactures there, and of their being troubled for bringing up their children and servants therein, without binding them apprentices according to statute.

That they are a peculiar society, under government of the mayor, justices, and aldermen of the city, and exempt from that statute, and should enjoy toleration of their religion, and exercise of their trade.

That no informations for not serving as apprentices be accepted against them, and that those already preferred be discharged:—

Order thereon that the mayor, justices, and aldermen of Norwich be enjoined to allow the petitioners to enjoy all the privileges granted them by former kings and queens without interruption, till they show such reasons to the contrary as shall satisfy Council that the privileges should not be continued. Approved 27 June, and letter from Council to the mayor, &c., of Norwich to like effect, sent 2 July. [See I. 77, pp. 918–920.]

11. The petition of Martin Holman, of Bideford,—for the benefit of the Act of 10 May 1650, made directly against profane cursing and swearing, being treble costs, he having been sued for goods, distrained by force of a warrant upon that Act, in which suit the party was non-suited, and yet petitioner has been allowed but 10*l.* costs—referred to Maj.-Gen. Desborow and the Commissioners of the county, to see that the petitioner has justice done him, to the end that public officers be not discouraged in discharge of their duties.

12, 13. On report from the Committee on the reports from the Trade Committee, concerning wool and woollen manufactures—that it is a matter of great moment, but that it is very difficult to find out the grievances and apply fit remedies, and that while they are debating the matter, much wool is daily exported, so no time should be lost in offering to his Highness and Council for prevention thereof :

II. That the several clauses of the laws prohibiting the export of wools, &c., be inserted in the said proclamation.

IV. That the Customs' Commissioners and Officers in the several ports of England and at Berwick be enjoined to take sufficient security that all goods carried into Scotland be landed at some port there, and authentic certificates returned to the Customs' Officers of the port from which they were exported, before any bonds be cancelled or delivered up by the said officers, and that in case such certificates be not returned within 6 months, the bonds be returned to the Exchequer, there to be proceeded upon ; and that the Customs' Commissioners and Officers do their utmost to prevent the export of wool, &c.

v. That his Highness give strict orders to the Barons of the Exchequer and his counsel learned that there be a speedy prosecution made of such as are brought before them for exporting wool, &c. :—

Order that the said report be agreed with, and his Highness advised to give warrant for issuing such proclamation, and for writing such letters to the Councils of Ireland and Scotland accordingly.

The Admiralty Commissioners to receive and audit the accounts which Major Wade prays may be examined, about his receipts for service in the Forest of Dean, and certify thereon speedily, stating what allowance should be made him for that service, and whether he should be continued therein; and if so, prepare and present a commission and instructions in that behalf.

Devon. Approved 27 June.

23. The said 500*l.* to be applied towards the 2559*l.* 16*s.* 2*d.* taken up of Mr. Talbot, late receiver of the monthly assessments in co. Devon, and Gen. Desborow is to take order for the same, according to the purport of an order of 29 April last.

for. The Council of State is sad; things go not with the fleet as they desire.

The underhand dealings of Wildman with the King will come to nothing, for I am certain Cromwell knows it. Halsey employed me 9 months since on business to Bristol, and charged me with secrecy, but the first person I spoke with there told me every tittle of it, and something more, which was true. This continues, and I hear nothing about the King but they hear it long before. This is sent to an honest man in Bristol by a niece of his in London, at whose mother's Lord Rochester lay when last here.

I have long heard of Dick Pile's sanguine letters, but now John Chase tells me that his man and Col. Ger. Hollis are here to prepare for their master's coming in at Michaelmas at the furthest. The King's not coming to London keeps me here, but to no purpose; his business cannot be well done without him or an attorney to act at discretion. I hear from Scotland that a regiment designed to be shipped refused, so another regiment was brought to compel them; they fell to blows, and 56 were slain.

P.S.—The fleet was equally divided by the 2 generals, and lots were cast which should go with Gen. Blake to the West Indies, which might have been spared, for all refused to go there.

I know not which of the Streights you mean, but this one is swarthy, freckled, has a crooked finger, and a northern accent. By this you may discover whether or not you delivered the goods to him. [$1\frac{1}{2}$ pages; the italics are cyphers, partly decyphered.]

Paris. with him. I told Hopton and Pile that this was coming upon them, and they must study perfect obedience, but honest Pile is troubled, his business being anticipated after his running hazards some years. Cooper or *Thornton was enjoined to render an account to you, and you promised a return. Tell me whether you received the letters mentioned [noted in margin, No]. Douce, I told you, was to mean Thornton, but you seem to have read it Cooper, and haply it is he brought you the note from Pile; if it be not, it is a labyrinth built between Sir Edw. Hyde and his friends, too intricate for me to enter; only I told Armorer that our friends were troubled not to have some account of what they sent from the hands to whom they ordered it to be committed, and also to find that some to whom they were ordered to address themselves knew their business beforehand.

Armorer says that the Duke of York's clerk, lately come from you, is to satisfy everybody here, and that he was ordered by Hyde to tell his friends to give in their accounts to him. I replied that that person was a stranger to me, and unless I had it under the King's hand or yours, I should not notice it. I shall steer my course by your compass, so let me have your rules, for it is so difficult to run an even course that I am weary of it.

* In one of the 2 cypher keys Douce is put as cypher for Thornton, in the other Cooper—hence the confusion.—Ed.

I bade my sister send her account this way till I had your new address, which now I will send her, but you will find that letters sent that way will not come to hand. The King should settle an attorney on this side and in this place.

The Protector has laid aside thoughts of a Parliament, and is doubling the tax without them; "his family, you will find on all hands, is held to be sad, and perhaps some reasons for it."

The decimation amounts to much less than was expected, so his inevitable wants drive him to the other extremity of doubling. I send you rough copies of letters from my sister, enclosing one from John Weston.

The French news is sad; 4 captains of the guard and many brave men were lost in the last rally at Valenciennes, yet we hope to gain the town. [$2\frac{1}{4}$ pages; italics are cyphers undecyphered.]

108. Account of Sir Wm. Davenant's opera. The bills are entitled "The entertainment by music and declarations after the manner of the ancients." Scene, Athens. They began at the Charter House 23 May 1656, at 5s. a head; 400 persons expected, but only 150 came. The personages were Diogenes, who spoke against, and Aristophanes for, the opera; then citizens of London and Paris discussing the defects of each other's cities, in buildings, manners, diet, &c. The Londoner has the better of it; and ends with describing a scene in which 2 crocheteurs of Paris sink down under their heavy burdens, before they will cease a contest in which each wishes to give the other the way. The music was in a covered place and concerted, ending with new songs relating to the victor (the Protector), the last, deriding Paris, ended,—

"And though a ship her scutcheon be,
Yet Paris hath no ship at sea."

Hen. Lawes and Dr. Coleman composed the songs, Capt. Cook, Ned. Coleman and his wife, and others sang them. It lasted $1\frac{1}{2}$ hours, and is to continue 10 days.

There has lately been a cockney feast of the better sort of citizens born within the walls at Merchant Tailors' Hall; 3,000 dined in one room, and 300 in another, at 5s. a head. By the care of city cooks and caterers, such a feast was never seen in the city. Endorsed by Sec. Nicholas "June 1656, Sir Wm. Davenant's opera."* [1 sheet.]

That by order of Maj.-Gen. Goffe and the County Commissioners, the money is paid by Albery's executors to Thos. Collins of Chichester, treasurer for moneys raised by them. Col. Lilburne and Maj.-Gen. Butler being consulted on the subject, think that as the money had long remained concealed in Albery's hands, the discoverers should have their share, and the remainder should be paid to Capt. Draper and the officers. They therefore advise one half, being the highest proportion allowed, viz.—

"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Mr. Maplesdon's accounts agree with Mr. Turner's in London, and although there are some receipts wanting, yet as no one complains of non-payment, and he has made some very good bargains [of timber] and been very honest in his duties, there need be no delay in passing his accounts.	15

1655. Nov. 3	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Portsmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Asks the various prices of masts, as there are many in a vessel in the harbour which may be had, and are much wanted. The storekeeper wants 500 yards of red cotton. With a note of prices of masts enclosed.	Vol. 116. 34, 35
"	"	"	Particulars of ships in hand, and officers and men required for them. Mustered 127 men on the Marston Moor, and will turn over 40 from the Gainsborough and Advice, and more will be obtained by pressing and from other ships. Spoke to the captain about the complaints against the master, but he excused him by taking the blame upon himself; as the service requires such expedition, it would damage it to be too particular. Sends a demand for extra stores, and asks how far to comply with it, and what necessary money is to be allowed for sick and wounded. Ordered several of Gen. Blake's squadron to be careened, but as they are much eaten, they will require sheathing. Several of the inhabitants and traders of Guernsey and Jersey, hearing of the difference with Spain, desire a convoy for their vessels, as they have property of great value on board, the loss of which would be their undoing. With examination of Thos. Burges, boatswain of the yard, respecting junk, hawsers, and spikes, formerly belonging to the Sovereign and Resolution, seized by him in a passage boat at Portsmouth. Also deposition of John Moore, of Gillingham, blacksmith, that the iron work seized was bought at a sale ordered by the Navy Commissioners, although he also bought some from the officers of the Resolution, Triumph, and James. On further examination, 1st Jan. 1655-56, admits that the iron work seized is the same he bought of the latter persons.	36-38
"	5 Adm. Com.	"	Order for a bill to Capt. John Stoakes, of the Unicorn, for 18 l. 16 s. for his charges in wearing a jack flag as Rear Admiral in the Straits, by commission from Gen. Blake, on the departure of Rear-Adm. Jordan.	39

"	Christ. Pett, Woolwich.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will use the men allotted him in expediting the work, but wants 40 more, or will have to take some from the Amity and Guinea, which will retard their launching. Wishes to dock the Diamond, as the Mermaid will be launched next tide, and the dock should not lie open.	43

"	"	"	As little progress is made in sheathing the Speaker, and fitting out o'er ships at Woolwich and Deptford, desire that some of their number will visit the yards every other day, and quicken the officers in their duties.	54
"	Navy Com ^{rs} .	Adm. Com.	Having contracted with the shipwrights for building 4 advice boats, desire order to go on with them; also some imprest bills for money on account. Various stores are required, which may be had on reasonable terms for ready money, or upon the personal security of the purveyors; but otherwise only upon such extraordinary terms as would be both dishonorable and unprofitable to the State. Ask order therein, as one of the State's purveyors complains of having been lately arrested on the Exchange for a debt of the State.	55
"	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will observe their orders as to entering more shipwrights, seamen, &c.; desires that the seamen may be borne on day wages, and money may be imprest to the clerk of the check to pay them off once a week, and that Mr. Thomson may have a press warrant. "	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth.	"	Sends a return of clerks of the check and stewards on board the ships in harbour. The Tiger has sailed, but her steward is at London, much in debt for his last victualling, and may seek further employment, for which he is not capable.	58

"	Jno. Dymock	"	Sends account by John Davies of cables, sails, and other stores put on board the Hannibal at Deptford, 25 Aug. 1655, for transportation to the Straits, and receipt by Thos. Newberry for 200 barrels of powder returned by Capt. Wm. Haddock, her commander, 3 Nov.; certifies that Capt. Haddock delivered up all the remainder of his stores at Portsmouth, except a 14 inch cable; with estimate of the tonnage of the ship by Wm. Badley, of Tower Wharf, 5 Jan. 1655-6.	63-6
"	Mark Harrison, Gift, Jamaica.	[Adm. Com.]	Arrived at Barbadoes with the rest of the division under Major Robt. Sedgwick, 26 Aug.; remained 12 days to water and refit, and then sailed to St. Christopher's for men and news of Gen. Penn's fleet; but neither expectations being answered, proceeded for St. Domingo, Cape Tibron, and Jamaica, where they met Adm. Goodson looking out for them.	67
"	Com. Peter Pett, Chathan.	"	The Indian has sailed, and the Bear is being sheathed and will soon be dispatched. Recommends Robt. Rose, appointed steward of the Victory on recommendation of Capt. Lane, for the purser's place, he having been in all the engagements. The boatswain of the Indian is a drunkard and disobedient, and might have split the captain's head with an axe, but for the interference of the master.	68
"	Aug. Aldridge, Lydney, Dean Forest.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Is testing the iron for anchors, &c., according to orders sent to Major John Wade, and does not doubt its goodness; is also continuing the making of trenails, &c., notwithstanding the heavy rains.	69
"	Robt. Page	"	Desires they will pay to Chas. Aston his imprest bill on account for two ketches building by him.	70
"	Phineas Pett, Chat-ham.	Robt. Blackborne.	Could not wait on him owing to the fitting out of the ships, but hopes on Capt. Taylor's arrival to procure 3 or 4 days' liberty. Has 4 ships graved, and is in hand with the Bear, and nearly 100 men entered, but if the Commissioners expect such a sudden dispatch of all the ships, they must add 60 more shipwrights and 40 caulkers; the Triumph would take 220 men for a month, there being now 200 shipwrights at work on her. Hopes if he has found any of the great carpenters false in their trust, he will remove them. Recommends several. Wants the draft of the 2nd rate ship by the bearer.	71

1655. Nov. 10	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Concerning the officers of the Dragon, hears that the clerk of the check is an able man, but officers generally forbear reporting lest they should be accounted informers, so that their testimony is often of little value. Has desired the captains to inform their men that if they stay they shall be immediately entered, as also to persuade them to come down in 2 or 3 weeks, but little will be done unless they are paid. The Portsmouth and Tiger requiring to be victualled cannot act as convoys, but the Gainsborough and Advice may. The Dartmouth has sailed for the Downs, but has had 4 men drowned by the upsetting of her boat. The same day an explosion occurred on the Kent, through the yeoman of the powder room dropping a spark from a candle; he was much injured, 3 or 4 planks started, and a bulk head or two blown down; has examined the business, and sends the depositions of Rich. Fullaway, the yeoman, Wm. Wilson, and Thos. Briant. Recommends Mr. March for the place of lieutenant in the Newberry or Jersey, and Robt. Neate as purser for the Cardiff. The Marston Moor will sail on Monday. The ketch has gone from Cowes for New England with the Hopewell pink. Wants a warrant to press shipwrights, caulkers, &c. All the ships that came home from the Straits with Gen. Blake ought to be sheathed, as also those going southward.	Vol. 116. 74-76
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	To like effect. Expected instructions for Capt. Myng's sailing; is sorry to hear the tidings of Col. Harvey; is glad at the peace with France, and hopes this nation will chiefly look after peace with God.	77
"	Major N. Bourne, Navy Office.	"	Met the ordnance officers at Deptford, and set out a piece of ground which may be made fit to receive 4 or 500 guns and cartridges at a small cost; put the ships there in a way for a quick dispatch, and, perceiving neglect, told all the officers to look after their respective charges, and when they saw a flag on any ship, to repair thither and lend assistance. Desires a survey of the Crow and 4 others, as they will be more expense than profit. If there is much ice this winter it will prove very hazardous to the ships there.	78
"	Thos. White, Dover	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has apprehended Theop. Soot and put him in the common gaol, and desires further order. The packet from Calais reports that Capt. Carey has gone out in a man-of-war of 10 guns.	79

"	Thos. Haiter, Portsmouth.	Edw. Hopkins, Navy Com.	Has paid the Langport and 3 other ships, and will despatch the rest. Chas. Oliver is the man who counterfeited his own ticket, omitting 5 l. 1 s. 0 d. which has been charged on it for clothes; if he is not yet freed he can be charged with it.	81
"	Navy Comrs. -	Adm. Com.	Have used their utmost endeavours to get men and provisions for the dispatch of the ships, but cannot obtain provisions without money; and as the treasurer cannot advance any upon imprest to the purveyors without order, the work will be at a stand.	82
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Begs a press warrant for 50 caulkers, directed to Benj. Boate, the master caulker at Deptford; they will grant him prest and conduct bills.	83

Attaway, for 9s., to save Crocombe, the master, throwing them overboard, and gave the money to the two mates and the yeoman, as an encouragement to lie on board, but that he never embezzled a hawser, new ropes, or anything else at Queenborow, Plymouth, or elsewhere; also examination of Attaway acknowledging that he bought the paper stuff for 10s. and resold it at Mr. Taylor's paper mills, near Alsford, for 3s. per cwt., and that there was 5 or 6 cwt.	85, 86

Sends examinations taken by himself and Capt. Smith in Rogers' business. With order for the stowage room in the Indian as requested.	Vol. 116. 99, 100
"	Thos. White, Mayor, Dover.	Navy Comrs	Has apprehended Theop. Scott and put him in gaol, and desires further order	101
"	Navy Comrs. -	Adm. Com.	Thos. White, mayor of Dover, has apprehended Theop. Scott, boatswain of the Golden Cock, for embezzlement of a cable. Have examined Edw. Staddon, ropemaker at Blackwall, who says that he bought the same of Scott for 30 l. , and Jeremy Monk, Scott's servant, helped to get the cable by night into a boat. With the 2 examinations, and copy of White's letter of 11 Nov.	102-105
"	Jas. Abelson -	Navy Comrs	Sends some warrants and desires order therein, as on account of hastening the Mermaid to sea, neither himself nor the officers can attend them.	106
"	Robt. Blackborne, Whitehall.	"	The Admiralty Commissioners desire they will make some allowance to the bearers for apprehending [Rich.] Hall, and as an encouragement to further service.	107
"	Major N. Bourne, Navy Office.	Adm. Com.	Had arranged for more stowage room in the Indian before receiving their letter. Finding an excess in the boatswain's stores, gave the captain a warrant to return a new cable and several coils of rope; more care is required in apportioning stores, there being much waste in that particular, and especially when cordage is so high. There are 150 men on board; expects her full complement by the time she arrives in the Downs; but the boatswain is a drowsy, idle fellow. Called at Woolwich on the way home to quicken the despatch of the ships in the docks there, and desires an order for their sheathing.	108
"	Navy Comrs. -	"	Send up Rich. Hall, waterman, with his examination, for receiving a new coil of rope out of the Indian in the Hope, which he offered to sell at Woolwich; he says he gave 20 s. for it, and will be hanged rather than confess of whom he purchased it; desire he may be made an example of, or there will be no hopes of redress. If men will venture to sell away such necessary provisions when engaged upon so long a voyage, what can be expected from them when they have other and better opportunities? In all similar discoveries, none of the commanders or other officers are so far guilty as to give any information, whereas if they were diligent and faithful, they might sometimes attain it.	109, 110
"	Ordnance Officers -	"	Having contracted with Rich. Fore and Robt. Richbell, merchants of London, for 200 tons of foreign iron ordnance at 13 l. 7 s. 6 d. a ton, to be transported Customs' free, desire order to the Commissioners of Customs accordingly, that they may proceed with the shipping of them.	111
"	Chris. Pett, Woolwich.	Navy Comrs	Although he has entered the full number of all sorts of workmen allotted, being 272, they are insufficient for carrying on the work ashore and afloat; wants 40 or 50 more. Particulars of ships.	112

Durant, of Canterbury, intimating that he has signed a bond with Mr. Wilkes, jurat of Sandwich, as security for Martin Simond, as purser of the Bear; his father was a godly man and good preacher. Recommends Mr. Lightfoot, late steward of the Naseby, for employment. Captains Wilkes and Dare have arrived to join their ships.	Vol. 116. 113, 114

" 15	"	"	Sends list of ships appointed for the southward, and asks how many are to be sheathed at Portsmouth, that provision may be made, but the want of money will be the chief obstruction; it seems strange to all he treats with that they have to wait 8 or 9 months for it, and that many of their bills are yet unpaid. The Marston Moor has sailed and the Gainsborough and Advice are in the Roads, but they want men, and press warrants to obtain them.	116
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	Is sorry the new rope-house is likely to remain useless; although he bought a parcel of cordage at 42s. per cwt., is not likely to buy any more under 45s. Is well supplied with masts, save a few of particular sizes which can be had at a cheap rate; desires order to purchase them. A surgeon should be sent down for the Cardiff. Has received order from the Admiralty Commissioners for sheathing the ships from the Straits, as also some others, and will want 6 or 8,000 deals and 10 or 12 tons of hair. Noted that he is to buy the masts, and that a surgeon will be sent down speedily.	117

1655. Nov. 17	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	An examination of the accounts of Capt. Edw. Tarleton, late commander of the Isip , find he had 330 l. 4 s. imprested to him by bills, whereof 177 l. 15 s. 6 d. has been made good, and he also sent in a bill of expenses for 148 l. 9 s. 9 d. , which if allowed cleared his imprests to 3 l. 18 s. 9 d. , but he remains charged with the whole of the imprests in the treasurer's books, until his accounts are examined and a bill passed in the Navy Office to the treasurer. As the ship and his accounts were lost, know no other way than to charge what is thought reasonable to the account of the ship in general, and if he falls short of his expectations, he has only himself to blame for not sending up former accounts.	Vol. 116. 141, 142
" 18	Capt. John Taylor, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Conferred with Mr. Aldridge about the timber in Dean Forest, and estimated the charges, and is confident he will perform what he has undertaken if there are no obstructions. There is little timber at Chatham fit for the great ship, or to be obtained out of Kent under 2 s. to 2 s. 6 d. a foot, which will make a dear ship; hopes they will treat with Aldridge and supply him with men and money, as no man is more fit; he and the master shipwright will give him full instructions for converting the timber. If he is ordered to convert 1,000 loads, and to husband it, and then give an account of the charge, including his own salary, they will see what encouragement there will be to go on.	143

" "	Jno. " "	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Find that purser in the 2nd and 3rd rate ships have heretofore been allowed one servant each, but in the 4th, 5th, and 6th rate, the State was so far from bearing purser's servants that they did not allow pursers themselves. Boatswains of the 'st, 2nd, 3rd, and 4th rate had a servant in ordinary, and gunners the like, but neither of them had any in the 5th and 6th rates, and on 6th rates the boatswain was borne and no gunner. When at sea, the purser, gunner, and boatswain had 2 servants each, and one only each in 4th, 5th, and 6th rates, unless by the connivance of the captains.	148
" "	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a letter from Capt. 1655. Nov. 20	Adm. Com. - Augustin Aldridge, Lydney, Dean Forest.	Navy Com ^{rs} "	Order for refitting and victualling the Nonsuch . Hopes his accounts came to hand; of the 400 l. received by order on his entrance 5 Dec. 1654, and 50 l. imprest since, his accounts to 30 Sept. last amounted to 381 l. 14 s. , since which he received 50 l. more, out of which he paid for the ground the State's timber lies upon. 4 l. 10 s. for damage done by his men trespassing, and for felling and squaring timber. Has 25,000 trenails ready, which at 40 s. per 1,000 makes the 50 l. , besides the rent of the ground and the trespass. Cannot raise a penny, has spoiled 3 horses, and his employment affords little profit or pleasure; desires a supply.	Vol. 116. 153 154
"	Capt. Wm. Badley, Woolwich.	"	Must point out the great danger their ships are in while riding at Woolwich; they cannot continue lying there 3 abreast safely, they might be moored nearer at less cost. It is difficult to obtain men to work at night, docking and undocking; wants 2 or 3 practical men sent down to consider what is best to be done for the security of the ships, as Woolwich is a bad road. Would come up for his bill of imprest and some money, but cannot be spared.	155
"	Rich. Braunston, Deptford.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for his kindness in the deplorable condition in which himself, daughter, and friends are placed by the negligence of her husband Dan. Russell; if the Admiralty Commissioners will release him from imprisonment, will engage for his honesty for the future. The master of the Recovery would take him as a mate, and he is more fit for that than boatswain, as the occasion of doing ill would be taken away. The charge against him is made by a thief who was his boy, and probably the sole cause of the mischief. There is 20 l. due to him for wages and victuals, and if he loses that, and is at 20 l. charge while in prison, he will pay dearly for his neglect, and cause others to take warning by his example.	156
"	Major Neh. Bourne, London.	Adm. Com.	Went to Woolwich and Deptford to dispatch the ships fitting out there, and sends particulars. Complains of the great expense of mooring 5 named; it would be better to sell them at a small sum than be at a constant charge for such ugly beasts. Particulars of ships.	157
"	Navy Comrs.	"	Have endeavoured to observe their order about the remainder of the clothes provided by Vice-Adm. Goodson, and returned in the ships from the west, and have sent several times to Gen. Penn to join therein, but he desired time to confer with the Commissioners. Must wait his pleasure, as Mr. Noel is not disposed to take them.	158
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	Will stow the 80 or 100 tons of provisions besides the ships' stores; has ordered the 1,200 bags of bread intended for the Indian to be distributed between 4 other ships. Is fitting the ships, but wants seamen.	159
"	Thos. Smith, Navy Office.	Robt. Blackborne.	As the Crescent is broken up, recommends her captain, Thos. Thorowgood, brother of the master attendant at Portsmouth, for employment; also Thos. White for a purser's place.	160

Com. -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order that as a quantity of materials, tools, and provisions has been prepared by a committee in London for the officers and soldiers in Jamaica, they consult [Martin] Noel and Capt. Alderne as to the storage thereof in the ships designed for Jamaica, and certify how they are distributed.	Vol. 116. 163
"	" -	"	Order to send an account what stores and provisions have been put on board the Indian, over and above her usual proportion.	164
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Ports- mouth.	Adm. Com.	Will give order respecting the Cardiff, which has been detained by weather, and hasten the fitting of the frigates in harbour. Knowing the present straits for money, will be as frugal as possible. If they will direct their treasurer to issue 3,000 l. , with that, the payment of bills under 5 l. , and the agreements he will make with men to stay in course, he may do pretty well; will not issue more than he is constrained to, and only for goods that he cannot procure without. Was employed upon a service in riding about the country, and is anxious to return an account, the time drawing near when the State will be a loser; asks an appointment for him to attend them thereon.	165
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	To like effect. Received his of the 20th, which speaks of the slow actings of the Whitehall Commissioners in nomination and determination, but makes good the old saying as to great bodies. Is sorry to hear of the miscarriage of men in public trusts, and would have honest men stand clear, but those that are so only in show are discovered. Recommends Mr. March as lieutenant in the Newberry and Robt. Neate for purser.	166
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	Thanks for their ready compliance as to things demanded. Particulars of stores wanted. Agrees with the master shipwright as to the necessity for erecting a wharf 250 feet long and 7 high, against which they might lay the masts, now a mile off, expensive to fetch, and not to be had in bad weather.	167
"	Rich. White, boat- swain of the Gillyflower .	Adm. Com.	Petition for the boatswain's place in the Bridgewater lately built at Deptford; has served 7 years; been in all the engagements against the Dutch, and never before sought preferment; with certificate by Gen. "	Adm. Com. -	Navy Com ^r	They are to speak again to Gen. Penn, to appoint a person to join them in surveying the clothes returned from Jamaica, and if he refuses, to order them to be viewed and laid up in store for the use of Vice Adm. Goodson, he being accountable for them; also to grant bills of imprest to the builders of the advice boats, for such amount as they think fit.	170

" "	" "	Navy Com ^{rs}	Gave their order relating to pursers to the clerk of the check, but if pursers are not borne, they will not attend or take any care about petty warrant victuals, for when stewards are absent at London seeking pursers' places, the sailors get discouraged and leave the ships. Has taken care to reduce the store rooms in the Lion, Mathias, Convertine, and Bear; could more readily answer their expectations if he knew the number of men and the quantity and quality of the 8 months' provisions, but Capt. Wishes the captain of the Mathias were here to take care of his charge. Lieutenant Hall is a fit man for the service.	236

1655. Dec. 15	Rowland Humphrey, Merlin.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Is in a sad condition, there being very few that have a dry cabin or hammock, although the ship was gravely at Portsmouth when he came out, and being visited by the small pox, has been forced to send some men on shore at Deal; others daily fall sick, and not above 55 are able. Has received 10 days' more provisions, and orders from Capt. Young, Commander-in-Chief, to go to his station off the North Foreland, but being very unfit, desires they will consider the case. As the captain has married a wife at Deal, supposes his condition is better than theirs. The Fairfax ought to be girdled, as well as sheathed, and will take a month to complete. Sends a sample of the bad sheathing nails, also some of Mr. Loader's, made at Chatham. Is in great want of seamen, having to supply each ship, as finished, with sufficient to carry her to the Hope.	Vol. 117. 88
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	"	The master shipwright and other officers conceive the Fairfax should be girdled, as well as sheathed, having been damaged by lying on the ground at Portsmouth; Capt. Taylor fears the works will take a month. As her men will not be easily invited to do duty on any other ship, suggests that they be turned over to the Vice-Admiral's ship, and he directed to see it done; or else that they be at once discharged, as, when their money is spent, their return may be expected. Wants the master of the Rainbow, and all other officers, sent down forthwith, with strict charge to attend to their duties until their ships are in the Hope, as the service is much prejudiced by their absence. Is glad that a press has been sent out, as he much wants seamen; also that Capt. Bourne's men have been sent for. The Naseby will be launched on Tuesday in the dock; she did not look much like an admiral, but if she proves to be so, she will deserve 100 men.	89
"	"	Adm. Com.	Recommends Edw. Moizer, boatswain of the Half Moon, for removal into the Princess Maria or Elias. "	Christ. Coles -	"	They ordered a bill of imprest to be made out in Mr. Shish's name, for payment of part of the 1,500 l. due for timber delivered. Has used his utmost endeavours to preserve his credit, but cannot subsist or show his face for want of money; begs another like bill of imprest for 600 l. for goods delivered 6 months since at Chatham, but if it is not in Mr. Shish's name, the treasurer will not pay a penny upon it. Wyloughby, Portsmouth.	"	Mr. Hubbard is not unwilling to serve, though troubled that so many inferior should be advanced before him, but he is connected with a vessel having several owners, who are unwilling he should leave them, yet he will probably accept the Speaker. Will husband all moneys and expenses, but the bad weather hinders the works. Wants copies of the new instructions, as Capt. Saunders of the Tiger and several others are ignorant of them. 1655. Dec. 18	Major N. Bourne, Woolwich.	Adm. Com.	Finding that the works to be done on the Plymouth, Bridgewater, and Diamond under water are completed, and that there is not sufficient to justify the loss of another spring tide, and men offering themselves to be entered on board, who if refused, may turn their thoughts another way, desire they will consider as to their being launched this spring tide, which will be at its height tomorrow; the only objection is the uncertainty of the frost. The office having previously a good reputation for punctual payment, they bought cheaper than private persons; but as the sellers cannot now get either principal or interest, they will not trust unless at exorbitant rates, or sell for ready money.	130

1655. Dec. 22	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has not done anything with the clothes, as the orders differed, one stating that they were to be viewed and laid up in the stores on account of Vice-Admiral Goodson, and the other, that such as were fit were to be distributed amongst the ships; but if they will send the prices they cost, will do what he can. Has the certificate about Amfield Great Park, which he will put among other like papers, and give an account of all when he comes to London. The proportion of stores intended for the fleet ought to be settled; can spare some masts, timber, &c., out of the stores; suggests the hiring of a vessel now at Portsmouth, to receive them, as another may not be present for many months. Begs payment for the master of the Fortune, as the contract was for ready money; the agreement respecting the shot was made by Mr. Sewell, who ought to certify what it was.	Vol. 117. 140
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Received the instructions for pursers and the pamphlet. Is proceeding with the works; asks if any more ships are appointed for that port. Will victual several next week. Hopes the Commissioners will not forget Robt. Neale.	141
"	Capt. Jeffery Dare, Bear, Hope.	Adm. Com.	Sends the articles exhibited by his carpenter against Mr. Burrowes, late clerk of the check, which he alleges he will substantiate by the evidence of a dozen witnesses, whose names are also sent, viz., drunkenness, selling strong drinks, causing false musters, &c. With depositions of Robert Fisher, carpenter of the Bear, and 6 others, before J. Fowler, Judge Advocate General. 31 Dec. 1655, and 4 Jan. 1655-6, that while at Barbadoes, Burrowes, then clerk of the check, but now lieutenant in the Convertine, was continually drunk, supplied the company with strong drink, falsified the returns of men on board, and divided profits with the steward; also Lieut. Burrowes' denial of the charge, which he attributes to spite through stopping the wages of Fisher's servant for stealing some clothes.	142
"	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Send the examinations of the officers of the Hare ketch. Have also examined some of her convoy, as to her running on ground and being lost near the Whittaker; they endeavoured to excuse her miscarriage by the thickness of the weather, but if more circumspection and diligence had been used, she might have been brought off, as well as the others in her company.	143
"	M. Poillemache, the Ship.	[Mayor of Dover?]	Sends a list of his 45 soldiers, and begs better treatment for them	144
"	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	The masters of the Centurion and Hampshire are both able men, but cannot say who is most fit for what they have in view. Mr. Patten, however, is an ancient seaman, and without exception. Will pay off the Merlin when she comes in. The masters for the Taunton and Jersey are come down. With note of their other officers.	145, 146
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	Capt. Blake, who is ordered from the Hampshire to the Newberry, desires that John Bishop, his surgeon, may accompany him. Wants to know speedily if any masts and other stores are to be sent to Plymouth, as an opportunity presents of securing a ship.	147

1655. Dec. 25	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Desires the purser of the Taunton may be sent down, or another appointed, as for want of one her beer was sent back.	Vol. 117. 148
"	Thos. Scott and 2 others, Deptford .	"	Received their order for dispatch of the ships at Deptford, but the ice is so great that more than ordinary care has to be used to keep them fast, their cables being liable to be cut therewith, and no boat can come from or go to them.	149
"	Thos. White, Doer .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has taken bail of Mr. Delare and Fred. Devink for the appearance of Theop. Scott before them next week. Cannot say anything for or against him, but is desired by others to suggest that he was an honest able seaman, and has done good service; although he pleads not guilty, the witnesses say otherwise. Hopes, however, the tears of his wife and mother may incline them towards him. With like letter (damaged) of 17 Dec.	150, 151

Was in the last employment there, and in service before at Lisbon, &c., but is discouraged to see younger men preferred before him. With certificate by John Lambert and 4 others.	155, 156
"	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham .	Robt. Blackborne.	Recommends the said petition. Rowdon was in all the engagements against the Dutch, and went on the western voyage on his promise to get him preferment on his return. Recommends John Coates, who has been employed fitting out ships, to succeed him.	157
"	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Particulars of ships. Neither the purser of the Taunton nor Kent have appeared, and the work proceeds heavily for want of men. Will deliver the warrants and supply the captains with money to press men.	158

Wants a foremast, and there are two at Kinsale; asks whether to buy one, although they ask 40 l. each, which is an unheard-of price, considering the open trade with the Sound and Norway; or whether to go to Wexford or Waterford, where he may have some belonging to two ships cast away; at reasonable rates. Asks leave to expend money for necessaries, as it will save much trouble; also instructions as to surprising Spanish subjects.	168

Mr. Meech, the storekeeper, having been absent since Monday, enquiries were made, when it appeared that he had been with a brother and some friends at Rochester until yesterday, when he left his cloak and gloves, and has not since been heard of. It is feared he has thrown himself into the river. He has of late been very melancholy, on account of some brass sheavers being missing, which he had charged in his accounts. 1655. Dec. 29	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	[Robt. Blackborne.]	Received the instructions for Robt. Neate, who cannot give the security required, being too remote from those who know him. Is not ungrateful for the Commissioners' respect, but thinks it is an accommodation to the service to present honest and fit men; believes there is more of form than worth in much of the security taken, as many pursers and their securities are not worth $\frac{1}{4}$ of what they bind themselves in. The ship from the Bermudas has been in port several days, and says that Vice-Adm. Goodson has gone to leeward. Is proceeding with the works, and as he hears the fleet is officered, desires a list of the names. Has sent him a parcel of Bermuda oranges for sauce.	Vol. 117. 174

Has a month's provisions left.	177
"	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	"	Has given the clerk of the check and storekeeper the Admiralty Commissioners' order, and they may expect punctual accounts. Does not know what is intended by it, but supposes they want an account of such bills as are made and signed, but are not yet presented to the treasurer for payment, without which they will hardly know their debts; is daily receiving things at this time of action. Has purchased 3 lasts of tar for present use, and desires a ton from London by Thursday next.	178

Was gunner of the Mayflower from 1 Nov. 1652 to 11 Apr. 1655, and had 56 l. due, but the ordnance officers have deducted 30 l. 9 s. on his accounts for embezzlements, of which he was innocent, and which occurred when he was ill. "	Navy Comrs. -	Adm. Com.	Sent a warrant to Christ. Pett, master shipwright at Woolwich, to fit out the Marigold to carry provisions for the fleet, and enclose his reply, that as she has been leaky ever since she came from the West Indies, and is doubly sheathed, it will take much time and expense to stop her leaks and make her fit; he suggests some other ship should be used.	57, 58
"	Adm. Com. -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to make out a bill to Phineas Pett, master shipwright's assistant at Chatham, for 12 l. , paid by him for 9 months' rent of Mr. Meech's house. Pett is not to be accountable for any rent claimed.	59

Wants seamen.	60
" 12	Capt. Phil. Gethings, the Preston, Downs .	"	Was away ill while his frigate was being tallowed at Portsmouth, so that his men were very negligent in their attendance; one or two having affronted Mr. Steven-ton's servant, wrote for their names, intending to punish them at his return to his ship; but on an order shown him by Capt. Myngs of the Marston Moor, directing all commanders to spare him so many men, discharged 30 of the most refractory of his company, and Mr. Steven-ton coming on board the next day to muster, they were pricked out of pay and victuals for the time they lay ashore. It is false that he agreed that they should be so pricked for 8 months; only agreed they should for the month they were absent on shore; as this would deprive them of 8 months' pay, begs consideration, or their wives and families will perish in the streets.	61
"	Capt. Fras. Parke, Mathias, Tilbury Hope .	"	Asks an order to Thos. Jeffery, his master, to receive press and conduct money, having hitherto disbursed his own. Sent his pinnace to press men, but, the wind being contrary, could not get any. Will sail to the Downs as ordered.	62

1655-6. Jan. 14	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	The Sparrow and Truelove have arrived with 22 men, and say there are plenty of seamen in Weymouth, Lyme, and Poole; but as soon as any ship comes into the road, they run up the country, and that when a State's ship comes into one place, intelligence is sent to the others, and that they believe the mayors and constables have a hand in the business. Asks whether those ships are to be refitted, or laid up; as their men are willing to be turned over to other ships upon tickets, little money is needed to pay them off; if there are any hopes of men from the west, they might be ordered to fetch them. Asks whether, when any of the Channel ships come in, he may take 20 men out of every 130, or 14 or 15 out of 100, to help to finish the works. Fitting out of ships.	Vol. 132. 67

With reference to the Navy Commissioners and their report, 29 Jan., that he had a grant from the Navy Office of certain houses and land belonging to the Navy, called the Maison Dieu, in Dover, for a year, which was renewed for 12 years more, if the lessors so long lived and continued Navy Commissioners, the lessee doing all repairs. Broome has not paid any rent since his entrance, but having been interrupted in his quiet possession, may have expended much in defending the State's title. He should be ordered to draw up an account of his disbursements since his first entrance, and if he has performed the covenants, an allowance might be made him out of the rent unpaid, and he hand over the balance to the late naval victuallers, it having been granted to them in their contract. Know no reason why the 400 l. alleged to be due to him by Capt. Alderne for beer should be detained, if he can show it is a just debt.	98, 99

1655-6, Jan. 24	Rich. Cowes, Ches- ter .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Came from Ireland by order of the Council there, for the money for pay of the forces there, but finds it has been sent in the Basing from Milford. Has drawn a bill on them at 4 days for 25 l. , and hopes they will not refuse payment; got it endorsed by Capt. Jno. Whitworth, being a stranger himself.	Vol. 132. 137
"	John Pellatt -	Adm. Com.	Petition for allowance for acting as Deputy-Marshal-General in the Swiftsure in her expedition to the West Indies; with reference to the Navy Commissioners, to pay him at the rate of 2 s. a day.	138

"	Geo. Kendall, Dept- ford .	Adm. Com.	The want of boatswains for the fire ships retards their fitting out - - -	142
"	Jno. Hill, for Rich. Hutchinson.	—	Receipt for 24 l. from Edw. Place, late gunner of the Adventure, being a fine imposed by the Admiralty Commissioners for embezzling powder.	143
"	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham .	Blackborne.	The gunner of the Nonsuch received their summons, and will attend at Whitehall to-day. Has sent the storekeeper's accounts touching the iron brought from Rochester. Col. Clarke's letter has been sent to Capt. Smith. Was in the Hope yesterday; saw the provisions taken in as they were sent down, and viewed the Unicorn's damaged mast, for which a new one is preparing. The bricklayer was whipped by the porter, according to the Commissioners' order, but the fellow who stole the nails has not been heard of. As there is no appearance of any more smiths to give security, asks what is to be done.	144
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Ports- mouth .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will give order to take an account of the masts in the stores, as also of what is needed. Dis- charged 100 men from the yard last week, and 100 this, and hopes before the month is out to reduce the number to the former allowance. The 9 great ships are in the road; has nearly completed the fitting out of the rest, which are better provided with stores than he expected, but no supply from London has yet appeared; the stores are now from hand to mouth, and if a supply is not sent, will have to buy.	145
"	"	Blackborne.	Has delivered the commission and warrants, but some order should be taken with the postmasters, as the letters were drenched and torn with the little rain that fell on Thursday. Wishes Capt. Gettings had arrived, that his ship might be in a better equipage; want of seamen hinders, but hopes the ships in the river are full, and will be able to supply him. All the ships are in the road, and have their stores on board, and if the victualler would complete, and they might have 700 men more, should hope to be before Cadiz before next month is out.	146

Sends a note of men allowed, entered, and wanting on board the 10 ships in the road; asks whether to make an allowance to the pursers for sick and wounded men, or to keep to former rules. Desires warrants for the officers of the Centurion. Not having received the promised stores from London, has been compelled to purchase some to carry on the works. Beggan order to the treasurer to pay 6 or 700 l. in addition to the 1000 l. already ordered, or the State will suffer in repute, and he will not be trusted for the future repair of ships. " 28	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends letters from Capt. Archer of the Augustine, and muster books. Their order for fitting out the Brest man-of-war is nearly completed. Has spent much time endeavouring to procure men for the fleet, and hopes some hundreds will be obtained. Capt. Elliott of the Fagon has brought in a Biscay man-of-war of 8 guns; she had 63 men, but he put most of them on shore in France.	150
" "	E. Hayward, Peter Ellis.	—	Note as to how ships named may be supplied with spare forecourses, some to be fitted out of maincourses, and others could be supplied in 10 days, if the canvas, long since demanded, were there.	151
" "	Edw. Maning - -	—	Certificate that Capt. Adams of the Maidstone was often the worse for drink in the last expedition; Mr. Vincent, the minister, can testify to the same effect.	152
" "	P. Rowe - -	Adm. Com.	On reference to his book, finds there is a Spanish ship at Dover, the Rosario of Teneriffe, laden with fruit, tobacco, &c.; that sentence is given as to one half of the goods, and that the other half was to be sold; also that they belonged to Englishmen. There is another, the Mary of St. Malo, with pitch, tar, &c., claimed by some Irishmen and Hollanders, the commission being granted and returnable in Feb.; there are also two small sloops, of which he has not received any certificate.	153
" "	Theoph. Sacheverell	"	Asks the place of purser in the Worcester, Mr. Clifton the present one being too weak and ill to discharge the duties.	154
" "	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gainsborough, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Desires the discharge of his surgeon, Wm. Blundeston, who has come into possession, by the death of his father, of an estate in a remote part of the country, which, if not looked after, may tend to his utter ruin. He displayed much ability and fidelity in the wars with the Dutch, and more than ordinary care in his place. Beggan order to the Master of Barber Surgeons' Hall to send another.	155
" "	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Since his last, 35 men have been brought in by the Drake and distributed. The Governor of Guernsey sent out men to press in the Island, but the inhabitants opposing, the bailiffs called a Court, when it was decided to be contrary to their privileges. To avoid a disturbance, the men were sent to Jersey, where, by the assistance of the Governor, they procured 20. 1655-6. Jan. 28	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Received their order about the stores, but no part of it refers to his port, beyond forecours for the ships, which he will provide. The mayor complains of hard dealing respecting his bill; had brought him as low as possible, but if they can be better husbands for the State, shall be glad, as it is all one to him who performs the work, or whether he has stores from London, so that he has a seasonable supply. Things ordered 3 months' since to furnish the fleet have not yet come to hand. The brazier now stands upon 18s. per cwt. for his lead. The 9 ships are in the road, 800 men entered and 700 mustered; the rest were sent out to get more, and obtained 40. The bearer, Mr. Bigglestone, gunner's mate of Deal garrison, has been summoned before the Admiralty Commissioners respecting a hawser he bought of the gunner of the Preston. As he has been 13 years in the service, and 7 thereof under himself, voluntarily returned the goods, and is penitent, hopes the Commissioners will not make a public example of him, as it will render him an object of scorn to his neighbours, who hate him for serving the State. Has taken a bond of two persons in 100l each for the appearance of Jno. Scarlett and Thos. Dunkin. As Bigglestone is under his command, will engage for his attendance himself. Is sorry for him, he having been nearly 7 years gunner's mate of the garrison; as his guilt is manifest, knows not how to plead on his behalf, but having formerly trusted him, and never found him deficient, but very faithful and active, hopes they will have an eye in passing sentence, to his long service, his penitence, and restitution of the goods. Order to make out bills for 10l on account to the following ministers:—Thos. Palmer, of the Naseby; Robert Whitecote, of the Rainbow; Stephen Puekle, of the Lampport; and Benjamin Peacock, of the Tredagh.	Vol. 132. 157

"	Barbara, wife of Thos. Burgis, gunner of the Essex .	Adm. Com.	Petition for payment of the wages of her husband, now beyond seas, stopped on a charge of embezzlement against him and the gunner of the Portsmouth, but the latter has been paid, although concerned in the same thing. With certificate of Thos. Turner and 3 others as to her being Burgis's wife.	163
"	Rich. Cowes, Paradox, Chester Water.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Hopes they have accepted his bill for 25l., and will supply him with stores needed, of which he encloses 2 lists.	164
"	John Knight, Chat-ham.	—	Deposition that while employed in the Unicorn, Jno. Hancock, the boatswain, sold a new cable to a collier of Newcastle, sent another to Severn, boatswain of the James, disposed of others, and endeavoured to bind deponent to secrecy by promising to be a friend to him and his wife. Francis Slater, a rower in Capt. Pett's wherry, cut the Unicorn's mooring cable into several pieces, and put them into the store room.	165

1655-6. Jan. 30	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Three able sailmakers should be hired and sent with the fleet, to make the sails requisite for the several squadrons; their skill and ability in contriving and husbanding the stores will balance the extra charge of 12s. or 14s. a month for wages, over and above seamen's pay. Mr. and Mrs. Lowe have also called him a rogue several times for speaking of things which he can justify, and Mrs. Lowe threatened to pull the nose off his face. With additional charges against Wm. Lowe, of employing more men than was necessary in careening ships, appropriating timber to his own use, receiving 30 gallons of sack from the merchant ships in the Road, and distributing it in gallons and bottles amongst gentlemen in the dockyard, and importuning Mr. Jennings, after the last survey of stores, to make as favourable a report as he could of the overplus of materials and stores in his custody. " "	Navy Comrs.	Adm. Com.	Have considered on their order annexed of 29 Jan. what room the extraordinary stores for the fleet will take up, and as the Marigold and Hope cannot take in much besides their own portion of 8 months' victuals, extra powder and shot should be distributed among the respective ships; as Capt. Alderne apprehends 400 tons of shipping will be still wanting to carry victuals for additional men, part should be put on board the fire ships, and a merchant ship taken up to carry the remainder. With the order alluded to, and note of the stores to be shipped.	172-4

"Then, Spanish Admiral, stand you clear, for Cranwill means the chain of gold to wear." Hopes to see the Spaniard quail; and if fortune should bring it to pass, hopes to be as much in their honours' favour as when ranging the Scottish shore, where, with thundering cannons he made them fly "from town and castle to mountains high," and also played a part in the peace that was made.	35

Wants money for 6 cwt. of bread he has taken up at 12 s. per cwt. Has 250 men on board.	45
" "	Rich. Busby -	Adm. Com.	Asks a summons to Mr. Wilkins to attend them about abuses committed by Mr. Mutton, in buying old ordnance stores, and after trimming them up, reselling them to the State as new.	46
" "	Capt. Ric. Cowes, Paradox, Chester Water.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Having a commission to take command of the Paradox, went to Ireland for her, and having disbursed some money, has drawn a bill upon them for 25 l. Commanded the Cat pink from Feb. 1653-4 to Sept. 1655.	47
" "	Jno. Gough -	Adm. Com.	Begs a speedy determination on his petition respecting his services in the condemnation of a ship wrecked or derelict, having long attended at great expense. Begs the command of a vessel; can furnish testimony of his skill and fidelity.	48
" "	Com. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Returns 3 bills, also an account from Mr. Hayward of extra provisions sent to the West Indian fleet, with Mr. Sewell's return of stores in his custody and of what is required. Has taken up some smacks, and given to Mr. Hill, the searcher, instructions for impressing men, and also 40 l. Particulars of ships.	49
" "	Capt. Rob. Vessey, Nightingale, Ply- mouth Sound.	Adm. Com.	Has done his best to press men for the fleet, and will turn over to the Fagon what he has, as also some of his own men, and then proceed to Falmouth to recruit. Has often demanded of the Commissioners for Prize Goods payment of the salvage for the Thomas of Apsom, but they say he will never have a penny, and use other unfit language; has resolved not to move any further in it without authority.	50
" "	"	Robt. Blackborne.	The Commissioners for Prize Goods so little value the order of the Admiralty Commissioners for payment of the salvage, that they laugh at his demands, and use very high language, and De la Place has received a letter from Ald. Hill, forbidding payment of any salvage. If they could charge him or his company with any embezzlement, it might be another matter; but as they cannot, is not discouraged, being confident the Admiralty Commissioners will maintain what they have ordered.	51

1655-6. Feb. 5	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gainsborough , Spithead . J. Whittell, Prize Office .	Robt. Blackborne.	Has been waiting on the commander-in-chief in the Downs, and has come in by order of Capt. Plumleigh with several vessels under convoy, as also to victual. Will then return to the Downs.	Vol. 133. 52
"	"	"	The bearer, who had employment in the Probate Court, will attend the Commissioners, who will give him the employment promised, though much below him; being on board the Fortune day and night is not likely to suit him, as being too mean, and would be of short duration, as the Admiralty Judges refuse to order the landing and sale of the wines, they being claimed by Dutch and French, though bound for Ostend. The captain who took her had doubtless grounds for his seizure, and if the intelligence the Commissioners have received was communicated, it might prevent the loss the State is likely to suffer by the acts of the claimers.	53
"	Jno. Whitworth, Chester .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Capt. Cowes of the Paradox has arrived from Dublin by order of the Council there, and wanting money, applied to him; not having any, referred him to Jno. Anderson, from whom he received 25 l . and gave a bill upon the Navy Commissioners; hopes not to be made liable for performing such thankless offices.	54
"	"	"	Wants a new mainsail, as the one he has is very old, and the other has lain long in the yard	55
6 " "	Capt. Jno. Bourne, Swiftsure , Hope . Capt. Wm. Hill, Specker , Stoke's Bay .	Adm. Com.	Came in with the Pelican and two others, the rest being separated by foul weather. Has sent on shore to the victualler to supply some provisions upon petty warrant.	56
"	Capt. Hen. Pack, Amity , Spithead .	"	Had orders from Capt. Wm. Hill to sail to the Downs, with the Speaker and 4 others, but has been forced to come in, having sprung a leak which may take 10 days to stop, being under the girdling.	57
" "	Robt. Sewell, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will send 4 of the 10 cables ordered to the Marigold, at Woolwich, for the use of the fleet, but has not the others in store; will have to make some for the ships fitting out at Chatham.	58
" "	Thos. Smith, Navy Office .	Robt. Blackborne.	Sends a petition from his sister to the Admiralty Commissioners, and desires he will present it when Gen. Blake is present; has spoken to him and Mr. Hopkins thereon. She has lost all her estate, and is now living upon his in Ireland, and he has had to maintain her 4 children ever since the Rebellion. Would have attended himself, but as there are seldom more than two in the office, is tied by the leg, or the service would suffer.	59
"	Anth. Stephens	—	Receipt for 5 l . from Hump. Bigglestone, as a fine imposed by the Admiralty Commissioners for embezzling a hawser from the Preston.	60
" "	Jno. Tippetts, Fras. Lucas .	—	Certificate that they have surveyed the Amity at Portsmouth, with particulars of the work required to stop her leaks.	61
" "	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has landed the stores sent, but the colours and pendants were so much rat eaten as to be useless; will send up a sample, so that they may believe their own eyes. It would have been better to send the material as he desired, and have them made as required. Several ships have arrived from the river, including the Amity to stop her leaks.	62

1655-6. Feb. 6	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Arrival of ships; defects of the Amity, whose men should be turned over to other ships. No men have yet arrived from the north, but his number increases; hopes to be complete in a few days, but has desired Captains Coppin and Blake to go to Southampton to quicken the mayor there. Hopes the ships for Plymouth will be able to sail tomorrow; will put those from the Downs into petty warrant, and take an account of their sea stores. As the pursers generally require a supply of leather hose for their water casks, asks if he shall distribute those in store. Will order the delivery of their letters, and the discharge of the man from the Colchester; sends a list of the officers of the Hampshire, of whom Capt. Blake, their late commander, gives a good account.	Vol. 13. 3. 63
" 7	Adm. Com. -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order for the speedy dispatch of the freshships refitting in the river, as also for supplying them and the ships in the Hope with boatswains' and carpenters' stores.	64
" "	" -	"	Order for directions to Capt. Thos. Alderne to furnish the ships in the Hope with their full complement of victuals, so that they may proceed on their voyage next week, as also to supply the frigates of Gen. Blake's fleet, sent or to be sent to Portsmouth, with such as they shall expend between the time of sailing from the Hope and entering into petty warrant at Portsmouth, so that they may depart with their full proportion for 8 months.	65
" "	Ordnance Officers -	—	Particulars of the amount of powder and shot that 12 ships named will be able to stow over and above their own provisions. Account of the weight of powder, shot, and guns mentioned; and list of ships requiring powder and other stores.	66, 67
" "	Comr. Peter Pett, Chatham.	Robt. Blackborne.	Sends 4 out of 5 bonds left with him for signature. Was in the Hope on Wednesday, and it was a goodly sight to see the navy there; if any persons of quality intend going on board, hopes he will let him know. There is only the Lyme at Chatham and she will sail tomorrow.	68
" "	" "	Adm. Com.	Hopes they had an account from Mr. Blackborne respecting the Bristol. General Blake has sent for a pilot for the Naseby; will accompany him part of the way to the Downs tomorrow, as will also the Lyme. The ships should be furnished with sufficient victuals on petty warrant to carry them to their rendezvous, and thus save their sea provisions.	69
" "	Capt. Giles Shelley, the Colchester , Spithead.	"	Is sorry to have incurred their displeasure through not sending men, but only pressed 3, which he kept. His boat was employed, while in the Hope, getting in things left behind at Deptford through the frost, which only broke up yesterday; only met 5 ships off Beachey. Wants men himself, 20 of his seamen having run to Yarmouth and other northern parts; hears they have all been pressed into other ships since. Their habit of running away when they have money, and losing 3 months' pay thereby, is not unknown. Has marked them all as run in the muster book.	70
" "	Thos. Toll, Lynn -	Robt. Blackborne.	Being still troubled by Mr. Shadwell for the office of comptroller or check in the port, again requests he will appear before one of the barons and give his testimony in the Exchequer; doubts not but this will quell the presumption of his adversary.	71

Asks whether to supply the ships in the river with provisions in lieu of those they expended in coming down. The Hopewell brought in 30 men from Capt. Dove; will distribute them amongst the other ships. Desires an order to the victualier's agent to pay the pursers the money allowed for sick and wounded, as several ships have sailed without it; several of the ships from London need pursers. Was in hopes of reducing the men in the yard, but there is so much work that he fears he will want 20 or 30 more for another month. Came into the Humber by order of the governor [of Hull], and has received 63 pressed men and volunteers, as also some provisions, and will sail for the Downs with the first wind. Certificate for Thos. Jacob, for a boatswain's place in a 3rd rate frigate, he having served 8 years as master of the Greyhound and boatswain's mate in the Triumph and Tiger, and been in most of the engagements against the Hollanders. " "	Manley Callis, Jonas Shish, Deptford.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Have surveyed the John Baptist, sent to Deptford to be converted into a fire ship, and give particulars. The materials and workmanship will equal the cost of building a new ship.	77
" "	Capt. Rich. Cowes, Parador, High- lake.	Adm. Com.	Has been prevented from sailing by foul weather. A bark of Liverpool has been cast away, and all her men lost, within a mile of him. Hopes they will send him some sails, cables, &c., by the Wexford.	78

" "	John Green, Dept- ford.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends account of 6 ships in rigging wages at Deptford, with the number of men mustered on each. Received 15 men from the constables of Southwark, and 2 from those of Leatherhead, whom he delivered to Capt. Young for distribution amongst the ships; but they had received neither press or conduct money, and were much dissatisfied. Asks what to do in like cases. Received the warrants for Mr. Beecher and Mr. Tooker, and will hasten into their part of the country, as soon as affairs at Plymouth will permit. Hopes the Paradox, or some vessel from Portsmouth will be sent to Barnstable, to receive the pressed men, but it would be better to give them conduct money to come to Plymouth. Desires a press warrant for Capt. Tayler of the Griffin, and will then send him to Sidmouth and other parts to procure men. Particulars of ships. Only arrived this day from Gen. Desborow at Exeter, so can assign no reason for the Phoenix coming in, save that some of her chain plates are loose and she wants men.	80, 81

1655-6. Feb. 8	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for his letters; will soon draw his money from Mr. Powell by exchange; will need that and more to help on the public works at Plymouth. Gen. Desborow left Exeter for Dorsetshire yesterday, and may be in town in 14 days. He is as fresh as ever, and has done much good work in the west. Remembrances to Ladies Desborow and French.	Vol. 133. 83
"	"	Col. Jno. Clarke, Whitehall.	Has been to Exeter with Gen. Desborow, and while there, enquired into the state of the powder, which was generally very bad; having separated the good, will supply the Nantwich, Assurance, and others, and hasten them to Portsmouth. Is glad the Commissioners have ordered them there, as the business of issuing false tickets may now be examined, and by paying off the men, they will lighten their spirits, now very flat. The Assistance has almost been rebuilt. The Prize Commissioners have ordered the sale of the two Biscay men-of-war next week. Will trouble him in his next respecting the poor people in the parish where he lives, who, by means of the Governor of Windsor, are without a minister.	84
"	Vice - Adm. Jno. Lawson.	[Rich. Creed], Secretary to the Generals of the Fleet. Adm. Com.	Begs assistance for Jno. Bank in getting his warrant for the master's place in the Great President, in which he has lately served.	85
"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Great Yarmouth.		Gave the number of men he put on board the Penbroke, which, with the Greyhound, was then in pursuit of the enemy. Has now 40 in custody, whom he is forced to secure by several guards, for want of a ship to put them in, and as he daily expects more, desires they will send a ship to the roads, to remain there until she has as many as she can carry, or until order to the contrary.	86
"	Navy Comrs.	"	Send the instructions drawn up for Mr. Hempson, as muster-master-general of the fleet. Capt. Alderne is preparing those for him as general purser, and will shortly send them. With the instructions.	87, 88
"	Hen. Pitt, mayor, Wm. Horne, Edw. Exton, Robt. Wroth, Southamp- ton.	"	On receipt of their letter, employed the constables and other officers to impress the 150 men required, and sent a copy to the captain of Calshot Castle and other places; but with all their endeavours, could only procure 30, whom they have sent, with tickets, to Commissioner Willoughby, at Portsmouth. Have been much disabled on account of a frigate, which has lain at the mouth of the river for several days, impressing all that came into the river; will still proceed and raise what they can, though they have no hope of finding the number mentioned.	89

Delivered their instructions to the commanders of the frigates in the roads; has sent all the pressed men to Portsmouth, the Dartmouth having 151. Appointed Capt. Jno Smith, of the Pearl, to convoy some vessels to the Wellings, and then to ply on the north coast; but as he and others want provisions, desires an order to Mr. White, the victualler at Dover, to supply what is needed. "	Has used all possible means to procure seamen, and sends a list of those put on board the Drake and Hopewell pink; many have gone to Portsmouth, that they might choose their ships, and others, although summoned, have not appeared; those who have volunteered should have liberty to go on shore, and those pressed be kept as prisoners on board. As evidence of his care in the matter, has sent the warrant issued by Capt. Southwood, of Gen. Desborow's troop; hopes, as the press warrants are still out, he may procure many more. Will send an account of his disbursements, and is sorry the expense and labour have not procured the number of men required.	96, 97
"	Capt. Thos. Eliot	"	Received 311 men at Portsmouth and Dartmouth for the fleet, by order of Commissioner Hastell. Is to receive shot and match for the Nantwich and Assurance, and after delivery thereof, will proceed to Plymouth.	98

Thanks for his letter and press warrant, and will be satisfied with his answer as to the guns until he meets another prize. Is still in want of a minister. Never found a ship so defective through bad husbandry, but has brought things into a pretty good posture, and almost procured his complement of men. If wind serves, hopes next week to answer the Commissioners' and General's expectation.	Vol. 133. 102

"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	Before leaving London, the Admiralty Commissioners ordered them to supply him with a hoy to attend his ship, and on attending the Navy Office, was told by Major Thompson to contract for one, and certify, when it would be allowed. Hired the John of Stroud of Jno. Hook, at 32 l. a month, but hearing since that they have engaged another, has stayed the fitting out of this.	104
"	Capt. John Taylor -	"	Sends an account of stores required. Asks order as to sheathing the James, which is in dry dock. Saw the Unicorn and Worcester between Chatham and the Hope, with broken masts; as there were no complaints of them when at sea, hopes they will enquire into the cause, as it will involve several hundreds of pounds. Ships generally require new locks and hinges to the cabins and storeroom doors every voyage; a warrant should be sent to Mr. Hayward to cause the boatswains to indent for them, as they are taken off and carried away.	105
"	Ordnance officers -	Adm. Com.	Send account of the quality of the powder sent to the Tower by 7 makers named; also of some returned from ships; total, 1,944 barrels good, and 1646 bad. The powder lately delivered by Mr. Sawyer is on a contract for a monthly supply while the Act is in force for making saltpetre. Hearing from Mr. Newberry that the Truelove, at Portsmouth, is ready to sail, desire a warrant for her supply.	106, 107
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Port- smouth .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Received an Admiralty order that ships were to be supplied with their full complement of stores from the place where they were fitted out, yet several have arrived from the Downs to complete their stores, or change the bad; desires order therein. Sends an account of men entered on board the ships in the Road, by which they will see they are over-manned for number, but many of them are trouncers, not fit to carry to sea. With account of the number of men entered and mustered on 8 ships there, as also on 5 ships from the Downs, and note that the difference between the entries and musters is because some are on shore.	108, 109

1655-6. Feb. 9	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Arrival and departure of ships. The captain of the Langport sent the names of 30 persons to whom he had paid press and conduct money, but not 6 of them have appeared. Will order payment of the tickets of seamen turned over to be made to their captains, and issued as needed. The Fagon arrived from Plymouth with 285 men for the fleet, and the Dartmouth from the Downs with 151, but the latter are represented as very unfit for the service. There being two Dunkirk men-of-war infesting the coasts about Bredhemston, the Truelove should be appointed to that station. As Capt. Hatsell has demanded some powder and shot for the Nantwich and Assurance, desires order to Mr. Newberry to supply it. Cannot give any particulars of the masts in the New England ship, they being covered with other goods. The pursuer of the Truelove has not yet named his surety, and although Mr. Carrall is his friend, he is unwilling to trouble him.	Vol. 133. 110
"	"	Blackborne.	Thanks for a book sent, which meets with approbation; hopes it will do good, and should like to know the author's name. The ships are ready for orders, and although their men are not the best, must be content; cannot get better, not because they are not to be had, but because the persons employed to obtain them are unfaithful; his neighbours are also to be blamed. Is troubled at the delay of the Phoenix and Portsmouth, which were sent to Guernsey and Jersey for men.	111

"	Major Rich. Elton, Hull .	"	Sends a letter from [Capt. Allen] whom he has supplied with provisions and 114 men, so that he has now 260, and has gone for the Downs. Has done his utmost to get men for the present expedition, but could not obtain more; has charged a bill of exchange upon them for disbursements amounting to 66 l. 10 s. , which he hopes they will pay to Ensign Richard Elton.	114

1655-6. Feb. 11	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	To similar effect. The Weymouth pink and Capt. Thompson have arrived from Holland with a fleet from the Maas; he chased and went between two men-of-war in Lowestoft roads, but did not succeed in taking them. Has such a life with the North Sea fishers that he must send Thompson with them as far as Newcastle, although their going to sea without a convoy may be their ruin, as they will be a prey to their enemies. "	Capt. Jer. Country, Roe ketch.	"	Although his vessel was launched the end of January, she is not yet out of the shipwrights' hands; hopes to be ready in a few days, having 9 weeks' provisions on board; wants 21 men, who are difficult to be obtained.	119

"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Yarmouth.	"	Has put 40 men on board the Winsby to secure them, and will endeavour to increase them to 50. There are as many more who have taken impress money, but cannot be found. Will recommence pressing in 3 or 4 days. Has not received any men from Southwold, but expects some from the northern parts daily. Several small vessels belonging to the enemy are seen on the coast daily.	123
"	Capt. Robt. Plumleigh, Reserve, Downs.	"	Sends an account of pressed men received from the Cinque Ports, and of their disposal; is pressing more daily, but the arrival of ships in the Roads obstructs it. Sent Capt. Jno. Groves of the Pembroke to Yarmouth, for those in the custody of Mr. Burton and Capt. Mackey, and will distribute them as ordered. The squadron needs re-victualling and cleaning, so as to be able to destroy the Dunkirk and Ostend pirates infesting the coasts. Capt. Berry of the Nonsuch met 6 of them, 4 having from 10 to 12 guns each, and was forced to leave his convoy to the mercy of the enemy, and shift for himself, being upon the wind; but he had a skirmish with one of them for 2 hours, when she left him. Bread is much wanted, and the contract with the baker has expired. With note of ships in the Downs.	124-6
"	"	Blackborne.	Asks leave of absence for 2 months to go to Dartmouth to settle his affairs and recruit his health, having been in the service 3 years, and not more than 14 days with his family. Was forced to leave his estate in a very confused condition, and the greater part being in shipping, his partners have not rendered him an account of the losses and gains, particularly in the Newfoundland voyages, and there are other matters requiring his attention.	127

The man whose hand was hurt is likely to lose the use of it, and he has 4 small children. Desires they will order the Watermen's Company to send down his men, as he hears they have been pressed. With depositions of Abra. French, Phil. Beard, and Jno. Wallis, that while at Redriff pressing men, they fell in with Thos. Price, who said he was boatswain to Capt. Thos. Smith there; upon taking him, they saw a woman, supposed to be Capt. Smith's wife, and as she did not know Price, they told him he would have to go with them to Deptford, and if he proved to be a boatswain, he would be released; whereupon he refused, seized a sword belonging to Wallis, and seriously wounded him in the hand. Deny that they were drunk, as they only had two dozen of beer between 14 of them during the day.	137-9

Has sent the Sapphire and Constant Warwick to ply at the mouth of the Channel, having heard that several men-of-war have left Sebastian's and may annoy our trade about that station. Will go to Dartmouth to-morrow, and attend to the press warrants, also the apprehending of the men who refused to appear when warned, and return the Admiralty Commission for landing and selling the goods in the pretended Zealander. Feb. 13	Adm. Com. -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order for a bill of imprest to Thos. Alderne, navy victualler, for 3,500 l. a week for 8 weeks, to enable him to carry on the business of victualling.	2
"	" -	Claudius Brussels.	Warrant appointing him minister of the Unicorn for the present expedition, with the usual allowance of wages and diet for himself and servant.	3
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Expected to have to send Capt. Thomson with the North Sea fishers as far as Newcastle, but has since had a meeting by beat of drum of all the owners, before himself and the bailiffs, at the Common Hall, when it was agreed they should wait 10 or 14 days, to allow him to move the Admiralty Commissioners to appoint them a convoy to remain with them; as they number 80 sail, one ship will not be able to protect them from the enemy, although he might do his best. The Pembroke has arrived for the pressed men, but they had been put on board Capt. Ames. Is getting more daily, but forced to keep them in custody upon the usual allowance for victuals.	4
"	Capt. Jno. Best, Adventure.	Robt. Blackborne.	Has received nearly all his provisions, but cannot come up from fear of losing his men, the General having taken 15 already; begs the order to sail northward.	5

"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Has shipped 54 men on board the Winsby, and she will sail to-morrow; will put the rest of the pressed men as they arrive into the Pembroke ; but as she wants victuals, fears she will be forced to leave before the impressing is finished. The Advice has arrived bound for the Downs with impressed men, and the Greyhound has gone southward to clear the coast. Has not yet received one man from Southwold.	9

1655-6. Feb. 14	Capt. Fras. Wilmoughby, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Has seen the wreck of the Pelican. The fire began at 4 p.m., but she did not blow up until 9, which seemed strange, the fire beginning so near the powder room; her cables being cut, she drove ashore clear of the ships. Particulars of the damage done. As it arose through the carelessness of the yeoman, has put him in irons on board the Maidstone until further order; the remainder of the men are in the Diamond and ashore, and having lost their clothes, are in a deplorable condition. Has given order for supplying them with victuals. As the Hampshire is fitting out, suggests that they and their captain (who was absent when the fire commenced, but subsequently came on board and remained to the last) should be turned over to her, as they are unwilling to be separated from him. Sends the depositions of 4 of the officers of the Pelican as to the cause of the fire; has ordered a boy to lie near the wreck, and will take care to save all he can.	Vol. 134. 12-16
"	Capt. Robt. Story, Portsmouth.	"	Regrets to report that at 4 p.m. on the 13th, the yeoman of the boatswain's store room in the Pelican, having been down with a candle, and putting it out carelessly, the smut took hold and broke into a flame amongst the sails and cordage adjoining the powder room, and the ship was burnt. Is too full of grief to enlarge further, not that he laments his own loss, which is at least 140%, but the loss of the ship; it is the act of Providence, and desires to kiss the rod and him that appointed it.	17
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to contract for the hire of a ship to carry the remainder of the provisions for the fleet, the Marigold and Hope flyboats not being able to receive them.	18
"	Lieut. Wm. Fowler, Portsmouth.	Katharine Fowler, his mother, the George, Paternoster Row.	Has given his father an account of the late sad disaster; the Commissioner at Portsmouth and also the captain have sent the Admiralty Commissioners full particulars. "	"	Rich. Creed, Secretary to the Generals. Adm. Com.	Thanks for accepting his kinsman, Thomas Andlaby, as clerk; but as his sister, Mrs. Carteret, who is the young man's aunt, is much opposed to his going to sea, desires he will procure another man and pardon the trouble.	29

"	Major Rich. Elton, Hull.	Adm. Com.	Delivered their letter to Mr. Drake. "	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Cannot but admire Capt. Lawson's actings, seeing he went so far and then retreated; fears he has been biased by those who do not wish well to the present public transactions. A vessel of Barnstaple has come in which was taken by a Brest man-of-war and retaken by the Sapphire. Has seen his (Blackborne's) brother, who is doing his business carefully. Will go to Barnstaple next week. Desires he will move the Commissioners to allow Capt. Stoakes to sail to Plymouth and remain a few days, as he has urgent business there.	34

1655-6. Feb. 15	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Received their commission and instructions for Capt. Taylor, and has written him to hasten in with the men he has obtained. The seamen at Dartmouth and thereabouts keep together in numbers to prevent the constables securing them; 200 have engaged to go to Newfoundland and serve in the fishery. When there, perused some papers found in the ships lately seized, which clear up the State's interest to the goods claimed on behalf of the Dutch and the Jews of Amsterdam, as they were laden at Ostend for Spain. The storekeeper has inspected 551 barrels of powder in the fort, castles, and town, which is mostly good. Has sent press warrants to Barnstable, and will hold a meeting there on the 22nd, and another at Bideford on the 23rd; if he cannot do all the work within that time, will get Mr. Beecher and Mr. Tooker to finish it. Recommends officers for the Griffin.	Vol. 134. 35, 36
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Have heard the difference between Thos. Broome, of Dover, and the late navy victuallers, touching money disbursed by him in defending, by order of the navy commissioners, the State's title to houses and lands belonging to the navy at Dover, called the Maison Dieu, granted to him by the Navy Commissioners. Also concerning money due to him for beer delivered to the said victuallers; and also a letter from the Navy Commissioners, to whom Broome's petition was referred. Think that the petitioner ought to be allowed his disbursements in defending the State's title, and that the Navy Commissioners ought to adjust the account, and distinguish what part was laid out before the late contractors entered the victualling office, and what has been expended since. See no cause why the victuallers refuse to pay the moneys due for beer delivered for the navy, on account of his non-payment of rent until the account is adjusted; if any money is due to the victuallers for rent of the Maison Dieu, it is to be allowed them from the State.	37
"	Capt. Jno. Bourey, Aldborough.	Adm. Com.	Went to the bailiffs for the men they had pressed, but as they had been sent away in a ketch belonging to the Swiftsure, will hasten to Harwich to see if there are any there; and if not, will proceed to the Hope.	38
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	Received theirs, stating that care would be taken for the defence of Lowestoft, but that they could not imagine why it should be needed. Went to Capt. Skeaper, who has the ammunition under his charge, and who stated that he had order to fetch it from thence, and could not redeliver it without order, but he has since delivered 40 shot and $\frac{1}{2}$ a barrel of powder; encloses an account of the ammunition in the garrison at Great Yarmouth. The bailiffs of Southwold have not done their duty, but the parts adjacent should not fare the worse. As a justice himself, he will take what care he can for the security of the country. The captain of the Pembroke could not go after the pirates in Packfield Bay for want of his boat. Will keep Capt. Tompson in the road to look after them, the Winsby and others having gone with the ship with spirits for the Lynne Regis, to succeed him, being known to General Desborow. As Captains Allen and Groves have been on half allowance for want of provisions, asks if he shall give them tickets. Sent 70 pressed men, and 20 or 30 volunteers in the Winsby, and is getting more daily, whom he will put in the Greyhound. The fishers are still waiting for a convoy.	39

"	Capt. Robt. Plum- leigh, Reserve, Downs.	"	Mr. White has promised to do all that is needful to refit and victual the Downs' fleet at Dover. Capt. Has already some volunteers.	51

Penn to appoint a person to join in the survey, but as he refused, appointed two themselves; will inform Vice-Adm. Goodson of the result. "	Hen. Pitt, mayor, and 4 magistrates of Southampton.	"	Nearly all the 30 men sent from Southampton to Portsmouth are in the State's ships in Stokes Bay; have a list of their names, many being ordered on board without appearing before Commissioner Willoughby; can understand why 6 only appeared before him. Since then, have impressed and sent down as many as the place would afford; have now 20 in custody, the justices 12, and others have been impressed miles off, and sent for Portsmouth; will procure as many more as they can.	55
"	Capt. Robt. Plum- leigh, Reserve, Downs.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for procuring him leave of absence from the Commissioners; is willing to wait until the 1st of next month before taking it.	56
"	"	Adm. Com.	Sends a list of the seamen received from the Cinque Ports. Cannot say how many were sent from Rye and the parts westward, they having been sent by the mayor of Dover, but has distinguished those received from him. The Nonsuch has gone as convoy to vessels bound for London; will order her to Portsmouth on her return.	57, 58
"	Thos. White, mayor, Dover.	"	Received 8 men and boys from New Romney, 8 from Lydd, 8 from Hastings, 10 from Tenterden, and 4 from Rye, but they were all landsmen, and had never been to sea. Ordered them to go in a boat to Capt. Plumleigh, but they went to Deal, leaving word they would go to Capt. Stoakes. The Rainbow's hoy also sent him 6 bushers and ditchers pressed from their work at Dinchurch; thought them worthy to lose their money for giving it away on that account. Has sent 18 pressed men from Dover and 20 volunteers, and when the General comes into the Downs, will send more. Has 130 men in the service of the State, and doubts not but to send more volunteers than pressed men.	59
"	Capt. John Stoakes, Rainbow, Downs.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for his favours; is content to wait the Commissioners' pleasure until a rendezvous is appointed. Is now at anchor, but will proceed to Portsmouth. Some ships have put into Margate Roads, supposed to be the fleet from the Hope, there being a flag ship amongst them.	60
"	Ordnance Officers -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Desire order to the governors of Dover and Deal Castle for delivery of such powder they have fit for the ships as an extraordinary supply, and a warrant for sending 34 tons of shot to the Marggold.	61

1655-6. Feb. 16	Capt. Robt. Robin- son, Portsmouth .	Adm. Com.	Has had his ship hauled on shore and tallowed, and hopes to be dispatched next week, although he has had to deal with some very refractory fellows. The constables of Gosport brought him one, named Wm. Himens, whom he has in hold for calling them all traitors, and stating that if the titular King of Scots had been there, or any of that rose, he would spend his blood for him. Informed the Commissioner at Portsmouth of it, but he will not interfere; will keep him until the Generals arrive.	Vol. 14. 62
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Portsmouth .	"	Particulars of ships. Mr. Newberry has only 150 barrels of powder in the stores fit to be shipped. Capt. Storey's appointment would facilitate the fitting out of the Hampshire; as his men desire to go with him, it would keep them together. Has ordered them 8 d. a day for diet. They should receive some slight encouragement for the loss of their clothes. Has recovered 17 guns from the Pelican, 3 being brass, and a quantity of shot and iron work, and there are 5 more on board, 2 having blown on shore together with an anchor. Asked Mr. Coles to abate 10 l. a mast of those from 34 to 28 hands, and 5 l. a mast of those from 27 to 24, but he has not yet accepted this; thinks if 8 or 10 of the largest were left at Portsmouth, he would be willing to carry the rest to Plymouth into the bargain. Desires orders as to purchasing. With demand by Peter Coles for New England masts; the prices range from 10 l. to 150 l. for those from 15 to 34 hands. Also account of the number of men entered and mustered in 16 ships named at Portsmouth and Spithead, and account of the powder which 14 ships named at Portsmouth can stow besides their proportion.	63-66
"	"	Robt. Blackborne	It is admired by all that the Pelican should have burnt for above 4 hours before she blew up, but when the report came, it was dreadful, as it broke windows 10 miles off, and blew off doors at Chichester, 14 miles off; one of Maj.-Gen. Goffe's troopers was sent from thence to know what it was. Is sorry for poor Storey, who is an honest man, much laments the stroke, and seems more sensible of the State's loss than his own, and it will be doing the State service if the Com- missioners order him to the Hampshire, as the men are willing to go with him. Is sorry Vice-Adm. Lawson has deserted the service, being troubled when honest men leave it. With certi- cate by John Lovyl and Capt. Robt. Kirby, that Capt. Storey was on board the Providence on business when the fire broke out in the Pelican; that they took him to her in their boat, and that he remained on board to the last, most of her company having previously jumped overboard, whom they succeeded in saving from being drowned.	67, 68
"	Jno. Browne, Har- wich .	"	Are daily disturbed by Dunkirk men-of-war, one of whom lay yesterday off the harbour's mouth, and chased a vessel, and another did the same within shot of the fort. There is a large fleet in the harbour bound for London, with butter, cheese, &c., but they dare not adventure with- out a convoy; as some of them have been riding there a month, desires a small vessel may be sent down for that purpose, also one or two to lie thereabouts and capture some of them.	69

"	Capt. Roger Cut- tance, Langport, Majorca Road.	Blackborne	Having been ordered by the General to ply off Majorca for 20 days, in company with the Diamond, Ruby, and Pearl, came from Leghorn; on the 13th met with two French men-of-war, one having 15 guns and 130 men, and after a little resistance, became masters of her; the other, having had her masts shot and being ready to sink, came ashore and surrendered. On survey, found she was formerly an English ship, named the Feracie , and had 30 iron guns and 300 men; as her powder and provisions were spoiled by the water, sold her to the Spaniards for 3,000 dollars, and to transport the French to their own country. Is about sailing to the General, the time limited being expired; on his return, will look out for another man-of-war of 22 guns, which is about the coast.	71

Account of the condition of ships named at Deptford and Woolwich Examination before Jno. Page, mayor of Plymouth. The ship belongs to himself and other Frenchmen named, who bought her of a Frenchman for 6,200 livres. Came from St. Malo with linen cloth for Cadiz, where he reloaded and received his freight; reloaded with hides, wine, fruit, three pegs of silver, and a bag of pieces of 8, and returned for St. Malo , but was forced into Lisbon, where he took in some sugar and tobacco on his own account. When off the Isle of Bass, was surprised and taken by Capt. Sparling of the Assistance, and brought into Plymouth, but threw all his writings and bills of lading overboard. Capt. Sparling took possession of the bags of silver and pieces of 8, as also of a packet of letters and other writings, and carried them to his own ship. The ship is very leaky, and if speedy course is not taken for her unloading, the goods will be spoiled.	73 74
"	Capt. Joseph Ames, Winsby, Downs.	Robt. Blackborne	Finds the Commissioners are offended at his not being in the Downs before. Was ordered, when at Harwich, to hasten to sea, to get men and as many supernumeraries as he could, and deliver them to the commander-in-chief in the Downs. When he left Harwich, wanted 45 men; kept on his station at Orfordness, sent an account, and used his utmost, both day and night, at sea and on shore, to get men. Still wanting 14 of his complement, went to Yarmouth Roads, where he had 30 volunteers and some pressed men; being required by Major Burton to stay for some pressed by Capt. Mackey, as also to convoy a vessel with brandy for the Downs, remained until the 15th, when he sailed with the Advice and Pembroke , and has now orders to go to Stokes Bay.	75

The last two were taken by the Nightingale and Fagon, and belonged to St. Sebastian's, and are not fit for the service mentioned; but there is one taken by the Fagon a few weeks since which belonged to Port Lewis, and might be made fit. She was lately sold for 50 l. , but the purchaser does not know what to do with her. Another of Port Lewis taken to Falmouth might be fit for the purpose; will send for her. Is sorry for the loss of the Pelican, and will give strict charge to the officers of ships to be very careful. The Sapphire has come in with damaged sails, through chasing a man-of-war with Spanish colours, which escaped through night coming on.	92

Albertson, bailiffs of Great Yarmouth, that they went to Southwold to press men, put up at the Lion there, and sent to Warren and the other bailiffs and constables to assist in procuring the men required, but they refused, and meantime all the men liable to press were either hid or sent out of the town, and although money was left in their hands to pay their charges, they have not procured a man, and caused one of the soldiers to be arrested on a false charge. Has obtained 40 or 50 out of the country, and put them on board the Greyhound, and expects more daily.	95-98

"	Jno. Gough, of Ratcliffe, Stepney Parish.	Gen. Desborow.	Sends his deposition touching the finding of a wreck off the Land's End by Capt. Jno. Lambert of the Lion, on his return voyage from the West Indies. Capt. Lambert put several men on board of her to pump her out, but they abandoned her and returned on board, whereupon a protest was drawn up, and deponent with several others was ordered to take charge of her and her lading, and make for the first port they could gain; succeeded in bringing her to Dartmouth, where her goods were landed and sold. Does not know her name, and there were no papers left, but believes that she is Dutch built, and belonged to Frenchmen, and that she had been in a fight, as she had many shots in her; her tackle was cut to pieces, the ship rifled, and the chests had been staved in and emptied. As her lading has realized the State 1,500 l. , and he has expended 50 l. in attending on shore since Aug. last, hopes it will be allowed, and the command of some ship bestowed upon him, as recompense for his trouble and loss.	110, 111
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Has been too fully occupied to send the account of disbursements in carrying on the affairs of the navy. To enable him, however, to pay part of the money taken up, has charged a bill for 600 l. on the Treasurer, and hopes it will be met. The Foresight and other ships named are manned, and the Nightingale has gone to Falmouth for more men. Is going himself to Barnstaple to procure what he can. Hopes in a few weeks to be freed from further pressing, as nothing is more troublesome or has more clamour attending it, and most of the Newfoundland land ships are detained by it.	112
"	"	Adm. Com.	Particulars of ships. Is going to Barnstaple to-morrow for men, and will also arrange with those to go with Capt. Blagg. Has ordered Capt. "	Ordnance Officers -	Robt. Blackborne.	Desire he will present to the Admiralty Commissioners the petition of the bearer, a poor widow, whose husband was burnt in the Crane yesterday, she being an object of charity.	115
" 20	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	The fishers are still waiting for a convoy, to the great prejudice of their families at home, who want victuals; offered the captain of the Pembroke money to get victuals, if he gave him a bill payable at London, but he refused, and has gone to the Downs; as Capt. Thompson has but 5 days' victuals, will supply him with sufficient to carry him there. Sends a petition from the officers of the Greyhound that the master may have the command, he having been in 5 engagements, and been master of 3 of the State's ships. Is getting men daily; asks when to forbear pressing.	116
"	Capt. Jno. Bowrey, Harwich.	"	The bailiffs had not pressed any men, as there was no ship to put them in, and although he told them he was ready to receive them, they have not yet sent any. There are a great many vessels bound to the river, but they dare not go out for fear of being taken, there being many small ships on the coast.	117
"	Christ. Jarratt, Jno. Key, bailiffs, Scarborough.	"	Desire some frigates may be sent to ply upon the coast, or trade will be obstructed. It is reported that there are 16 men-of-war upon the coast, who boast that they have sent home 30 prizes in 8 days, and would have taken many more had not timely notice been given. A large number of ships in port dare not venture out for fear of these pirates.	118
"	Capt. Fras. Parke, Mathias, Downs.	"	Has taken on board 20 butts of the brandy from Yarmouth, and ordered Capts. Dare and Wilkes to take in 13 a-piece, and will sail with the first wind.	119
"	Edw. Pateson, Plymouth.	"	Understands by Comr. Hatsell that they are dissatisfied with the ticket he sent from the clerk of the Nantwich, and that they wonder he meddles with any more tickets, seeing he was told not, and promised to comply. Was subsequently, however, told by Capt. Hatsell to help seamen, as also their widows, which he has ever since done, otherwise many would have perished; and when the Commissioner was in London, and men were discharged, they were forced to part with their tickets at half price, whereupon the mayor and magistrates of the town certified his services in helping them with money for their tickets, at 2s. in the pound, although he often paid 20l. in the 100l. himself. It is but reasonable that they may instruct whom they please to act for them until the Commissioners find another. Has saved the poor much expense and trouble in having to come up to London simply to receive the small amount due; if he is to cash any more tickets, asks what to deduct in the pound. As for the widows, he will act without charge, which will be no small matter to them, as without his help they might have lost all that their husbands got with the price of their lives; could bring many sad instances of that nature, but one word to the wise is enough.	120

"	Alex. Bernard, Scarborough .	Col Edw. Salmon, Adm. Chamber .	Formerly intimated that 3 pirates, suspected to be Spanish and Flemish, had taken 2 small colliers near Bridlington, since which they have ranged the coast daily, put several ships on shore, and took a new one belonging to the town, but the men saved themselves in their boat, and were so hotly pursued that they gladly left their boat and what was in it, and fled for their lives. Hears they have taken two or three more ships since. They are more venturous than the Dutch, as they keep near the coast and ply to and again daily, coming into the road, but not within shot. Has not seen any of the State's frigates on the coast since they came, but hears there is one in the Humber. His child is still very ill, and has risings and fits daily. Hears of one about 20 years of age that had the like, which Dr. Lee said were caused by a bladder of wind, and gave something that broke and cured it, but his child is so weak, and has used so many bitter potions, he hardly knows what to do. 1655-6. Feb. 21	Navy Com ^{rs}	Adm. Com.	One of their number went to Deptford and Woolwich, and found the fire ships and the Marigold and Hope complete as to their hulls, but want of officers and men to see to their fitting will delay their sailing. They will not stow much more than their own provisions and stores. Have contracted for one ship which will stow 280 tons, and ask whether to freight another. Again suggest the necessity for a slight storehouse being erected near the water side at Woolwich yard for the reception of cables and cordage for the ships; it will only cost 300 l. , and as the yard can find the timber, 200 l. is the most that need be disbursed, and it will prevent much expense and waste. There should be an increase of workmen at Deptford, until the two new ships in the dock are launched, which may be done in 8 weeks.	Vol. 135. 2

"	Rich. Browne, Pembroke .	"	Capt. Cowes of the Paradox having put in for provisions, referred him to Mr. Gauden's agent, but he refused to make a supply without order; knowing his presence at Barnstaple was of more import than twelve months' provisions, consented to disburse money for sufficient for two months; having shipped them he will be ready to sail. Sends the steward's indent, and the account, and asks from whom he is to receive the money.	19
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	"	There is great complaint made of the impressed men sent to Portsmouth from Yarmouth; some were young, but not under 16. Capt. Ashford, of the Hawk ketch, having arrived with a warrant for the pressed men, has put 64 on board; has detained Capt. Thomson to take in any more that may be obtained. Was forced to supply him with 14 days' victuals for 80 men, but it would have been but 7 days' for the pressed men and his own company.	20
"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Yarmouth .	"	Thought all the men he sent away were seamen, except the volunteers, as the captain left without leaving a receipt, doubts if some of the men were not changed, and not having time to procure clothes, they would not look such likely men as those well clad. There was some dislike of those he sent in the Rainbow, but they were according to the orders sent for impressing; believes the commanders find fault without cause, being opposed to the press, although the State could not otherwise be served at sea. Would rather have given 20l. to the poor than have been employed in pressing men in the town where he lives, as before he generally had the love of his neighbours, but has now odium. Has put 64 men on board the Hawk ketch, and will put any more obtained in the Greyhound.	21
"	Capt. Edm. Thomson, Greyhound .	"	The Hawk ketch has taken in 63 men that Capt. Mackey had put on board the Greyhound, which is to remain to receive 30 or 40 more that are expected. Is nearly out of provisions, but Major Burton promises a supply.	22

"	Capt. Alex. Early, Basing, Milford.	Adm. Com.	Delivered the money at Dublin, and then came to Milford to victual, having been on half allowance and forced to drink water. "	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Barnetaple.	"	Has received the press warrants, and will put them into execution; also received the returns from the constables of the several hundreds, but few seamen appeared fit for service. Has impressed 16, and issued warrants for apprehending those who have been warned and did not appear, and appointed for them to be brought before him, if apprehended by Monday, otherwise before Jno. Tooker, with whom he will leave the warrants. Will go to Bideford to-morrow, to receive the returns of the constables there, and hopes to receive a number of men also; will give the Captain of the Paradox his orders when he arrives. Intends being on Wednesday at Exeter, where he has appointed to meet Capt. Taylor, and will send his men into those parishes where the sailors bear more sway than the constables or inhabitants, which is the reason why so few have been apprehended. Hopes to be at Plymouth next Thursday or Friday.	28
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for his letter and print; perceives there is some alteration made of the Prize Commissioners. If Captain Stone has promised that his (Blackborne's) brother shall remain as he is, he need not doubt it. Capt. Vessey having written that he had received 80 pressed men from Capt. Fox, and expected 60 more from Major Ceoley, when he intended to go to Plymouth, left word there to deliver him 30 more when he arrived, and for him then to go to Portsmouth; also wrote Mr. Willoughby there of his coming. Is glad to hear of the safe return of Gen. Desborow, and of the good health of his lady.	29

" "	Capt. Robt. Robin- son, Preston .	Robt. Blackborne.	Received the Commissioners' order, and will hasten to the Downs, but wants men. The accusers of his boatswain are to be examined, and the man sent on shore. Wants duplicate tickets.	35
" "	Capt. Rich. Vinson, Plymouth .	"	Sends list of pressed men put on board the Nightingale at Falmouth and Plymouth, by Capt. Fox, governor of Pendennis, Major Ceely, sheriff of Cornwall, and Capt. Hatsell, Vice-Adm. of Devon. Capt. Hatsell is in the northern parts, trying to get more seamen. The Nightingale has arrived from Falmouth with 143 pressed men, and upon receipt of 30 more, will proceed to Portsmouth. The Fagon has brought from Falmouth the small Brester which she formerly took in there, and which is recommended by Capt. Elliott as a good sailer.	36, 37
" "	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Port- moult .	Adm. Com.	Arrival and departure of ships. Will order a survey of the wreck of the Pelican. Delivered Lieut. Fowler's warrant, and will consider what ship to put Mr. Norwood in.	38
" 24	Samuel Blake, Stokes Spaquer, Bay .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends an account by Abra. Woof of disbursements in pressing men, and desires payment. As they thought the account large, has taken off 9/4, which the twelve men should have had for their extraordinary pains for 15 days, being informed it was usual to give each man 1s. per day.	39
" "	Capt. Jno. Bowrey, Harwich .	Adm. Com.	Attended on the bailiffs of Ipswich for pressed men, and as they could not obtain any, sent up his boat, and in one night procured 10, but they were much abused by the townsmen, and the constables were afraid to assist; having since got 10 more, will sail for the Hope, and convoy the 12 vessels with butter and cheese, who are afraid to go out without convoy, there being so many men-of-war upon the coast.	40

1655-6. Feb. 24	Wm. Hill -	Major Neh. Bourne, Navy Com ^{rs}	Mr. Binck, the two young men's attorney, writes that their master, Mr. Flower, having been cast in the court at Guildhall two years ago, their indentures are void; supposes their wages will now be no longer retained.	Vol. 135. 41
"	Capt. Edm. Thom- son, Greyhound , Yarmouth Roads.	Adm. Com.	The Weymouth has taken the pressed men, and is ordered for Holland with some large vessels that have long waited a convey, and to bring back 30 waiting there. If he may then go to Ireland, 30 or 40 men and some volunteers would go with him.	42
"	Gen. Geo. Monck, Dalkeith .	"	Sends a letter from Capt. Farley and the officers of the Basing (stating that Jno. Newton acted as steward without warrant, and being very neglectful, whereby the provisions were spoiled, he was superseded by Jno. Fawcett, the clerk of the check, and he having given general satisfaction, they desire he may be appointed), and asks whether to give a warrant to Newton or Fawcett to be steward of the Basing. Hears also from the navy victuallers that they have adopted a course for supplying ships with provisions at Leith. Some anchors and cables should be sent there.	43, 44
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to certify what ships have been sold pursuant to their order, and what remain unsold -	45
"	"	"	Order for the refitting and setting forth of the George, James, Victory, and Vanguard, for present service, and for employment of as many extra workmen as may be needed, to give them quick dispatch.	46
"	Capt. Thos. Alderne, London .	Robt. Blackborne.	Will send the 500 pieces of 8 and 125 pieces of doublebombs by Mr. Lodington to Portsmouth to-morrow unless he contradicts it, and as the party he bought them of will not abide their adventure to Portsmouth, or forbear payment but for 5 or 6 days, so the risk and payment must be performed by the General.	47
"	Capt. Andrew Ashford, Hawk , Downs .	Adm. Com.	Has delivered 20 of the pressed men from Yarmouth to the General in the Downs, and 20 to the Unicorn, and has the remainder still on board.	48
"	Wm. Badiley, Wool- wich .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Will observe their warrant. Progress of the works on the Marigold, which have been delayed by the weather.	49

"	Major N. Bourne, Gravesend .	Edw. Hop- kins, Navy Office .	Went on board the several ships, but found most of their officers absent and business very raw, they wanting both men and victuals. To supply men, directed the boatswain of the yard to take the ordinary, both seamen and labourers; and as to victuals, gave order to the master attendant and other officers; if there is no want of victuals and a proper attendance of the superior officers, nothing can stop proceedings; will call at Chatham on his way home.	51

1655-6. Feb. 25	Jno. Browne, Harwich.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Received their order for tallowing the Advice, but she has not arrived. The Cornelian has come from the Downs to convey a vessel with bread to Dover, and the Eaglet ketch is waiting for pressed men from the balliffs of Ipswich. Sends an account of the provisions required for the stores.	Vol. 135. 52
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Capt. Wilkinson having arrived from Lynn, has put 60 pressed men on board. Will send Capt. as there are others waiting, bound for London, who dare not go in, but to return forthwith, there are 30 English ships at the Maas in the same position. If they knew what need there is continually of convoys to serve all the north parts of England and Scotland, they would not let him be without at least two, for if there are any pirates about, the ships always send to him. To like effect. On Capt. Tompson's return, it would be well for him to go into the river to receive men, as there are 60 pressed who have received conduct money and never appeared. Is making out his accounts. Is assured that some of the men at Portsmouth complained of were changed, and his lieutenant will wait upon them next week. Has 9 men, some being officers, and all have been very active in the work.	53
"	Capt. Jno. Mackey, Yarmouth.	"	Has sold the 7 decayed boats by the candle for 6 l. 1 s. 0 d. , and asks how to dispose of the money.	54

Pley who is gone to Portsmouth with provisions. Left warrants with the mayors and constables to obtain as many as they could and send them to him at Weymouth; will send them on to Portsmouth as they come in.	55
"	John Greene, Deptford.	"	Sends 4 accounts of ships at Deptford preparing for sea, and in rigging wages, and the number of men mustered on Jan. 21st and Feb. 4th and 25th. Will send similar accounts weekly until the summer fleet is gone.	56

"	Wm. Smith	Jno. Davies	Has not hands to close his cables of 17 and 18 inches, and the Commissioners will not allow them, but require that his demands be made to them.	61
"	Capt. Jno. Stoakes, Rainbow, Downs.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Thanks for their letter respecting the hoy. Has sent the names of the pressed men put on board the Rainbow to Thos. Whitton, omitting those who escaped; also an account of disbursements in pressing, conveying, &c.; desires he may take up the bills and receive the surplusage. The Generals are still in the Downs, but intend sailing, and the Rear-Admiral is off the North Foreland. Desires the leave of absence promised.	62

1655-6. Feb. 25	Thos. Toll, mayor of Lynn.	Robt. Blackborne	Returns a letter of the 21st from the Admiralty Commissioners to Capt. Robt. Wilkinson (acknowledging the receipt of his of the 18th, detailing his proceedings in pressing men at Lynn, and the assistance he received from the mayor and Justice Green, and directing him to sail to the Downs), as he has gone to the Downs with the pressed men.	Vol. 135. 65, 66
"	Rich. Vinson, Ply- mouth.	"	Forwarded his letter for Capt. Hatsell to Exeter, as he is in the north parts pressing men. Will get the little Brester from Falmouth fitted out by the time the officers arrive to take charge of her, and she will carry 4 guns which must be sent down; the other of 16 guns will take some time to refit. Has 110 masts of various sizes in store, and must leave it to others to judge whether they will be sufficient to meet demands.	67
"	Capt. Fras. Wil- loughby, Ports- mouth.	Adm. Com.	Sends a survey by Jno. Tippetts, Chas. Thorowgood, and Jno. Lloyd, of the Pelican, which was so damaged by the fire that she had better be sold where she lies. Is sorry they misunderstood him as to tallowing the Portsmouth, as he only agreed to victual her before she sailed. The New England masts are not yet delivered. Cannot find Wood Rogers, and as the captain of the Newberry was provided with a mate, supposes he has returned to his home at Poole. The Nightingale has come in from Falmouth with 173 pressed men and 60 of her own, being men of all trades but seamen, which tends to no other end but to multiply charge. Has also received the gatherings of the south part of Sussex sent by 4 justices of the peace, viz., a tinker, quaker, two glass carriers, hatter, chairmaker, and a tanner, with his boy 7 years old, and so the mayor of Southampton supplies at all times, and thus the State is abused, the country oppressed, and many a poor man brought from his home to travel 100 miles or more without a penny in his purse.	68, 69
"	Rear - Adm. Jno. Bourne, Swiftsure, Downs.	"	Details his services to the State several years, and being now uncertain as to his present capacity, or what allowance will be made for his services, desires to be enlightened.	70
"	Capt. Jno. Bowrey, Eaglet Hope.	"	Has brought what men he could get at Ipswich, and will put them on board the ships. Had to press them himself, the bailiffs being afraid to act, and the townspeople much abused his men. There are 16 sail at Harwich who dare not put to sea on account of the men-of-war about the sands.	71

Feb. 26	Jno. Morris, Gravesend .	Adm. Com.	The Lyme has 198 men, and is taking in her provisions, but her officers have not arrived, and the Bristol has 150 men and will sail to-morrow. The Baglet ketch has come in from Ipswich with 25 pressed men which he will distribute between the Lyme and Bristol, and detain the ketch until further order. Will observe their commands on the arrival of any fire or victualling ships.	Vol. 135. 74
"	Capt. Robt. Plumleigh, Reserve, Downs .	"	Sends a list of men-of-war in the Downs, with particulars of their victualling. Delivered their instructions to Capt. Has sent a demand for the stores required for fitting out the 4 second rate ships for foreign service, and if 50 or 60 workmen are sent from London, they may be ready by the middle of April. 1655-6. Feb. 27	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	The Embargo is bad news for the fishermen but otherwise good; if they can only furnish one ship as a convoy for the North Sea fishers, these had better stay at home, as it would be impossible for one ship to take care of them when scattered. Capt. Tompson had gone as convoy to some ships for the Maas before the Embargo came, but ordered him not to go in there, and to return immediately. Cannot agree with Capt. Plumleigh that 70 or 80 of the pressed men were no sailors, but it cannot be expected that fishermen are as competent as able seamen, and it is easy for the captain to cast dirt in others' faces, and not press any men himself; does not desire such thankless employment. Captain Wilkinson's company want their wages, having been 19 months without, and he only had 5 days' provisions when he went to the Downs. Capt. Mackey is making up his accounts, and about leaving. Capt. Tompson desires Jno. Watling for his master and pilot.	Vol. 135. 87
"	Capt. Jeffery Dare, Bear, Downs.	"	Has received 13 butts of brandy and 6 weeks' provisions from Dover, and is now under sail	88
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Exeter.	"	Has been to Barnstaple and Bideford, but could only get 24 seamen, they having fled out of the reach of the constables. Has issued warrants for their apprehension and appearance before Lionel Becker and Jno. Tooker, and will order Capt. Taylor, who has already secured 40, to assist them. Does not know what Lieut. Gough had from Capt. Pley for bringing in the derelict, but through his and Fortescue's unhandsome carriage, the goods will suffer to the extent of 100 l. , and the most part are yet unsold; as Capt. Pley will shortly be in London, will order him to attend them thereon. Was daily annoyed by the complaints of the cook of the Nantwich against Capt. Jefferies and his purser, but upon examining the gunner, found matters were not as alleged by the cook. Will send his thoughts respecting the masts on his arrival at Plymouth.	89
"	"	Col. Jno. Clarke.	Is glad to hear the fleet is so forward, and will do his best to procure men and fit out the Bresters. Would have taken the information of the cook of the Nantwich on oath had he stayed, but having investigated the matter at Plymouth, conceives the complaints made against Capt. Jefferies and his purser arose principally from malice, although they were not altogether blameless.	90
"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Is perfecting his accounts, and will attend them next week and get what volunteers he can meantime. Is sorry so much fault was found with the men he sent, and such an aspersion cast upon them as being countrymen and ploughmen, when he is confident to the contrary.	91
"	Capt. Robt. Plumleigh, Reserve, Downs.	"	The Generals have sailed with the rest of the fleet. Has received some more pressed men, and sends a list of them. Desires order to discharge some he has on board, as being useless. Renews his application for two months' leave of absence.	92, 93

"	Thos. Scott, Deptford.	Adm. Com.	Received a bill of imprest for 40 l. , which is all laid out; wants another, and an order for delivery of cordage and other stores for rigging the ships.	95
"	Capt. Fras. Willoughby, Portsmouth	"	As Capt. Gethings of the Newcastle died to-day, his ship is destitute of a commander. The Nightingale has arrived with some more pressed men, but they are mostly of such a nature that the captains will not meddle with them; yet as the fleet is expected daily, has kept them on board. Particulars of ships.	96
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for complying with his desire about Vice-Admiral Lawson; will be glad to see Vice-Admiral Badiley with the fleet at Portsmouth; it is daily expected. Capt. Gethings has not long enjoyed his new command, having died to-day. Is sorry to hear of the illness of Mr. Pett. Shall be satisfied if he pays Lieut. Fowler's money to Mr. Hopkins.	97
"	Capt. Jno. Smith, Flushing.	Capt. Robt. Plumleigh.	Sailed from Dover with his convoy for Flushing, and when at anchor in Blackenbury, 2 sloops full of men came amongst them, and would have boarded some of them had he not been ready with his boat and guns, but they followed him to Flushing. While there, 4 or 5 Ostenders came in with 6 prizes, whereupon he went with Capt. Groves to the Lords, to know the extent of their commissions, and whether they were authentic; could get no answer, but the Vice-Admiral and Capt. Hudson said they were of no force. There is a fleet there bound for Calais in company of Capts. Hudson and Bancker, one being richly laden with piece goods, and another with powder.	98
"	Capt. Jno. Grove, the Pembroke, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Convoys 3 vessels for Flushing where some Ostend men-of-war brought in 4 English prizes; the masters of the prizes desired he would speak to the Lords there, as to what would be done with them. Went to Middleburg with Mr. Gill of Flushing, and asked the President to examine their commissions, as they were old and not authentic, which he promised to do and to decide the next day. Attended him again with Capt. Smith and Mr. Gill on that matter, as also respecting one of the masters of the prizes, who was kept prisoner on one of the men-of-war as security for 130 l. for the release of his vessel; the President agreed to his release on their putting in security for the money, but alleged that the other matter was referred to the Lords, who would do what was right; has received no further satisfaction. There are some vessels there bound to Calais with powder; hears they will go through St. George's Channel.	99
"	Capt. Jno. Best, Adventure, Yarmouth Roads.	Robt. Blackborne.	Is in the Road with 40 sail going northward the first wind, but left Mr. Blades behind at Hull, as also the surgeon's chest. There are 3 or 4 Yarmouth ships laden with salt and wine going for Leith, but there is not a State's ship to convoy them, and there are several Dunkirkers upon the coast.	100

1655-6. Feb. 28	Augustine Aldridge, Lydney, Dean Forest.	Navy Com ^{rs}	It would have been better wisdom if Mr. Baylie had tried whether he had timber enough to load a ship before writing them, as he had enough to load 3. Baylie has brought up a ship that will carry 350 tons, but he will not find such a dead weight of timber like merchants' goods. Sent up an account of 108 l. for carriage, but has since been stopped by the rains, save bringing up 17,000 treails on horseback; hopes his hard travail for the last year will not be forgotten. When Messrs. Edgebury and others were sent down to survey the Forest, there were 100 trees to 1 now, or as some say 500 to 1, and no one dared to attempt what he has since done in felling and squaring, of which they will enjoy the fruits. Has sent an account of 700 loads, which is a wonder in these parts; the remainder, besides what he has now shipped, lies in the woods; will soon fall upon it if he can procure carriage but is forced to advance money for that purpose. Hopes they will view the timber sent, and are satisfied with his account of the money received up to the 8 of October last.	Vol. 135. 101

"	Capt. Jno. Sherwin, Scilly Isles.	Adm. Com.	Hearing at Kinsale that two Spanish frigates had taken a Bristol ship having a large sum of money, and had sold her again to her merchants, but retained them on board their ship as security for payment, put to sea with the Mayflower in hopes of meeting with them; but when cruising off Scilly, struck on a sunken rock, called by the fishermen the Sea Stone, or one of the 7 stones, and although he managed to get off, his ship soon after sunk in 60 fathoms of water, and 16 of his men were drowned. "	Thos. White, Dover .	—	Account of money expended and bills drawn for the fitting out of ships and supplying necessities, since 10 Nov. 1655. Total 403 l. 5 s. 9 d.	40
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	His ship, put on shore at Weymouth, is lying there at great charge, although safe, and as there are so many of the enemies' men-of-war about, she cannot sail without convoy, which he requests.	41
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	Begs a letter from the Admiralty Commissioners to the governor of Portland, to deliver his vessel and goods to Jas. Puckle, or give him a warrant to pass the stages thither.	42
"	Major Rich. Elton, Hull .	Adm. Com.	Sends letters received. Delivered their instructions and orders to Capt. Boost, and acquainted others of the town, so as to prevent any danger, but the wind being contrary, neither Capt. Boost nor the merchants have been able to sail. At least one frigate should remain on the northern coasts to look after the pirates; hopes they will grant the petition of the ships for Amsterdam for a convoy, as they are richly laden.	43
"	E. Hayward, London .	Robt. Blackborne.	Receiving little encouragement to stay about his petition and the money, will hasten down to his duties; Mr. Terne, who pays the pensions and knows what is required, will wait upon him in reference thereto. With note by N. Terne that 1,237 l. 7 s. 10 d. is due to him.	44, 44 a
"	Wm. Lower, and 2 other magistrates of Burlington Quay .	Governor or mayor of Hull.	Send a letter received from Scarborough, intimating that a Dunkirk of 10 guns has taken a gaber of Sunderland, and it being feared that many more pirates will be on the coast shortly, if some men-of-war are not sent there, desire notice may be given to all the trading ships, as also to Captain Best, who is expected in the Humber, that he may go northward with all expedition.	45
"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Rochester .	Adm. Com.	Will sail for the Hope and then wait upon them. The master of the ordnance having ordered him some guns which are unfit, desires he may have two brass ones; begs for his lieutenant, Rising, who has served under him 3 years, the command of some small frigate.	46
"	Thos. Pointer, Torrey .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a muster book. Wants a lieutenant, his being appointed to the command of the Colchester. The fleet has gone from Helen's Road to sea, after holding a council of war on board the General. Tuesday was the day for a thanksgiving, but the wind being contrary, most of the services were laid aside. Finds no comfort in purser's employment, and the salary is small.	47
"	Robt. Sewell, Chatham .	"	Asks when the Noyals canvas may be expected, as the works are delayed for want of it; Mr. Bass only sent 100 out of 400 bolts.	48
"	Capt. Chas. Thoroughgood [Portsmouth Dockyard].	Adm. Com.	Will deliver their orders to the commander of the Bryer when she arrives. Was directed by Comr. Willoughby, before his leaving, to order the Wexford into port for quicker dispatch, but the weather has been so unseasonable that she could not weigh anchor. The Tiger and Hope- well pink will be on their stations, unless forced by the weather into the Downs.	49

1655-6. March 22	Capt. Jno. Wool- ters, Nonsuch , Hope .	Adm. Com.	Has taken in the match, shot, and spades, and has 120 men, but wants powder. The other vessels are ready to sail with him.	Vol. 137. 50
" 23	Capt. Jno. Best, Adventure .	Robt. Blackborne.	Arrived in the Humber yesterday. The 14 sail of loaded ships are promised down to-morrow, and others will be ready to come up, weather permitting. Has obtained his full complement of men.	51
" "	Capt. Jno. Bowrey, Eaglet ketch , Har- wich Water .	Adm. Com.	Having revictualled at Ipswich, is ready for sea, and wishes he had orders, as there are three or four ships wanting convoy to the river, one being laden with timber and plank for Chatham. Could see them into the river and then return for orders.	52
" "	Capt. Jas. Strutt, Hope flyboat , Downs .	"	Cannot receive any powder from Deal or Dover Castle, as what was serviceable has been dis-tributed by the captain of Deal Castle.	53
" 24	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	"	As Captain Samson was not ready to convoy the coal fleet, they went without him. Will pro-vide a month's provisions for the Preston; asks a convoy for his vessel from Weymouth to Yarmouth, with such goods as the pirates have left, and there are other vessels to come this way; would be loth to lose his ship the second time, as it will cost a good sum to fit her again. There are 13 Lynn and Boston sail bound for London; will send the Pearl as far as Harwich with them, provided the fleet of light colliers do not come meantime. 200 sail of colliers went for Newcastle on the 23rd, with Capt. Samson, and the Dartmouth and Sparrow pink. Sends a bill of exchange on the Navy Treasurer for 300 l , received of Thos. Wright of Ipswich, on account of Major Neh. Bourne, for fitting out the State's ships, and desires payment. The Weymouth pink has sailed, and the Eaglet ketch is in port.	54
" "	Robt. Grassingham, Harwich .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Delivered their order to Capt. Vessey, who will proceed with Capt. Elliott to range the French coast where the pirates lie, much among our trade. The Sapphire and Constant Warwick are stationed at the mouth of the Channel, and the Sorlings and Bryer will convoy 10 or 12 vessels bound for St. Malo and Morlaix. Particulars of ships. Received Geo. Pley's letter, and is sorry for the great sufferings of the poor people mentioned, but the two vessels of Lyme were not so rich as suggested. Hears from Capt. Parker that he left St. Malo with 6 vessels under his charge, and, a great fog coming on, he anchored near Dartmouth, and one of the ships, putting to sea in the night unknown to him, was captured by a man-of-war, but bought back again for 250 l . Has sent the Sorlings and Griffin to range that coast. As we are likely to be visited this summer with many of these Dunkirk and Ostend men-of-war, two or three large and small vessels should be appointed to look after them. Wants oars for ships named.	55

1655-6. March 24	Capt. Robt. Robinson, the Preston , Yarmouth Roads .	Adm. Com.	Will take in a month's provisions; 80 sail of the North Sea men will be ready to go with him the end of the week. The fleet of 200 light colliers has gone for Newcastle with the Portsmouth and two others. Captain Smith of the Pearl has come in from the north, and has not heard of any of the enemy's men-of-war on that coast.	Vol. 137. 58
"	Capt. Jno. Smith, Yarmouth Roads .	"	Conveyed 75 sail for Sunderland and Newcastle, but was forced back to Bridlington Bay 3 times by winds which have blown all the Ostenders upon their own coast. Has only seen three of their men-of-war, one of which was taken by the Portsmouth and Pearl. Chased the other two himself, but lost them in the fog. Met the Portsmouth on the 23rd, with 200 sail bound for Sunderland and Newcastle. Is now waiting to sail with the next fleet, as all the Ostenders and Dunkirkers will be out the next southerly wind, and will infest trade, except the colliers keep in fleets.	59
"	Abr. Stock, Dover .	[Blackborne.]	The Dunkirk packet has arrived, and reports that a ship of Leith with sugar, tobacco, and coals, and another of Londonderry with butter and salmon, have been brought in, and that a Virginian of 16 guns was also taken in the Channel by Capt. Cary, but by some negligence was blown up and left at sea. Wrote of a ship of his own which they took twice; as she is now at Dunkirk and about to be taken to Flushing for sale, it would be easy to retake her if a ship was appointed; begs an order for one for that purpose. The Royal frigate of Calais, which has but 7 guns and seldom comes out, rescued two Englishmen and two Frenchmen last week from the Dunkirkers, and carried them into Calais.	60
"	Capt. Jno. Taylor, Chatham .	Navy Com ^{rs}	As the stores at Chatham are short of timber, and the time for felling is near, begs that the purveyor may buy 1,000 loads for sale out of Cobham Park, which has been surveyed and found serviceable.	61
"	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gamborough , Downs .	Adm. Com.	Sends account of the condition and stations of the Downs squadron. The Reserve has gone to Calais for the Lord Ambassador, who has been there 4 days; thinks the Norwich and Greyhound should also go over, as the pirates are very busy on that coast. Having received 19 prisoners from Capt. Sanders, ask what to do with them. Has had very tempestuous weather in the Downs for 5 or 6 days, but all the ships are safe. Expects the Reserve with the ambassador in the afternoon.	62, 63
1656. March 25	Jno. Stronge, Providence , Torbay .	Navy Com ^{rs}	Sends a muster book which is not signed, as Capt. Kirby has been discharged into the Ruby, and his present captain declines to sign it, because it was before his time.	64
"	Adm. Com. -	"	Order for Capt. Alderne to put 100 tons of water in iron bound casks on board the victualling ships, and as much beer in like casks as will take up their stowage.	65
"	Capt. Jno. Best, Adventure , Tynemouth .	Adm. Com.	Sailed from Hull the 23rd, and hearing there was a Dunkirk man-of-war on the coast, gave chase, but lost him when dark. Waits to convoy the ships bound for London, and will call at the Humber for those there.	66

" 28	Capt. Rich. Country, Hind, Harwich .	"	Brought in an Ostend sloop, and intended to put to sea, but those at Ipswich refusing to receive his prisoners, had to take them to Harwich, where they broke prison, and most escaped. Has been plying on his station, and convoyed several vessels; also chased a rogue on shore near Orford, and as the people pursued the men up the country, supposes they are in hold; could not get the vessel off, so had to leave her with the mixed multitude.	99

"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth .	Adm. Com.	Left the Generals yesterday with the fleet at Torbay, but has promised to return with a minister for the Lord's day. The John of Dieppe was brought into Plymouth in Dec. 1653, by Capt. Best; her lading consisted of 1,600 l. worth of beaver, and some spars. Some of the beaver was embezzled and brought on shore, but the greater part was afterwards found. Capt. Stoakes brought in a Stockholmer from Guinea in 1652, which had a quantity of gold, and which was sent to London, and afterwards restored to the Swedes. Cannot find Nich. Trelain; there was a Nicholas Delau formerly residing at Plymouth, who was a mariner and a French subject, but he has gone to sea. Sends the examination of Wm. Trevill, merchant of Plymouth, who was a passenger in the Primrose when she foundered on some sunken rocks near the 7 Stones, off Scilly, that several men were drowned, and that he and the rest were rescued by Capt. Bowen of the Mayflower, and landed at Scilly. Cannot account for the accident, as it was a smooth sea at the time, but Capt. Jno. Sherwin of the Primrose had gone on board Capt. Bowen, to consult as to providing him with a mast.	101, 102
"	Capt. Edm. Thom- son, Expedition , near Upnor Castle .	"	His sails being now made and his powder promised to be sent to the Hope, has gone below Upnor Castle, so as to keep his men; as Commissioner Pett is not at Chatham, asks orders as to sailing.	103

"	Capt. Robt. Colman, the Wexford, Portsmouth.	"	Sends a letter from his company to the Admiralty Commissioners, requesting payment of their wages, warrants for the places they hold, and the refitting and victualling of the frigate. In August 1654, was invited by his friends to settle in Ireland, but while there, the Lord Deputy and Council gave him the command of the Wexford. Being without proper officers, he had to indent for all he received, and being again in want, desires an order of discharge from all prior engagements before he proceeds any further, as also liberty to come to London to pass his accounts.	111, 112
"	Jos. Drake, Store- keeper, Hull.	"	Has surveyed the powder remaining in the magazine and garrison, and finds there are 21 barrels, which, with a little drying, may be made serviceable.	113
"	Capt. Tho. Elliott, Fagon, Plymouth Sound.	"	Has brought in the Cornelius of Ostend, having 5 guns, and will proceed to his station on the coast of France.	114
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Robt. Blackborne.	The Fagon has brought in a Dunkirk man-of-war of 5 guns, taken after a chase of 6 hours, and the loss of her rigging and yards in fight. Has directed Capt. Elliott to keep her captain a prisoner, as those at St. Sebastian's still detain Sydrach Blake, but to discharge the men, except such as be English, Scotch, or Irish, to save expense. As the prize is a swift sailer, asks whether she shall be fitted out. Wants orders as to the disposal of prisoners taken, as those of Dunkirk and Ostend do not keep ours. There is little left in the prize beyond her sails and yards, so greedy are the captors when they take a vessel that fights.	115
"	"	Adm. Com.	The English fleet has been seen off the Start; believes it is now out of the Channel. They have taken the Otter with them. Sends the examination of Cornelius Verhagen, captain of the St. Cornelius of Ostend, taken by Capt. Elliott, that he had the enclosed commission from the Admiralty of the King of Spain at Dunkirk, for taking English and French ships. That he took a small vessel of Looe, in Cornwall, with pilchards and coals, bound for St. Malo, which was retaken 4 days afterwards, and carried to St. Malo, but whether by English or French he cannot say. That there are 33 men-of-war at Ostend, of from 20 to 30 guns each, and 30 at Dunkirk, besides one on the stocks, which is to carry 42 guns, and that 12 English prizes have lately been sent in there, and 20 to Ostend, most of them being colliers. The St. Cornelius had 5 guns and 30 men, and belongs to Ostenders and subjects of the King of Spain.	116-118

1656. March 31	Laurence Blancart, London.	Mr. Marston.	Desires him to see Col. Salmon on his and Mr. Stock's petition to the Admiralty Commissioners; hears from Stock that the packet from Calais has brought news that two Dunkirkers having taken two vessels coming out from thence, the Royal frigate of Calais went out and took the two Dunkirkers and their prizes, and carried the four into Calais, and one of the Dunkirk captains was killed. If the Commissioners would grant the Norwich or some other frigate to cruise upon the coast of Flanders for a few days, it would probably retake their ship, or do considerable service upon some of those small rogues, and also convoy some vessels to Flushing which are now waiting in the Downs. "	Jno. Bonython, Bridewell.	Robt. Blackborne.	Having been a prisoner 16 weeks, begs presentation of his petition, with the names of his proposed sureties—Saml. Pendarves and Wm. Holland, gentlemen of Cornwall—to the Admiralty Commissioners, and his release.	145
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	Adm. Com.	Thanks for their order to the governor of Portland to deliver up his ship and goods to his man, and for promising a convoy. Some men of the Dartmouth having, through accident or design, sunk their boat in bringing letters on shore, has had to supply them with money until they can return to their ship. Sends the petition of 88 fishermen, residents of the coast towns in Litchingland and the hamlets adjacent, praying for a convoy, and for vessels to protect them during the mackarel season from pirates infesting the coast, as on that fishery they and the inhabitants of eos. Suffolk and Norfolk chiefly depend.	146, 147

Curle, Sparrow, Downs.	"	Was sent to Newcastle with the Dartmouth, and on arriving at the bar, experienced such a heavy gale that he lost his boat, anchor, and cable, and his ship sprung a leak, so that he has had to work the pumps ever since. Has sent to Dover for a fresh supply, as nothing can be had in the Downs.	148
"	Josiah Child, Vic- tualling Office, Portsmouth.	Robt. Blackborne.	Capt. "	Capt. Jno. Parker, Truelove, Spithead.	Adm. Com.	Will convoy the New England ship with the masts to Plymouth to-morrow. Having only two days' provisions, applied to the victualler, but as he refused to supply any without order, shall sail without.	150
"	Capt. Chas. Thorow- good, Dockyard, [Portsmouth].	"	Delivered their letter to Capt. Parker, who will sail with the New England ship to-morrow if the wind is fair, but if not he will wait victuals. Mr. Child, the victualler, declined to furnish without order. The officers of the Wexford having certified their readiness to sail, she will proceed to her station between Portland and Alderney. The master of Major Burton's vessel has gone to Portland.	151

The Constant Warwick is bringing in a prize with 80 or 90 men; asks orders respecting them, and whether that and the Dunkirk lately brought in, shall be fitted out; 8 or 10 such small vessels might be of great service to the fleet. Hears from the captain of the Otter, at Falmouth, that the fleet passed him in the Channel.	Vol. 138. 16

"	Capt. Robt. Colman, the Wexford, Spithead.	"	Has sailed as ordered, and will get what men he can to make up his complement, and then cruise between the Isle of Wight and Seine Head; as their honours' words are as good as their hands, will not trouble them for warrants for his officers. Desires the command of a better ship, having been recommended for it by Generals Deane, Monk, and Penn, and Vice-Adm. Lawson, under all of whom he served as commander or pilot.	28

"	J. Blackborne, Plymouth.	Robt. Blackborne.	Is glad to hear his troublesome business is so near a period; thanks for favours, and will try to answer expectations in the trust reposed in him. Hopes that he does not much value the place in the customs, having a good portion without, and that he will submit to the will of Him who has been abundantly merciful to both of them. Capt. Potter has arrived with his prize. Capt. Hatsell is still at the Exeter Assizes.	32
"	Jno. Morris, Gravesend.	Adm. Com.	Sent their letter for Capt. Mackey to Gillingham. The Advice has 130 men and 3 weeks' provisions. Continued the search for the party they wrote about, and hears he has gone to Dover.	33

Has informed Mr. Stock, and the other merchants at Dover, of their pleasure, and appointed the Pembroke and Drake as convoys for them and others bound for Flushing, when they come in; hears they have been chasing several pirates off the coast, of whom 3 came out of Dunkirk with the packet boat, and went west; as there are 4 men-of-war that way, they may light on some of them. Made the Land's End but was forced back to Kinsale, where he remained until the 3rd inst. Applied to Capt. "	Capt. Mic. Nutton, the Norwich, The Gore.	"	Had orders to convoy 13 sail for the Holland coast; the Greyhound and Cornelian, part of them, have been forced into the Gore by contrary winds, and the remainder into Queenborough, and are now waiting for an opportunity to resail.	45
"	Adam Smythson, Pevensey.	Navy Com ^{rs}	The Primrose has been laden since the 12th ult., but could not sail without convoy, as there were two Ostenders lying upon the coast; the Pembroke offered to take her, but she could not then get out for the wind. "	Capt. Fras. Cran- will.	Adm. Com.	Asks the command of one of the small vessels fitting out at Deptford; served in the wars with Holland, and as there is now a war with Spain, if his request is granted, hopes to be able to give a good account of his command.	52
"	Capt. Jno. Smith, Harwich.	"	Has come in to victual, clean, and set a new mast. In conveying the 60 sail from Yarmouth to Newcastle, a violent storm forced 40 of them into the Humber, and the rest on to the Holland coast; was compelled to keep at sea himself, from fear of the enemies surprising them.	53
"	Capt. Thos. Eliot, Fagon, Rochelle.	"	While off Belle Isle, took the St. Michael of St. Sebastian's, of 75 men and 8 guns, commanded by Capt. Delorance, by commission from the King of Spain. Has put the men on shore at Rochelle, but kept the captain, as he hopes to obtain Capt. Sid. Blake's enlargement for him; the captain has written to St. Sebastian's for that purpose.	54
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	"	Wants the Otter and Raven to attend the frigates and pursue the small Discay men-of-war, which hide in rocks about Belle Isle. Account of the good vessel taken by the Constant Warwick. The enemy's ships are fully manned and ours weakly, many being boys. Desires that these two ships may be fitted and employed about the Western station, as it is much infested with pirates, and that the men in the Sapphire may be increased to 150 or 160, in the Constant Warwick to 130, and in the Fagon to 120. Particulars of ships. Sends the examination of Mighell De Trebaren, captain of the Nostra Senora Del Secorro of St. Sebastian, stating that he came from thence with a commission to take the enemies of the King of Spain at sea, took an English ship laden with coals, bound for Rochelle, and sent her to St. Sebastian's; also a French ship, belonging to Bordeaux; that there are 30 men-of-war belonging to St. Sebastian's, two whereof are now at sea; and that his ship was taken by Captain Potter of the Constant Warwick, and brought into Plymouth, where she now is. Also inventories by Jno. Hooper and two others of her masts, rigging, sails, and stores, and of those of the St. Cornelius, alias the Raven.	55, 56
"	Capt. Rich. Potter, Constant War- wick, Cutwater, Plymouth.	"	Asks an increase of 20 men to his company, not being so strong as the enemies he will have to deal with, and having 30 less than were allowed in the Dutch war.	57

Thinks the prize might be fitted out again as a man-of-war; she is very strong, and will carry 18 guns. Begs influence if such a thing is intended.	Vol. 138. 58
"	Augustine Aldridge, Lydney, Dean Forest.	Navy Com ^{rs}	If it had not been for so much rain which has made the Forest a bog, would have had timber ready to load Mr. Baylie's great ship; has not been neglectful, and begs encouragement, as he cannot command the heavens. Hears Mr. Baylie has been at a charge of 100 l. for demurrage through his timber not being sent down to the water's edge, but it could not have been done if he had given 40 s. a load for carriage, on account of the wet. It was Baylie's own fault, in letting his old ship drive upon the sands for want of looking after, by which a fortnight was lost; could only stow in her hold and upon deck 53 tons of timber. Wishes all the timber he has squared in the Forest was at the Fill, although it were out of his own purse.	59

1656. April 11	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Col. Jno. Clarke.	The repairs upon the Constant Warwick have been hindered by such foul weather as has not been known in the memory of man, but the works on the Raven will be ended in a day or two. The Truelove put into Dartmouth with her convoy with masts and oars, wanting provisions; has endeavoured to procure them for her. Understands that three gallions and two others have been armed at Cadiz, but it is now too late to wish that 16 frigates had been sent before the fleet; none of such things arise from the dust; the Lord give right hearts to use these cross providences. Asks orders as to cleaning and victualling the Primrose.	Vol. 138. 78
"	Capt. Rich. Potter, Constant Warwick, Catwater, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Has been prevented setting the new mainmast and completing the cleaning and other works needed through the stormy weather, but hopes to be ready next Tuesday.	79
"	Capt. Mich. Nutton, the Norwich, Har- wich.	"	Has been compelled through the easterly wind to put into Harwich, together with the Greyhound, Cornelius, and Wren, and the 15 sail under their convoy for the coast of Holland.	80
"	Capt. Jno. Parker, Truelove, Dart- mouthe.	Robt. Blackborne.	Thanks for the command of the frigate building at Deptford; is doubtful of returning by the time she is launched, but hopes not to be put out of her. Since leaving Portsmouth with his convoy, met Swart with a Brest man-of-war, and had some dispute with him; as he left him in the night, thinks he received some damage. Has put in with his convoy through contrary winds.	81

"	Jno. Baskett, Ports- mouthe.	Master and Wardens Surgeons' Hall.	Recommends Hen. Gouldsbrough for the surgeon's place in the Wakefield lately built at Portsmouth	84
"	Jer. Smyth - - -	Adm. Com.	Desires they will send notice to the postmaster at Ferrybridge, Yorkshire, when they want him -	85
"	Capt. Chas. Thoroughood, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	"	The Tiger has arrived at Spithead with the Governor of Jersey and his family, as also some money. There are 14 vessels at Portsmouth and Cowes bound for London, but they dare not put out without convoy.	86
"	Capt. Gab. Sanders, Tiger, Spithead.	"	Went to Jersey for Col. Gibbon, and having landed him and 5 chests of money, desires order as to refitting and victualling.	87
"	Col. Rob. Gibbon, Portsmouth.	"	Thanks for the commodious and safe convoy he had in the Tiger, with the composition money from Jersey.	88
"	Dan. Johnson, Poole	Robt. Blackborne	As there will be alterations in the Custom House by the change of Commissioners, hopes to get out of the unworthy place he is now in; Lyme, Plymouth, or some other port will suit him as well as Southampton.	89

1656. April 12	Capt. Robt. Mackey	Adm. Com.	Has passed his accounts before the Navy Commissioners for impressing seamen, but they refused to grant him anything for his six weeks' labour without warrant from the Admiralty Commissioners; begs one, as also renewal of those of his boatswain and carpenter.	Vol. 138. 90
"	Hen. Pitt, Mayor, Southampton.	"	Sends a list of men pressed by him, and an account of the disbursements therein of sl. 11d. , and desires payment. They did not all appear before Comr. Willoughby at Portsmouth after receiving their tickets and money, for which he was blamed, but they were carried away by officers of other ships without his consent.	91
"	Capt. Lamb. Cornelius, Cornelien, Harwich.	"	Is about resailing with his convoys for Holland, having been forced in by contrary winds	92
"	Jno. Miller	"	Petition for the gunner's place in a small frigate building at Deptford, having so served in the Rosebush . With certificate of Rich. Hodges and 3 others of Deptford, that Miller has been a resident there for years, has served in the wars, and deserves another warrant.	93
"	Capt. Jno. Woolters, Nonsuch, Leith Roads.	"	Sailed from the Yarmouth Roads with 40 ships bound northwards, but the wind proving contrary, put the Hull ships into the Humber, and proceeded with the remainder to Leith Road. A Holland convoy has come in, with some vessels from Rotterdam.	94
"	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Col. Clarke.	The Spanish silver ships will hardly fight with the fleet unless their spirits be much elated with their successes. While at Tavistock to put down the ale houses, received the letter enclosed, sent by Lieut.-Col. Ebbery at Youghall to Ensign Perry's widow, announcing her husband's death and promising to send her sl. he had left . Will pay her the sl. , she having had his month's pay by Capt. Northcote's order; knows nothing of his arrears. The violence of the storm having abated, expects the Truelove , and will give her all dispatch. Will attend the General Quarter Sessions at Exeter to-morrow, when he may meet Capt. Pley, on his return from London, about the sale of the goods at Dartmouth on the 22nd. Has written the Commissioners as to the plundering of the men of-war lately taken, and suggesting a remedy; believes that it will cost the State 800l. to make good every 30l. taken, and that the like abuses exist in the river and other parts.	95, 96

"	Geo. Dam, late steward of the Marston Moor.	Adm. Com.	Petition that some seamen's clothing, lying in a warehouse at Portsmouth, may be disposed of, so that he may be cleared of all responsibility. On the Marston Moor's going to the West Indies, these clothes were put on board by Vice-Adm. Goodson, but being disliked by the seamen, were brought back, and put where they now are. With order thereon to the Navy Commissioners to remove them, or show cause to the contrary, and to pay for their warehousing.	98

"	Phineas Pett, Robt. Sewell, Chatham Dock.	Adm. Com.	All the blocks made by Jos. Munds and Jno. Beake, blockmakers, have for the last 20 years been measured by breadth only, and been so allowed by successive Navy Commissioners, who have signed bills for them.	100
"	Capt. Jo. Topping, Tynemouth Castle.	Gen. Jno. Desborow.	Sends account of 200 barrels of powder received from London, also of some that has been in the garrison 8 years, with the marks and quality of each barrel; asks a change of what is defective. 2 ounces of the old powder carried a 9 lb. bullet out of a little mortar 300 paces, whereas what is marked as bad did not carry it above 100 paces.	101, 102
"	Capt. Will. White- horn, the Gains- borough, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Sends account of the condition and stations of the Downs squadron. Has had much foul weather, and pirates are not so numerous upon the coast.	103, 104
" 15	Augustine Aldridge, Bristol.	Navy Com ^r	Has been to Bristol with Mr. Shewell, and drawn a bill on them for 100 l. ; hopes payment, as he cannot else carry on the work of felling, squaring, sawing, and carriage of the timber in Dean Forest.	105
"	Sub. - Comrs. for Prize Goods, Scar- borough.	Adm. Com.	Particulars of a little sloop of one gun, sent in by Capt. Sansum; ask orders as to her disposal, as several wish to buy her.	106

"	Capt. Ben. Com. - -	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order to take an assignment from Major Browne of the lease of the great store and barge house, and the wharf adjoining the old Dock at Chatham, for 14½ years for 350 l. for the use of the Ordnance Office, the major retaining a little wharf on the south side of the dock; also nullifying a former order for erecting sheds in lieu thereof. With their reply, stating performance, and recommending Browne as storekeeper; he agreed to the terms in hopes of this appointment.	115, 116

"	Eliz. Corper, London.	"	Finding their letter required her husband's speedy return, sent it to him next post, but has no reply; hopes his business may be delayed, as he intended to be in London in 14 days.	118
"	Thos. Pointer, Speaker, off the Southward Cape.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Hears there are 28 Spanish sail, 3 whereof were men-of-war, gone to the West Indies with many soldiers on board, and 30 sail are lying at Pointvall, but no preparations made for fitting them out. Many soldiers have been drawn down to Cadiz, and so along the coast. 4 of the Plate ships have come home, but 3 of the richest have been cast away. The English fleet lie off the Southward Cape, and although they have had bad weather, all are in good condition. It is thought the French will have something to say to Naples.	119
"	Capt. Chas. Thorogood, Dockyard, Portsmouth.	Adm. Com.	Sends a post label, showing the delay of the postmasters in forwarding on their letter to him, by which he lost a day, and was prevented launching a vessel as desired this tide, but hopes to do it the next, when she will sail with the small vessels under her convoy, as also one of London from the Straits. The Essex has been tallowed and wants a boatswain and some men.	120
"	Major Jno. Wade, Little Dean.	Col. Jno. Clarke.	Thanks him for searching the post office for his letter, the loss of which has given him much pain and trouble; it has been received. The purveying of timber does not go on well, for want of money to pay the workmen. Gave the purveyor 100 l. as ordered, and he has had another 50 l. on a bill of exchange.	121
"	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gainsborough, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Will give Capt. Baker their letter when he arrives, and send him to Portsmouth. As there is such a great need of convoys, cannot keep any of the squadron in the Narrow; it would be too much to mention all the chases our frigates have had after the pirates, and only lost them through wind and weather. Last Lord's day the Sparrow pink and Hawk ketch chased one from Beachy, half seas over, but she rowed from them, although the Hawk rowed with 12 oars, and had her own boat, with the pink's boat, towing her; is much troubled that none of them have yet been taken, when the utmost endeavours have been used.	122

"	Capt. Rich. Country, Woolwich.	Adm. Com.	Conveyed several hoys bound for London to the Shoe Beacon, and left them there, and then plied about the Ness for pirates. Took a vessel of Rotterdam with wine and brandy, and left her in custody of the governor of Landguard Fort; hearing of another pirate up the Swin, took 9 more vessels under convoy as high as the Shoc, and then made for the Thames.	125
17	Capt. Ben. Gifford, governor of Land- guard Fort.	"	After Capt. Country had chased and left the sloop on shore near Orford, the rabble of the country broke her up for firewood, and only a cable, two sails, and a broken mast have been found; will order them to be brought to Harwich if commanded.	126
"	Major N. Bourne, Deptford.	"	Since their being at Deptford, has looked into the complaint against the commander of the Cullen, bound to the southward fleet; and having visited her, finds she has been waiting to stow the bread and beer, but will sail to-morrow for Gravesend, and be ready to proceed to sea.	127
"	"	Navy Com ^{rs}	To like effect. There would not have been so much delay, had not the captain of the Cullen had to come up for his bill of imprest to pay his bills, which, as yet, he cannot procure; this being paid, he has nothing to do but to discharge his debts for the ship and sail. This man is diligent, and a good husband of time, and has no design to spin out time.	128
"	Robt. Grassingham, Jno. Browne, Har- wich.	"	Particulars of ships. The Norwich and 3 others have sailed with their convoys for Holland.	129
"	Capt. Robt. Colman, the Wexford, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Has been chasing several vessels, and forced one on shore, when the captain and crew of 18 persons fled into the country with their arms; but being pursued by his company, 7 men were taken and delivered to the constables. For the better security of the vessel, he heaved her up with a crab near Beachy Point. Chased another to within two leagues of Calais, when, the wind changing, was forced to give over and make for the Downs; will proceed to his former station.	130

Penn, and find Lawes was debtor for 8,000 l. , and creditor for 7,901 l. 14 s. 9½ d. , and Bodham debtor for 6,781 l. 12 s. 8 d. , and creditor for 6,692 l. 19 s. 7½ d. Lawes' balances should be defalked from his pay, and Bodham should pay in his.	132

1656. April 17	Thos. White, mayor, Dover .	Adm. Com.	Sends a deposition, made before him and Jno. Price, jurate, by Chas. Hunt and Wm. Woolstone, mariners of Dover, that Capt. Wilde arrived from Zaute, informed them that while off the North Cape, he passed a fleet of 26 sail, including 6 Dutch men-of-war and 5 Dunkirkers, bound for Dunkirk with plate and other rich goods for the King of Spain, and that they might very shortly be expected this way. Has sent a copy to the Commander-in-Chief in the Downs.	Vol. 138. 134, 135
"	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gainsborough, Downs .	"	The Dartmouth, at Dover, shall proceed to Rye, as ordered. If Colman's pink, and a 4th or 5th rate were to ply between the Wight, Portland, and the Start, they might convoy vessels on their way to and fro, as all the Downs' squadron are continually in action. Sent the Cat pink with a convoy for Calais, and there are several vessels in the Downs bound to the Wight, one having guns for Portsmouth. Asks whether to appoint the Reserve as a convoy; she is not so leaky as formerly; has only her, the Wexford, and Gainsborough, and the two latter are about to sail. Desires instructions on a deposition sent to him by Thos. White, mayor of Dover.	136
"	"	"	Has considered Mr. White's information as to the pirates bound for Dunkirk, and as to surprising them, but cannot venture forth without order, and no time should be lost. Is now under sail with the Reserve, Wexford, and Cat pink, and will take any other men-of-war he meets with, and ply in the Narrow. Intends, by consent of the commanders in the Downs, to bring the whole fleet there, and if not willing, to fight them.	137
"	Adm. Com.	Navy Com ^{rs}	Order for victualling the Cheriton for 3 months, for 90 men, or longer, if there is sufficient storage room.	138
"	"	"	Order for cleaning the Hind ketch at Woolwich, and victualling her for two months	139
"	"	"	Order to make out a bill to Col. Anth. Rous' son for money disbursed by his father in impressing seamen, according to an account sent.	140
" 18	"	"	Order to examine the accounts of Major Jno. Miller for impressing seamen, as also his accounts of decayed stores sold out of the Tower, a portion of the proceeds of which he has paid to the Navy Treasurer; and after allowing him his disbursements, and balancing what he has in hand, to give him a discharge.	141
"	Major Rich. Elton, Hull .	Adm. Com.	Capt. Boost was much troubled on hearing they thought he had wasted time; he endeavoured to get up with the London ships several times, but could not until the 13th, since which he has made all haste with them to the Thames, and hoped to return to Hull by the 18th, to take charge of the Amsterdam ships, who are drawing out, so as to fall under his protection. Considers him a diligent and careful man.	142

1656. April 18	Navy Counrs. -	Adm. Com.	Examined the captain and officers of the Primrose, cast away near the 7 Stones, between the Land's End and Scilly, and found them unanimous in one relation; but for better satisfaction, desired the Committee of the Trinity House also to examine the premises and report; think there was no neglect either in the officers or company, the place where she miscarried being a rock not visible nor described in any plat they can find. With report of the Trinity House Committee 5 April alluded to, and examinations of John Sherwin, captain, and the officers of the Primrose, 31 March and 5 April.	Vol. 138. 143-149
"	Capt. Hum. Felstead, Marigold flyboat, Plymouth.	"	Meeting with foul weather since leaving Portland, has put into Plymouth Sound with his company of 6 sail, and was glad they had such a port under their lee, but will proceed the first opportunity; other ships named have also been forced in.	150
"	Capt. Tho. Morris, Plymouth.	"	Convoyed several vessels for St. Malo and Morlaix, by order of Commissioner Hatsell and Capt. Parker, and chased an Ostend man-of-war, but he got amongst the rocks and escaped. Cannot obey their order to convoy some vessels through the Soundings to the fleet, having neither men nor provisions sufficient. Turned some of his men over to the General in Torbay. His gunner having died, desires his mate may succeed him.	151
"	Capt. Rich. Parker, Plymouth.	"	To like effect. Although he and Capt. Morris discharged 100 guns a-piece at the Ostender, he got away. Asks whether still to keep company with Morris or return to his station; wants a purser.	152
"	Capt. Jno. Parker, Truelove, Cat- water, Plymouth.	"	Arrived with the New England ship with the masts on the 16th; has tallowed, and would have sailed eastward to-morrow, but receiving their order to come to London, will ride post in the morning.	153

"	Capt. Wm. White- horn, the Gains- borough, at Sea.	"	Meeting the Hopewell pink, has taken her with him for a few days, hoping to meet those bound for Dunkirk; as there is a fog, hopes they have not yet passed by. Since the Hunter, who brought the news of their being off the North Cape, is as fast a sailer as any frigate in England, that fleet may not reach here for the next two days. Spoke a Hollander from Rochelle, who said that one of our State's frigates brought in a Biscay man-of-war of 18 guns to St. Martin 10 days since. Has taken a pilot in case he chases them near their own port, that he may follow them the nearer; will keep well westerly, so that if he should fall amongst them, he may have the longer dispute. Sent to the captain of Deal Castle to advise all the small vessels in the Downs to ride under command, and hopes, if any of the State's frigates come in, they may repair to him. Hopes what he is doing is approved, as nothing troubles him more than the want of positive instructions.	Vol. 139. 1

"	Capt. Ben. Gifford, Ipswich.	"	There is a small vessel at Ipswich with 12 pipes of Spanish wine, and although Capt. Country may assert he left it in his custody, the right of seizure has yet to be settled between them, inasmuch as it was his boat and men that boarded and brought her from where she anchored. 1656. April 21	Capt. Fras. Allen, Downs.	Adm. Com.	Convoyed several vessels for Flushing, with the Drake and Eaglet ketch; chased two Dunkirkers, who had taken a Swede by putting out English colours and offering to convoy her to the Downs, and made her commander and men prisoners; but meeting him, they were forced to restore them into their vessel, abandon her, and make their escape, one of them throwing his boat overboard to lighten her. Picked up a boat with 4 Swedes and two others, and left them with their ship in charge of the Commander-in-chief until further orders; will sail for Chatham to-morrow.	Vol. 139. 12
"	Capt. Jno. Best	"	Is sorry they are angry with his long stay in the Humber with the ships under his convoy, but the wind being at N.E. and stormy, could not get out; the ships will now not hear of his leaving them, and the colliers are angry because he is attending the Hull fleet; asks positive instructions, as he would not wait for father or brother if otherwise ordered.	13
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth.	"	The appointment of 4 of the State's vessels as convoy for Rotterdam and Amsterdam has given some content, but there are 500 sail waiting at Newcastle for a convoy, and 2 others bound for Holland, which are ordered to go to Harwich for convoy, but there is more danger going from Yarmouth to Harwich than from thence to Holland; 4 pirates have lately taken 3 boys in sight of Yarmouth, and no place in England more needs a man-of-war to lie in the Roads to do the State service than this. If some speedy course is not taken, all trade will be stopped, and the customs and exchequer come to nothing. Has been again importuned by the owners and masters of the mackerel fishery, who say they will be undone without a convoy, there being several men-of-war on their fishing grounds; they would not leave him until he promised to write again, and they have no one to complain to but himself.	14

1656. April 28	Capt. Wm. Whitehorn, the Gainsborough, Downs.	[Adm. Com.]	The Reserve might be employed as a convoy in case of necessity, but not to carry a person of quality, her pumps being always going; will keep a 5th rate frigate ready to go over with the Envoy for Sweden. Sends an account of the Downs squadron, and other papers. Hears from the Mayor of Hastings that a pink attending the fishermen has been taken, after fighting for two hours, when she made for the shore, but the pirates had shot away her masts, and it is feared killed most of her men. Supposes it is the Cat pink. Always feared that one vessel was not sufficient as a guard; if two are not appointed at every fishing station, the pirates will endeavour their destruction, together with the fishing trade. Has used his best endeavours, by sending out ships named, to range the coast, and will order convoys where he can; there would be much trade done this summer to France and other places, if the pirates were prevented from doing so much harm and disheartening the poor men.	Vol. 139. 99
"	"	Robt. Blackborne.	He has hinted like a Christian at the abuse of those men-stealers who, although they may do some good in carrying away those that the nation spues out, nevertheless include many poor innocent souls. Hopes Capt. Sanders may not suffer by his hints until the truth is known, as he does not desire any man's hurt. Sends a letter from Capt. Raber, whom he judges to be very deserving. Will deliver the tickets to Capt. Sacheverell. Has just heard of the taking of a pink off Hastings; unless two men-of-war are appointed at every station, the enemy will do much hurt, as he may see by the weekly accounts.	100

Willis, Diver hoy, Deptford.	Navy Com ^r	Being ready to sail, desires an order to keep his men from being pressed, as also one to Grassingham and Browne at Harwich, to supply him with a wherry ready manned, so that if he finds his company refractory or negligent, he may discharge and give them tickets, and hire others; also payment of 20s. disbursed.	101

Will distribute the orders sent amongst the captains, and desires another for Capt. Taylor of the Griffin. Mr. Sandford, Surveyor-General of Excise, investigated the matter charged against the captains last year, and found it arose more from ignorance than wilfulness. The Fagon having brought a Biscay man-of-war into the Sound, several boats went off to purchase the plunder of the sailors; has sent Capt. Elliott and some soldiers to arrest them and protect what belongs to her. Desires a supply of shot either from Portsmouth or Bristol.	104

Thanks for favour to Mr. Wylie, who will make good all recommenda- tions. The Paradox has gone for the Land's End, having left several of her company at Tenby. Capt. Vessey also received orders to go for Chester Water. Robinson, late master's mate of the Entrance , as master, he having been in most of the engagements against the Hollanders. Particulars of the wants of the Advice and President , some of which he can supply, but the remainder must be had from London. He has viewed a place within $\frac{1}{2}$ a mile of Sheerness, that with little charge might be made convenient for talloving ships, and giving them quick dispatch. 1656. June 21	Jno. Pitt, the Essex , Downs .	Col. Clerke.	Mr. Creed, who was designed for foreign service, has paid him the salary due, but says nothing as to any further employment; has continued, by Mr. Blackborne's advice, to act until further order, and has since attended the Commander-in-Chief in the Downs, transcribed, copied, and sent off letters, issued orders, and has the keeping of all correspondence, and formerly had charge of the prize money, for which he is accountable to Mr. Poortmans. The only salary he received from Mr. Creed was 40 l. a year. Could undertake the muster of the ships as they arrive, and it is his ambition to do his utmost for the public good; begs consideration.	Vol. 141. 152
"	Capt. Jere. Smyth, the Essex , Downs .	Adm. Com.	Has ordered the Sparrow and Raven to ply off Hastings, with the fishermen, until they finish, which will be in a few days, and Capt. Would not weaken the squadron on the coast of Flanders, hearing that there are several ships hastening out of Dunkirk, one having 40 guns and another 36, which was lately taken from the Hollanders. Particulars of ships used as convoys, &c., in the Downs. Capt. Wilson, deputy governor of Dover Castle, writes respecting 5 or 6 wounded Ostend prisoners sent to the Downs, now lodged in the town under the care of the surgeon; desires orders respecting them and others.	153

"	Capt. Jno. Taylor, Chatham .	"	An agreement was made under seal with the Duchess of Richmond for 1,000 loads of timber out of Cobham Park, and there is now 500 l. due to her on account of the second payment, which her agents are daily pressing for. Most of the timber has been sent to Woolwich for the 2nd rate ship building there. As many men are employed at Cobham to convert it, besides carters and watermen to bring it to the stores, which all calls for money, desires they will order the Navy Treasurer to pay the purveyor 400 l. , which he has gone to London to obtain.	155
"	Capt. Wm. White- borne, the Gains- borough , Hope .	"	Has taken in 20 tuns of beer, and a hoy has just arrived with 30 more; his gunner is at London about his stores; when he returns, will make all speed to sail.	156

"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	Adm. Com.	Hears that the Greyhound, and all her men but two, are lost. 1656. June 23	Capt. Jno. Topping, Tynemouth Castle.	Adm. Com.	Will deliver Capt. Wilkinson his letter when he arrives. Had a meeting of several masters of ships at Shields, when he pointed out the danger of their sailing without convoy, but—notwithstanding that, and the statement of John Lee, a master of London, that Edm. Greene, another master lately released from Dunkirk, informed him there were 30 men-of-war at Flanders ready to come forth,—22 small colliers have left, and are at anchor before the bar, and 80 more will be ready to sail to-morrow. Hears that the Greyhound, bound from Scotland to Newcastle to victual, was met by 4 Spaniards, and, after gallant and desperate fighting, forced to yield. Sends a survey, made by Fras. His officers are now more yieldable; has got 134 men, but has 7 sick through drinking the bad beer; as it causes much discontent, desires a survey of it.	172, 173

1656. June 25	Capt. Hen. Hatsell, Plymouth.	Adm. Com.	Capt. Parker of the Bryer has brought in an Ostend man-of-war of 13 guns, taken by him and the Griffin in the Soundings after a stout fight. She had 90 men, whereof 9 were killed and several wounded; 70 of them have been sent to the Castle and may escape, the guard there being very weak; they should be sent to the common gaol. The ship is much damaged by shot, as also the sails of the Bryer, and the Griffin had two men killed. Hears there are more of the enemy in the Soundings, and hopes the Constant Warwick, Wolf, or Sorlings may meet with them. "	Capt. Rich. Cowes, Paradox, Milford.	"	Went to Kinsale and took on board the Countess of Cork, who had a letter from Lord Hen. Cromwell's secretary, to take any ship of war that arrived to carry her to England; has landed her at Minehead and come in to victual. Reported chasing a Biscaneer; as Capt. Farley of the Basing has much scandalised him to several gentlemen of quality about his allowing her to escape, sends a full account of that business, under his hand and those of his officers, who lay the blame entirely upon Capt. Farley. With the account alluded to.	187, 188
"	Capt. Robt. Mackey, Yarmouth frigate.	"	Has been playing on his station and elsewhere, by order of Capt. Jer. Smyth, commander-in-chief in the Downs. Hears that 4 Dunkirkers have taken two of our Stratts' men and carried them to Dunkirk; if he had been allowed to go to Dungeness instead of being tied up on his station, he might have stopped their passage. It was proposed long since at Whitehall that a squadron should lie between the English coast and the Maas, both for suppressing the enemy and conveying merchantmen to their ports, which is now much needed, as there is a new frigate of 24 guns ready to come out of Ostend, together with the Holland man-of-war they took and some others, and there are 6 Spanish ships in the Channel with soldiers and plate for Dunkirk; 16 or 17 sail of the enemy have been seen between the Maas and the Texel.	189

"	Capt. Jno. Topping, Tynemouth Castle .	"	Sends application of Thos. Wright and 26 other masters of ships, desiring a convoy, as there are nearly 100 ships at Tynemouth who cannot sail, there having been 5 Dunkirk men-of-war in view several days. Hopes Capt. Best and his convoy arrived safe. An enemy of 12 or 14 guns, with English colours, came so close to the bar, in attempting to take a coal ship, that he had to get some guns ready, which she perceiving, took in her colours, and stood off to sea. Encloses a letter from Mr. Bower of Burlington, reporting two of the enemy being off Flamborough Head, and 3 more off Whitby ; has sent a copy to Scarborough, Hull, and Lynn, so that the masters there may stay for a convoy.	202, 203

"	Capt. Alex. Bernard.	[Adm. Com.]	Sends a letter from Capt. Best, stating that he has put his lieutenant in irons for having no order for doing what he did asserting that he had been Capt. Best's greatest friend in putting him into the ship, whereas he might be the greatest to put him out, and that he would have him out in spite of any commander. Also that he, Capt. Best, did not care for Capt. Bernard's threats, that his gunner was a saucy knave, and that his soldiers had better take heed when they came on board any frigate. With Bernard's explanations thereon.	207
"	Major Wm. Burton, Yarmouth .	"	Received theirs, stating that the Weymouth had been sent to Scotland, so appointed the Elizabeth and Capt. Colman, who have since returned, to convoy the Hull ships, which were richly laden, to the Maas. Having supplied Colman with provisions, desires order to Capt. This work is intended to form a comprehensive Palæographic Series for Ireland. It will furnish characteristic specimens of the documents which have come down from each of the classes which, in past ages, formed principal elements in the population of Ireland, or exercised an influence in her affairs. With these reproductions will be combined fac-similes of writings connected with eminent personages or transactions of importance in the annals of the country to the end of the reign of Queen Anne.

The specimens are reproduced as nearly as possible in accordance with the originals, in dimensions, colouring, and general appearance. Characteristic examples of styles of writing and caligraphic ornamentation are, so far as practicable, associated with subjects of historic and linguistic interest. Descriptions of the various manuscripts are given by the Editor in the Introduction. The contents of the specimens are fully elucidated and printed in the original languages, opposite to the Fac-similes—line for line—without contractions—thus facilitating reference and aiding effectively those interested in palæographic studies.

In the work are also printed in full, for the first time, many original and important historical documents.

Part I. commences with the earliest Irish MSS. extant.

Part II.: From the Twelfth Century to A.D. 1299.

Part III.: From A.D. 1300 to end of reign of Henry VIII.

Part IV. 1.: From reign of Edward VI. to that of James I.

In Part IV. 2.—now in the Press—the Work will be carried down to the eighteenth century.

CALENDARS OF STATE PAPERS, &c.

[IMPERIAL 8vo., cloth. Price 15s. each Volume or Part.]

As far back as the year 1800, a Committee of the House of Commons recommended that Indexes and Calendars should be made to the Public Records, and thirty-six years afterwards another Committee of the House of Commons reiterated that recommendation in more forcible words; but it was not until the incorporation of the State Paper Office with the Public Record Office that the Master of the Rolls found himself in a position to take the necessary steps for carrying out the wishes of the House of Commons.

On 7 December 1855, he stated to the Lords of the Treasury that although "the Records, State Papers, and Documents in his charge constitute the most complete and perfect series of their kind in the civilized world," and although "they are of the greatest value in a historical, and constitutional point of view, yet they are comparatively useless to the public, from the want of proper Calendars and Indexes."

Acting upon the recommendations of the Committees of the House of Commons above referred to, he suggested to the Lords of the Treasury that to effect the object he had in view it would be necessary for him to employ a few Persons fully qualified to perform the work which he contemplated.

Their Lordships assented to the necessity of having Calendars prepared and printed, and empowered the Master of the Rolls to take such steps as might be necessary for this purpose.

The following Works have been already published under the direction to the Master of the Rolls:—

The two preceding volumes exhibit the negotiations of the English ambassadors with the courts of the Emperor Charles V. of Germany, of Henry II. of France, and of Philip II. of Spain. The affairs of several of the minor continental states also find various incidental illustrations of much interest. The Papers descriptive of the circumstances which attended the loss of Calais merit a special notice; while the progress of the wars in the north of France, into which England was dragged by her union with Spain, is narrated at some length. These volumes treat only of the relations of England with foreign powers.

Supplement to Vol. I. and Vol. II.

Mr. Bergenroth was engaged in compiling a Calendar of the Papers relating to England preserved in the archives of Simancas in Spain, and the corresponding portion removed from Simancas to Paris. Mr. Bergenroth also visited Madrid, and examined the Papers there, bearing on the reign of Henry VIII. The first volume contains the Spanish Papers of the reign of Henry VII. ; the second volume, those of the first portion of the reign of Henry VIII. The Supplement contains new information relating to the private life of Queen Katharine of England ; and to the projected marriage of Henry VII. with Queen Juana, widow of King Philip of Castile, and mother of the Emperor Charles V.

Upon the death of Mr. Bergenroth, Don Pascual de Gayangos was appointed to continue the Calendar of the Spanish State Papers. He has pursued a similar plan to that of his predecessor, but has been able to add much valuable matter from Brussels and Vienna, with which Mr. Bergenroth was unacquainted.

THE CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND DURING THE MIDDLE AGES.

[ROYAL 8vo. half-bound. Price 10s. each Volume or Part.]

On 25 July 1822, the House of Commons presented an address to the Crown, stating that the editions of the works of our ancient historians were inconvenient and defective; that many of their writings still remained in manuscript, and, in some cases, in a single copy only. They added, "that an uniform and convenient edition of the whole, published under His Majesty's royal sanction, would be an undertaking honourable to His Majesty's reign, and conducive to the advancement of historical and constitutional knowledge; that the House therefore humbly besought His Majesty, that He would be graciously pleased to give such directions as His Majesty, in His wisdom, might think fit, for the publication of a complete edition of the ancient historians of this realm, and assured His Majesty that whatever expense might be necessary for this purpose would be made good."

The Master of the Rolls, being very desirous that effect should be given to the resolution of the House of Commons, submitted to Her Majesty's Treasury in 1857 a plan for the publication of the ancient chronicles and memorials of the United Kingdom, and it was adopted accordingly. In selecting these works, it was considered right, in the first instance, to give preference to those of which the manuscripts were unique, or the materials of which would help to fill up blanks in English history for which no satisfactory and authentic information hitherto existed in any accessible form. One great object the Master of the Rolls had in view was to form a corpus historicum within reasonable limits, and which should be as complete as possible. In a subject of so vast a range, it was important that the historical student should be able to select such volumes as conformed with his own peculiar tastes and studies, and not be put to the expense of purchasing the whole collection; an inconvenience inseparable from any other plan than that which has been in this instance adopted.

Of the Chronicles and Memorials, the following volumes have been published. They embrace the period from the earliest time of British history down to the end of the reign of Henry VII.

1. THE CHRONICLE OF ENGLAND, by JOHN CAPGRAVE. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

Capgrave was prior of Lynn, in Norfolk, and provincial of the order of the Friars Hermits of England shortly before the year 1464. His Chronicle extends from the creation of the world to the year 1417. As a record of the language spoken in Norfolk (being written in English), it is of considerable value.

2. CHRONICON MONASTERII DE ABINGDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1858.

This Chronicle traces the history of the great Benedictine monastery of Abingdon in Berkshire, from its foundation by King Ina of Wessex, to the reign of Richard I., shortly after which period the present narrative was drawn up by an inmate of the establishment. The author had access to the title-deeds of the house; and incorporates into his history various charters of the Saxon kings, of great importance as illustrating not only the history of the locality but that of the kingdom. The work is printed for the first time.

3. LIVES OF EDWARD THE CONFESSOR. I.—La Estoire de Seint Aedward le Rei. II.—Vita Beati Edvardi Regis et Confessoris. III.—Vita Æduuardi Regis qui apud Westmonasterium requiescit. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1858.

The first is a poem in Norman French, containing 4,686 lines, addressed to Alianor, Queen of Henry III., probably written in 1245, on the restoration of the church of Westminster. Nothing is known of the author. The second is an anonymous poem, containing 536 lines, written between 1440 and 1450, by command of Henry VI., to whom it is dedicated. It does not throw any new light on the reign of Edward the Confessor, but is valuable as a specimen of the Latin poetry of the time. The third, also by an anonymous author, was apparently written for Queen Edith, between 1066 and 1074, during the pressure of the suffering brought on the Saxons by the Norman conquest. It notices many facts not found in other writers, and some which differ considerably from the usual accounts.

4. MONUMENTA FRANCISCANA. Vol. I.—Thomas de Eccleston de Adventu Fratrum Minorum in Angliam. Adæ de Marisco Epistolæ. Registrum Fratrum Minorum Londoniæ. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vol. II.—De Adventu Minorum; re-edited, with additions. Chronicle of the Grey Friars. The ancient English version of the Rule of St. Francis. Abbreviatio Statutorum, 1451, &c. Edited by RICHARD HOWLETT, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1858, 1882.

The first volume contains original materials for the history of the settlement of the order of Saint Francis in England, the letters of Adam de Marisco, and other papers connected with the foundation and diffusion of this great body. It was the aim of the editor to collect whatever historical information could be found in this country, towards illustrating a period of the national history for which only scanty materials exist. None of these have been before printed. The second volume contains materials found, since the first volume was published, among the MSS. of Sir Charles Isham, and in various libraries.

5. FASCICULI ZIZANIORUM MAGISTRI JOHANNIS WYCLIF CUM TRITICO. Ascribed to THOMAS NETTER, of WALDEN, Provincial of the Carmelite Order in England, and Confessor to King Henry the Fifth. Edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, M.A., Tutor and late Fellow of Wadham College, Oxford. 1858.

This work derives its principal value from being the only contemporaneous account of the rise of the Lollards. When written the disputes of the schoolmen had been extended to the field of theology, and they appear both in the writings of Wycliff and in those of his adversaries. Wycliff's little bundles of tares are not less metaphysical than theological, and the conflict between Nominalists and Realists rages side by side with the conflict between the different interpreters of Scripture. The work gives a good idea of the controversies at the end of the 14th and the beginning of the 15th centuries.

6. THE BUIK OF THE CRONICLIS OF SCOTLAND; or, A Metrical Version of the History of Hector Boece; by WILLIAM STEWART. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. B. TURNBULL, Esq., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1858.

This is a metrical translation of a Latin Prose Chronicle, and was written in the first half of the 16th century. The narrative begins with the earliest legends, and ends with the death of James I. of Scotland, and the "evil ending of the traitors that slew him." Strict accuracy of statement is not to be looked for in such a work as this; but the stories of the colonization of Spain, Ireland, and Scotland are interesting if not true; and the chronicle is valuable as a reflection of the manners, sentiments, and character of the age in which it was composed. The peculiarities of the Scottish dialect are well illustrated in this metrical version, and the student of language will find ample materials for comparison with the English dialects of the same period, and with modern lowland Scotch.

7. JOHANNIS CAPGRAVE LIBER DE ILLUSTRIBUS HENRICIS. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1858.

This work is dedicated to Henry VI. of England, who appears to have been, in the author's estimation, the greatest of all the Henries. It is divided into three parts, each having a separate dedication. The first part relates only to the history of the Empire, from the election of Henry I., the Fowler, to the end of the reign of the Emperor Henry VI. The second part is devoted to English history, from the accession of Henry I. in 1100, to 1446, which was the twenty-fourth year of the reign of Henry VI. The third part contains the lives of illustrious men who have borne the name of Henry in various parts of the world. Capgrave was born in 1393, in the reign of Richard II., and lived during the Wars of the Roses, for which period his work is of some value.

8. HISTORIA MONASTERII S. AUGUSTINI CANTUARIENSIS, by THOMAS OF ELMHAM, formerly Monk and Treasurer of that Foundation. Edited by CHARLES HARDWICK, M.A., Fellow of St. Catharine's Hall, and Christian Advocate in the University of Cambridge. 1858.

This history extends from the arrival of St. Augustine in Kent until 1191. Prefixed is a chronology as far as 1418, which shows in outline what was to have been the character of the work when completed. The only copy known is in the possession of Trinity Hall, Cambridge. The author was connected with Norfolk, and most probably with Elmham, whence he derived his name.

9. EULOGIUM (HISTORIARUM SIVE TEMPORIS) : Chronicon ab Orbe condito usque ad Annum Domini 1366 ; a Monacho quodam Malmesbiriensi exaratum. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by F. S. HAYDON, Esq., B.A. 1858-1863.

This is a Latin Chronicle extending from the Creation to the latter part of the reign of Edward III., and written by a monk of the Abbey of Malmesbury, in Wiltshire, about the year 1367. A continuation, carrying the history of England down to the year 1413, was added in the former half of the fifteenth century by an author whose name is not known. The original Chronicle is divided into five books, and contains a history of the world generally, but more especially of England to the year 1366. The continuation extends the history down to the coronation of Henry V. The Eulogium itself is chiefly valuable as containing a history, by a contemporary, of the period between 1356 and 1366. The notices of events appear to have been written very soon after their occurrence. Among other interesting matter, the Chronicle contains a diary of the Poitiers campaign, evidently furnished by some person who accompanied the army of the Black Prince. The continuation of the Chronicle is also the work of a contemporary, and gives a very interesting account of the reigns of Richard II. and Henry IV. It is believed to be the earliest authority for the statement that the latter monarch died in the Jerusalem Chamber at Westminster.

10. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE SEVENTH : Bernardi Andreae Tholosatis Vita Regis Henrici Septimi ; necnon alia quædam ad eundem Regem spectantia. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1858.

The contents of this volume are—(1) a life of Henry VII., by his poet laureate and historiographer, Bernard André, of Toulouse, with some compositions in verse, of which he is supposed to have been the author; (2) the journals of Roger Machado during certain embassies on which he was sent by Henry VII. to Spain and Brittany, the first of which had reference to the marriage of the King's son, Arthur, with Catharine of Arragon; (3) two curious reports by envoys sent to Spain in the year 1505 touching the succession to the Crown of Castile, and a project of marriage between Henry VII. and the Queen of Naples; and (4) an account of Philip of Castile's reception in England in 1506. Other documents of interest in connexion with the period are given in an appendix.

11. MEMORIALS OF HENRY THE FIFTH. I.—Vita Henrici Quinti, Roberto Redmanno auctore. II.—Versus Rhythmici in laudem Regis Henrici Quinti. III.—Elmhami Liber Metricus de Henrico V. Edited by CHARLES A. COLE, Esq. 1858.

This volume contains three treatises which more or less illustrate the history of the reign of Henry V., viz.: A Life by Robert Redman; a Metrical Chronicle by Thomas Elmham, prior of Lenton, a contemporary author; Versus Rhythmici, written apparently by a monk of Westminster Abbey, who was also a contemporary of Henry V. These works are printed for the first time.

12. MUNIMENTA GILDHALLÆ LONDONIENSIS; Liber Albus, Liber Custumarum, et Liber Horn, in archivis Gildhallæ asservati. Vol. I., Liber Albus. Vol. II. (in Two Parts), Liber Custumarum. Vol. III. Translation of the Anglo-Norman Passages in Liber Albus, Glossaries, Appendices, and Index. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Barrister-at-Law. 1859-1862.

The manuscript of the Liber Albus, compiled by John Carpenter, Common Clerk of the City of London in the year 1419, a large folio volume, is preserved in the Record Room of the City of London. It gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of that City in the twelfth, thirteenth, fourteenth, and early part of the fifteenth centuries.

The Liber Custumarum was compiled probably by various hands in the early part of the fourteenth century during the reign of Edward II. The manuscript, a folio volume, is also preserved in the Record Room of the City of London, though some portion in its original state, borrowed from the City in the reign of Queen Elizabeth and never returned, forms part of the Cottonian MS. Claudius D. II. in the British Museum. It also gives an account of the laws, regulations, and institutions of the City of London in the twelfth, thirteenth, and early part of the fourteenth centuries.

13. CHRONICA JOHANNIS DE OXENEDES. Edited by Sir HENRY ELLIS, K.H. 1859.

Although this Chronicle tells of the arrival of Hengist and Horsa in England in the year 449, yet it substantially begins with the reign of King Alfred, and comes down to the year 1292, where it ends abruptly. The history is particularly valuable for notices of events in the eastern portions of the kingdom, which are not to be elsewhere obtained, and some curious facts are mentioned relative to the floods in that part of England, which are confirmed in the Friesland Chronicle of Anthony Heinrich, pastor of the Island of Mohr.

14. A COLLECTION OF POLITICAL POEMS AND SONGS RELATING TO ENGLISH HISTORY, FROM THE ACCESSION OF EDWARD III. TO THE REIGN OF HENRY VIII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1859-1861.

These Poems are perhaps the most interesting of all the historical writings of the period, though they cannot be relied on for accuracy of statement. They are various in character; some are upon religious subjects, some may be called satires, and some give no more than a court scandal; but as a whole they present a very fair picture of society, and of the relations of the different classes to one another. The period comprised is in itself interesting, and brings us, through the decline of the feudal system, to the beginning of our modern history. The songs in old English are of considerable value to the philologist.

15. The "OPUS TERTIUM," "OPUS MINUS," &c., of ROGER BACON. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. 1859.

This is the celebrated treatise—never before printed—so frequently referred to by the great philosopher in his works. It contains the fullest details we possess of the life and labours of Roger Bacon: also a fragment by the same author, supposed to be unique, the "Compendium Studii Theologiæ."

16. BARTHOLOMÆI DE COTTON, MONACHI NORWICENSIS, HISTORIA ANGLICANA; 449-1298: necnon ejusdem Liber de Archiepiscopis et Episcopis Angliæ. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1859.

The author, a monk of Norwich, has here given us a Chronicle of England from the arrival of the Saxons in 449 to the year 1298, in or about which year it appears that he died. The latter portion of this history (the whole of the reign of Edward I. more especially) is of great value, as the writer was contemporary with the events which he records. An Appendix contains several illustrative documents connected with the previous narrative.

17. BRUT Y TYWYSGOGION; or, The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

This work, also known as "The Chronicle of the Princes of Wales," has been attributed to Caradoc of Llancarvan, who flourished about the middle of the twelfth century. It is written in the ancient Welsh language, begins with the abdication and death of Caedwala at Rome, in the year 681, and continues the history down to the subjugation of Wales by Edward I., about the year 1282.

18. A COLLECTION OF ROYAL AND HISTORICAL LETTERS DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY IV. 1399-1404. Edited by the Rev. F. C. HINGESTON, M.A., of Exeter College, Oxford. 1860.

This volume, like all the others in the series containing a miscellaneous selection of letters, is valuable on account of the light it throws upon biographical history, and the familiar view it presents of characters, manners, and events. The period requires much elucidation; to which it will materially contribute.

19. THE REPRESSOR OF OVER MUCH BLAMING OF THE CLERGY. By REGINALD PECOCK, sometime Bishop of Chichester. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1860.

The "Repressor" may be considered the earliest piece of good theological disquisition of which our English prose literature can boast. The author was born about the end of the fourteenth century, consecrated Bishop of St. Asaph in the year 1444, and translated to the see of Chichester in 1450. While Bishop of St. Asaph, he zealously defended his brother prelates from the attacks of those who censured the bishops for their neglect of duty. He maintained that it was no part of a bishop's functions to appear in the pulpit, and that his time might be more profitably spent, and his dignity better maintained, in the performance of works of a higher character. Among those who thought differently were the Lollards, and against their general doctrines the "Repressor" is directed. Pecock took up a position midway between that of the Roman Church and that of the modern Anglican Church; but his work is interesting chiefly because it gives a full account of the views of the Lollards and of the arguments by which they were supported, and because it assists us to ascertain the state of feeling which ultimately led to the Reformation. Apart from religious matters, the light thrown upon contemporaneous history is very small, but the "Repressor" has great value for the philologist, as it tells us what were the characteristics of the language in use among the cultivated Englishmen of the fifteenth century. Pecock, though an opponent of the Lollards, showed a certain spirit of toleration, for which he received, towards the end of his life, the usual mediæval reward—persecution.

20. ANNALES CAMBRIÆ. Edited by the Rev. JOHN WILLIAMS AB ITHEL, M.A. 1860.

These annals, which are in Latin, commence in the year 447, and come down to the year 1288. The earlier portion appears to be taken from an Irish Chronicle which was also used by Tigernach, and by the compiler of the Annals of Ulster. During its first century it contains scarcely anything relating to Britain, the earliest direct concurrence with English history is relative to the mission of Augustine. Its notices throughout, though brief, are valuable. The annals were probably written at St. Davids, by Blegewryd, Archdeacon of Llandaff, the most learned man in his day in all Cymru.

21. THE WORKS OF GIRALDUS CAMBRENSIS. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Professor of English Literature, King's College, London. Vols. V., VI., and VII. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1861-1877.

These volumes contain the historical works of Gerald du Barry, who lived in the reigns of Henry II., Richard I., and John, and attempted to re-establish the independence of Wales by restoring the see of St. Davids to its ancient primacy. His works are of a very miscellaneous nature, both in prose and verse, and are remarkable chiefly for the racy and original anecdotes which they contain relating to contemporaries. He is the only Welsh writer of any importance who has contributed so much to the mediæval literature of this country, or assumed, in consequence of his nationality, so free and independent a tone. His frequent travels in Italy, in France, in Ireland, and in Wales, gave him opportunities for observation which did not generally fall to the lot of mediæval writers in the twelfth and thirteenth centuries, and of these observations Giraldus has made due use. Only extracts from these treatises have been printed before, and almost all of them are taken from unique manuscripts.

The Topographia Hibernica (in Vol. V.) is the result of Giraldus' two visits to Ireland. The first in the year 1183, the second in 1185-6, when he accompanied Prince John into that country. Curious as this treatise is, Mr. Dimock is of opinion that it ought not to be accepted as sober truthful history, for Giraldus himself states that truth was not his main object, and that he compiled the work for the purpose of sounding the praises of Henry the Second. Elsewhere, however, he declares that he had stated nothing in the Topographia of the truth of which he was not well assured, either by his own eyesight or by the testimony, with all diligence elicited, of the most trustworthy and authentic men in the country; that though he did not put just the same full faith in their reports as in what he had himself seen, yet, as they only related what they had themselves seen, he could not but believe such credible witnesses. A very interesting portion of this treatise is devoted to the animals of Ireland. It shows that he was a very accurate and acute observer, and his descriptions are given in a way that a scientific naturalist of the present day could hardly improve upon. The Expugnatio Hibernica was written about the year 1188 and may be regarded rather as a great epic than a sober relation of acts occurring in his own days. No one can peruse it without coming to the conclusion that it is rather a poetical fiction than a prosaic truthful history.

Vol. VI. contains the Itinerarium Cambriæ et Descriptio Cambriæ: and Vol. VII., the lives of S. Remigius and S. Hugh.

22. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE WARS OF THE ENGLISH IN FRANCE DURING THE REIGN OF HENRY THE SIXTH, KING OF ENGLAND. Vol. I., and Vol. II. (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham, and Vicar of Leighton Buzzard. 1861-1864.

The letters and papers contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from originals or contemporary copies extant in the Bibliothèque Impériale, and the Dépôt des Archives, in Paris. They illustrate the line of policy adopted by John Duke of Bedford and his successors during their government of Normandy, and such other provinces of France as had been acquired by Henry V. We may here trace, step by step, the gradual declension of the English power, until we are prepared to read of its final overthrow.

23. THE ANGLO-SAXON CHRONICLE, ACCORDING TO THE SEVERAL ORIGINAL AUTHORITIES. Vol. I., Original Texts. Vol. II., Translation. Edited and translated by BENJAMIN THORPE, Esq., Member of the Royal Academy of Sciences at Munich, and of the Society of Netherlandish Literature at Leyden. 1861.

This Chronicle, extending from the earliest history of Britain to the year 1154, is justly the boast of England; for no other nation can produce any history, written in its own vernacular, at all approaching it, either in antiquity, truthfulness, or extent, the historical books of the Bible alone excepted. There are at present six independent manuscripts of the Saxon Chronicle, ending in different years, and written in different parts of the country. In this edition, the text of each manuscript is printed in columns on the same page, so that the student may see at a glance the various changes which occur in orthography, whether arising from locality or age.

24. LETTERS AND PAPERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGNS OF RICHARD III. AND HENRY VII. Vols. I. and II. Edited by JAMES GAIRDNER, Esq. 1861-1863.

The Papers are derived from MSS. in the Public Record Office, the British Museum, and other repositories. The period to which they refer is unusually destitute of chronicles and other sources of historical information, so that the light obtained from these documents is of special importance. The principal contents of the volumes are some diplomatic Papers of Richard III.; correspondence between Henry VII. and Ferdinand and Isabella of Spain; documents relating to Edmund de la Pole, Earl of Suffolk; and a portion of the correspondence of James IV. of Scotland.

25. LETTERS OF BISHOP GROSSETESTE, illustrative of the Social Condition of his Time. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1861.

The Letters of Robert Grosseteste (131 in number) are here collected from various sources, and a large portion of them is printed for the first time. They range in date from about 1210 to 1253, and relate to various matters connected not only with the political history of England during the reign of Henry III., but with its ecclesiastical condition. They refer especially to the diocese of Lincoln, of which Grosseteste was bishop.

26. DESCRIPTIVE CATALOGUE OF MANUSCRIPTS RELATING TO THE HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN AND IRELAND. Vol. I. (in Two Parts); Anterior to the Norman Invasion. Vol. II.; 1066-1200. Vol. III.; 1200-1327. By Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1862-1871.

The object of this work is to publish notices of all known sources of British history, both printed and unprinted, in one continued sequence. The materials, when historical (as distinguished from biographical), are arranged under the year in which the latest event is recorded in the chronicle or history, and not under the period in which its author, real or supposed, flourished. Biographies are enumerated under the year in which the person commemorated died, and not under the year in which the life was written. This arrangement has two advantages; the materials for any given period may be seen at a glance; and if the reader knows the time when an author wrote, and the number of years that had elapsed between the date of the events and the time the writer flourished, he will generally be enabled to form a fair estimate of the comparative value of the narrative itself. A brief analysis of each work has been added when deserving it, in which the original portions are distinguished from those which are mere compilations. When possible, the sources are indicated from which such compilations have been derived. A biographical sketch of the author of each piece has been added, and a brief notice has also been given of such British authors as have written on historical subjects.

27. ROYAL AND OTHER HISTORICAL LETTERS ILLUSTRATIVE OF THE REIGN OF HENRY III. Vol. I., 1216-1235. Vol. II., 1236-1272. Selected and edited by the Rev. W. W. SHIRLEY, D.D., Regius Professor in Ecclesiastical History, and Canon of Christ Church, Oxford. 1862-1866.

The letters contained in these volumes are derived chiefly from the ancient correspondence formerly in the Tower of London, and now in the Public Record Office. They illustrate the political history of England during the growth of its liberties, and throw considerable light upon the personal history of Simon de Montfort. The affairs of France form the subject of many of them, especially in regard to the province of Gascony. The entire collection consists of nearly 700 documents, the greater portion of which is printed for the first time.

28. CHRONICA MONASTERII S. ALBANI.—1. THOMÆ WALSINGHAM HISTORIA ANGLICANA; Vol. I., 1272-1381; Vol. II., 1381-1422. 2. WILLELMI RISHANGER CHRONICA ET ANNALES, 1259-1307. 3. YPODIGMA NEUSTRIÆ, A THOMA WALSINGHAM, QUONDAM MONACHO MONASTERII S. ALBANI, CONSCRIPTUM. Edited by HENRY THOMAS RILEY, Esq., M.A., Cambridge and Oxford; and of the Inner Temple, Barrister-at-Law. 1863-1876.

In the first two volumes is a History of England, from the death of Henry III. to the death of Henry V., by Thomas Walsingham, Precentor of St. Albans, from MS. VII. in the Arundel Collection in the College of Arnis, London, a manuscript of the fifteenth century, collated with MS. 13 E. IX. in the King's Library in the British Museum, and MS. VII. in the Parker Collection of Manuscripts at Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

In the third volume is a Chronicle of English History, attributed to William Rishanger, who lived in the reign of Edward I., from the Cotton. MS. Faustina B. IX. in the British Museum, collated with MS. 14 C. VII. (fols. 219-231) in the King's Library, British Museum, and the Cotton MS. Claudius E. III., fols. 306-331: an account of transactions attending the award of the kingdom of Scotland to John Balliol, 1291-1292, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., also attributed to William Rishanger, but on no sufficient ground: a short Chronicle of English History, 1292 to 1300, by an unknown hand, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a short Chronicle Willelmi Rishanger Gesta Edwardi Primi, Regis Angliæ, from MS. 14 C. I. in the Royal Library, and MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI., with Annales Regum Angliæ, probably by the same hand: and fragments of three Chronicles of English History, 1285 to 1307.

In the fourth volume is a Chronicle of English History, 1259 to 1296, from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: Annals of Edward II., 1307 to 1323, by John de Trokelowe, a monk of St. Albans, and a continuation of Trokelowe's Annals, 1323, 1324, by Henry de Blaneфорde, both from MS. Cotton. Claudius D. VI.: a full Chronicle of English History, 1392 to 1406, from MS. VII. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge; and an account of the Benefactors of St. Albans, written in the early part of the fifteenth century, from MS. VI. in the same Library.

The fifth, sixth, and seventh volumes contain a history of the Abbots of St. Albans, 793 to 1411, mainly compiled by Thomas Walsingham, from MS. Cotton. Claudius E. IV., in the British Museum: with a Continuation, from the closing pages of Parker MS. VII., in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge.

The eighth and ninth volumes, in continuation of the Annals, contain a Chronicle, probably by John Amundesham, a monk of St. Albans.

The tenth and eleventh volumes relate especially to the acts and proceedings of Abbots Whethamstede, Albon, and Wallingford, and may be considered as a memorial of the chief historical and domestic events during those periods.

The twelfth volume contains a compendious History of England to the reign of Henry V., and of Normandy in early times, also by Thomas Walsingham, and dedicated to Henry V. The compiler has often substituted other authorities in place of those consulted in the preparation of his larger work.

29. CHRONICON ABBATIE EVESHAMENSIS, AUCTORIBUS DOMINICO PRIORE EVESHAMIE ET THOMA DE MARLEBERGE ABBATE, A FUNDATIONE AD ANNUM 1213, UNA CUM CONTINUATIONE AD ANNUM 1418. Edited by the Rev. W. D. MACRAY, M.A., Bodleian Library, Oxford. 1863.

The Chronicle of Evesham illustrates the history of that important monastery from its foundation by Egwin, about 690, to the year 1418. Its chief feature is an autobiography, which makes us acquainted with the inner daily life of a great abbey, such as but rarely has been recorded. Interspersed are many notices of general, personal, and local history which will be read with much interest. This work exists in a single MS., and is for the first time printed.

30. RICARDI DE CIRENCESTRIA SPECULUM HISTORIALE DE GESTIS REGUM ANGLIÆ. Vol. I., 447-871. Vol. II., 872-1066. Edited by JOHN E. B. MAYOR, M.A., Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1863-1869.

The compiler, Richard of Cirencester, was a monk of Westminster, 1355-1400. In 1391 he obtained a licence to make a pilgrimage to Rome. His history, in four books, extends from 447 to 1066. He announces his intention of continuing it, but there is no evidence that he completed any more. This chronicle gives many charters in favour of Westminster Abbey, and a very full account of the lives and miracles of the saints, especially of Edward the Confessor, whose reign occupies the fourth book. A treatise on the Coronation, by William of Sudbury, a monk of Westminster, fills book iii. c. 3. It was on this author that C. J. Bertram fathered his forgery, De Situ Britannia, in 1747.

31. YEAR BOOKS OF THE REIGN OF EDWARD THE FIRST. Years 20-21, 21-22, 30-31, 32-33, and 33-35. Edited and translated by ALFRED

JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at Law. YEAR BOOKS, 11—16 Edward III. Edited and translated by ALFRED JOHN HORWOOD, Esq., of the Middle Temple, Barrister-at-Law; continued by LUKE OWEN PIKE, Esq., M.A., of Lincoln's Inn, Barrister-at-Law. 1863—1883.

The volumes known as the "Year Books" contain reports in Norman-French of cases argued and decided in the Courts of Common Law. They may be considered to a great extent as the "lex non scripta" of England, and have been held in the highest veneration by the ancient sages of the law, and were received by them as the repositories of the first recorded judgments and dicta of the great legal luminaries of past ages. They are also worthy of the attention of the general reader on account of the historical information and the notices of public and private persons which they contain, as well as the light which they throw on ancient manners and customs.

32. NARRATIVES OF THE EXPULSION OF THE ENGLISH FROM NORMANDY, 1449—1450.—Robertus Blondelli de Reductione Normanniæ: Le Recouvrement de Normendie, par Berry, Hérault du Roy: Conférences between the Ambassadors of France and England. Edited, from MSS. in the Imperial Library at Paris, by the Rev. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A., of University College, Durham. 1863.

This volume contains the narrative of an eye-witness who details with considerable power and minuteness the circumstances which attended the final expulsion of the English from Normandy in the year 1450. The history commences with the infringement of the truce by the capture of Fougères, and ends with the battle of Formigny and the embarkation of the Duke of Somerset. The whole period embraced is less than two years.

33. HISTORIA ET CARTULARIUM MONASTERII S. PETRI GLOUCESTRIÆ. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by W. H. HART, Esq., F.S.A., Membre correspondant de la Société des Antiquaires de Normandie. 1863—1867.

This work consists of two parts, the History and the Cartulary of the Monastery of St. Peter, Gloucester. The history furnishes an account of the monastery from its foundation, in the year 681, to the early part of the reign of Richard II., together with a calendar of donations and benefactions. It treats principally of the affairs of the monastery, but occasionally matters of general history are introduced. Its authorship has generally been assigned to Walter Froucester, the twentieth abbot, but without any foundation.

34. ALEXANDRI NECKAM DE NATURIS RERUM LIBRI DUO; with NECKAM'S POEM, DE LAUDIBUS DIVINÆ SAPIENTIÆ. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1863.

Neckam was a man who devoted himself to science, such as it was in the twelfth century. In the "De Naturis Rerum" are to be found what may be called the rudiments of many sciences mixed up with much error and ignorance. Neckam was not thought infallible, even by his contemporaries, for Roger Bacon remarks of him, "this Alexander in many things wrote what was true and useful; but he neither can nor ought by just title to be reckoned among authorities." Neckam, however, had sufficient independence of thought to differ from some of the schoolmen who in his time considered themselves the only judges of literature. He had his own views in morals, and in giving us a glimpse of them, as well as of his other opinions, he throws much light upon the manners, customs, and general tone of thought prevalent in the twelfth century. The poem entitled "De Laudibus Divinæ Sapientiæ" appears to be a metrical paraphrase or abridgment of the "De Naturis Rerum." It is written in the elegiac metre, and though there are many lines which violate classical rules, it is, as a whole, above the ordinary standard of mediæval Latin.

35. LEECHDOMS, WORTCUNNING, AND STARCRAFT OF EARLY ENGLAND; being a Collection of Documents illustrating the History of Science in this Country before the Norman Conquest. Vols. I., II., and III. Collected and edited by the Rev. T. OSWALD COCKAYNE, M.A., of St. John's College, Cambridge. 1864—1866.

This work illustrates not only the history of science, but the history of superstition. In addition to the information bearing directly upon the medical skill and medical faith of the times, there are many passages which incidentally throw light upon the general mode of life and ordinary diet. The volumes are interesting not only in their scientific, but also in their social aspect. The manuscripts from which they have been printed are valuable to the Anglo-Saxon scholar for the illustrations they afford of Anglo-Saxon orthography.

36. ANNALES MONASTICI. Vol. I.:—Annales de Margan, 1066–1232 ; Annales de Theokesberia, 1066–1263 ; Annales de Burton, 1004–1263. Vol. II.:—Annales Monasterii de Wintonia, 519–1277 ; Annales Monasterii de Waverleia, 1–1291. Vol. III.:—Annales Prioratus de Dunstaplia, 1–1297. Annales Monasterii de Bermundeseia, 1042–1432. Vol. IV.:—Annales Monasterii de Oseneia, 1016–1347 ; Chronicon vulgo dictum Chronicon Thomæ Wykes, 1066–1289 ; Annales Prioratus de Wigornia, 1–1377. Vol. V.:—Index and Glossary. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, M.A., Fellow and Assistant Tutor of Trinity College, and Registry of the University, Cambridge. 1864–1869.

The present collection of Monastic Annals embraces all the more important chronicles compiled in religious houses in England during the thirteenth century. These distinct works are ten in number. The extreme period which they embrace ranges from the year 1 to 1432, although they refer more especially to the reigns of John, Henry III., and Edward I. Some of these narratives have already appeared in print, but others are printed for the first time.

37. MAGNA VITA S. HUGONIS EPISCOPI LINCOLNIENSIS. From Manuscripts in the Bodleian Library, Oxford, and the Imperial Library, Paris. Edited by the Rev. JAMES F. DIMOCK, M.A., Rector of Barnburgh, Yorkshire. 1864.

This work contains a number of very curious and interesting incidents, and being the work of a contemporary, is very valuable, not only as a truthful biography of a celebrated ecclesiastic, but as the work of a man, who, from personal knowledge, gives notices of passing events, as well as of individuals who were then taking active part in public affairs. The author, in all probability, was Adam Abbot of Evesham. He was domestic chaplain and private confessor of Bishop Hugh, and in these capacities was admitted to the closest intimacy. Bishop Hugh was Prior of Witham for 11 years before he became Bishop of Lincoln. His consecration took place on the 21st September 1186 ; he died on the 16th of November 1200 ; and was canonized in 1220.

38. CHRONICLES AND MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD THE FIRST. Vol. I.:—ITINERARIUM PEREGRINORUM ET GESTA REGIS RICARDI. Vol. II.:—EPISTOLÆ CANTUARIENSES ; the Letters of the Prior and Convent of Christ Church, Canterbury ; 1187 to 1199. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Vicar of Navestock, Essex, and Lambeth Librarian. 1864–1865.

The authorship of the Chronicle in Vol. I., hitherto ascribed to Geoffrey Vinesauf, is now more correctly ascribed to Richard, Canon of the Holy Trinity of London. The narrative extends from 1187 to 1199 ; but its chief interest consists in the minute and authentic narrative which it furnishes of the exploits of Richard I., from his departure from England in December 1189 to his death in 1199. The author states in his prologue that he was an eye-witness of much that he records ; and various incidental circumstances which occur in the course of the narrative confirm this assertion.

The letters in Vol. II., written between 1187 and 1199, are of value as furnishing authentic materials for the history of the ecclesiastical condition of England during the reign of Richard I. They had their origin in a dispute which arose from the attempts of Baldwin and Hubert, archbishops of Canterbury, to found a college of secular canons, a project which gave great umbrage to the monks of Canterbury, who saw in it a design to supplant them in their function of metropolitan chapter. These letters are printed, for the first time, from a MS. belonging to the archiepiscopal library at Lambeth.

39. RECUEIL DES CRONIKES ET ANCHIENNES ISTORIES DE LA GRANT BRETAGNE A PRESENT NOMME ENGLETERRE, par JEHAN DE WAURIN. Vol. I. Albina to 688. Vol. II., 1399–1422. Vol. III., 1422–1431. Edited by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864–1879.

40. A COLLECTION OF THE CHRONICLES AND ANCIENT HISTORY OF GREAT BRITAIN, NOW CALLED ENGLAND, by JOHN DE WAVRIN. Albion to 688. (Translation of the preceding Vol. I.) Edited and translated by WILLIAM HARDY, Esq., F.S.A. 1864.

This curious chronicle extends from the fabulous period of history down to the return of Edward IV. to England in the year 1471 after the second deposition of Henry VI. The manuscript from which the text of the work is taken is preserved in the Imperial Library at Paris, and is believed to be the only complete and nearly contemporary copy in existence. The work, as originally bound, was comprised in six volumes, since rebound in morocco in 12 volumes, folio maximo, vellum, and is illustrated with exquisite miniatures, vignettes, and initial letters. It was written towards the end of the fifteenth century, having been expressly executed for Louis de Bruges, Seigneur de la Gruthuyse and Earl of Winchester, from whose cabinet it passed into the library of Louis XII. at Blois.

41. POLYCHRONICON RANULPHI HIGDEN, with Trevisa's Translation. Vols. I. and II. Edited by CHURCHILL BABINGTON, B.D., Senior Fellow of St. John's College, Cambridge. Vols. III., IV., V., VI., VII., and VIII. Edited by the Rev. JOSEPH RAWSON LUMBY, D.D., Norrisian Professor of Divinity, Vicar of St. Edward's, Fellow of St. Catharine's College, and late Fellow of Magdalene College, Cambridge. 1865-1883.

This is one of the many mediæval chronicles which assume the character of a history of the world. It begins with the creation, and is brought down to the author's own time, the reign of Edward III. Prefixed to the historical portion, is a chapter devoted to geography, in which is given a description of every known land. To say that the Polychronicon was written in the fourteenth century is to say that it is not free from inaccuracies. It has, however, a value apart from its intrinsic merits. It enables us to form a very fair estimate of the knowledge of history and geography which well-informed readers of the fourteenth and fifteenth centuries possessed, for it was then the standard work on general history.

The two English translations, which are printed with the original Latin, afford interesting illustrations of the gradual change of our language, for one was made in the fourteenth century, the other in the fifteenth. The differences between Trevisa's version and that of the unknown writer are often considerable.

42. LE LIVRE DE REIS DE BRITTANIE E LE LIVRE DE REIS DE ENGLETERE. Edited by JOHN GLOVER, M.A., Vicar of Brading, Isle of Wight, formerly Librarian of Trinity College, Cambridge. 1865.

These two treatises, though they cannot rank as independent narratives, are nevertheless valuable as careful abstracts of previous historians, especially "Le Livre de Reis de Engleterre." Some various readings are given which are interesting to the philologist as instances of semi-Saxonized French.

It is supposed that Peter of Ickham must have been the author, but no certain conclusion on that point has been arrived at.

43. CHRONICA MONASTERII DE MELSA, AB ANNO 1150 USQUE AD ANNUM 1406. Vols. I., II., and III. Edited by EDWARD AUGUSTUS BOND, Esq., Assistant Keeper of the Manuscripts, and Egerton Librarian, British Museum. 1866-1868.

The Abbey of Meaux was a Cistercian house, and the work of its abbot is both curious and valuable. It is a faithful and often minute record of the establishment of a religious community, of its progress in forming an ample revenue, of its struggles to maintain its acquisitions, and of its relations to the governing institutions of the country. In addition to the private affairs of the monastery, some light is thrown upon the public events of the time, which are however kept distinct, and appear at the end of the history of each abbot's administration. The text has been printed from what is said to be the autograph of the original compiler, Thomas de Burton, the nineteenth abbot.

44. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM, SIVE, UT VULGO DICITUR, HISTORIA MINOR. Vols. I., II., and III. 1067-1253. Edited by Sir FREDERIC MADDEN, K.H., Keeper of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1866-1869.

The exact date at which this work was written is, according to the chronicler, 1250. The history is of considerable value as an illustration of the period during which the author lived, and contains a good summary of the events which followed the Conquest. This minor chronicle is, however, based on another work (also written by Matthew Paris) giving fuller details, which has been called the "Historia Major." The chronicle here published, nevertheless, gives some information not to be found in the greater history.

45. LIBER MONASTERII DE HYDA: A CHRONICLE AND CHARTULARY OF HYDE ABBEY, WINCHESTER, 455-1023. Edited, from a Manuscript in the Library of the Earl of Macclesfield, by EDWARD EDWARDS, Esq. 1866.

The "Book of Hyde" is a compilation from much earlier sources which are usually indicated with considerable care and precision. In many cases, however, the Hyde chronicler appears to correct, to qualify, or to amplify—either from tradition or from sources of information not now discoverable—the statements, which, in substance, he adopts. He also mentions, and frequently quotes from writers whose works are either entirely lost or at present known only by fragments.

There is to be found, in the "Book of Hyde," much information relating to the reign of King Alfred which is not known to exist elsewhere. The volume contains some curious specimens of Anglo-Saxon and Mediæval English.

46. CHRONICON SCOTORUM: A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, from the EARLIEST TIMES to 1135; with a SUPPLEMENT, containing the Events from 1141 to 1150. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1866.

There is, in this volume, a legendary account of the peopling of Ireland and of the adventures which befell the various heroes who are said to have been connected with Irish history. The details are, however, very meagre both for this period and for the time when history becomes more authentic. The plan adopted in the chronicle gives the appearance of an accuracy to which the earlier portions of the work cannot have any claim. The succession of events is marked, year by year, from A.M. 1599 to A.D. 1150. The principal events narrated in the later portion of the work are, the invasions of foreigners, and the wars of the Irish among themselves. The text has been printed from a MS. preserved in the library of Trinity College, Dublin, written partly in Latin, partly in Irish.

47. THE CHRONICLE OF PIERRE DE LANGTOFT, IN FRENCH VERSE, FROM THE EARLIEST PERIOD TO THE DEATH OF EDWARD I. Vols. I. and II. Edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A. 1866-1868.

It is probable that Pierre de Langtoft was a canon of Bridlington, in Yorkshire, and that he lived in the reign of Edward I., and during a portion of the reign of Edward II. This chronicle is divided into three parts; in the first is an abridgment of Geoffrey of Monmouth's "Historia Britonum," in the second, a history of the Anglo-Saxon and Norman kings, down to the death of Henry III., and in the third a history of the reign of Edward I. The principal object of the work was apparently to show the justice of Edward's Scottish wars. The language is singularly corrupt, and a curious specimen of the French of Yorkshire.

48. THE WAR OF THE GAEDHIL WITH THE GAILL, or, THE INVASIONS OF IRELAND BY THE DANES AND OTHER NORSEMEN. Edited, with a Translation, by JAMES HENTHORN TODD, D.D., Senior Fellow of Trinity College, and Regius Professor of Hebrew in the University, Dublin. 1867.

The work in its present form, in the editor's opinion, is a comparatively modern version of an undoubtedly ancient original. That it was compiled from contemporary materials has been proved by curious incidental evidence. It is stated in the account given of the battle of Clontarf that the full tide in Dublin Bay on the day of the battle (23 April 1014) coincided with sunrise; and that the returning tide in the evening aided considerably in the defeat of the Danes. The fact has been verified by astronomical calculations, and the inference is that the author of the chronicle, if not himself an eye-witness, must have derived his information from those who were eye-witnesses. The contents of the work are sufficiently described in its title. The story is told after the manner of the Scandinavian Sagas, with poems and fragments of poems introduced into the prose narrative.

49. GESTA REGIS HENRICI SECUNDI BENEDICTI ABBATIS. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF HENRY II. AND RICHARD I., 1169-1192, known under the name of BENEDICT OF PETERBOROUGH. Vols. I. and II.

Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, Oxford, and Lambeth Librarian. 1867.

This chronicle of the reigns of Henry II. and Richard I., known commonly under the name of Benedict of Peterborough, is one of the best existing specimens of a class of historical compositions of the first importance to the student.

50. MUNIMENTA ACADEMICA, OR, DOCUMENTS ILLUSTRATIVE OF ACADEMICAL LIFE AND STUDIES AT OXFORD (in Two Parts). Edited by the Rev. HENRY ANSTEY, M.A., Vicar of St. Wendron, Cornwall, and lately Vice-Principal of St. Mary Hall, Oxford. 1868.

This work will supply materials for a History of Academical Life and Studies in the University of Oxford during the 13th, 14th, and 15th centuries.

51. CHRONICA MAGISTRI ROGERI DE HOVEDENE. Vols. I., II., III., and IV, Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1868-1871.

This work has long been justly celebrated, but not thoroughly understood until Mr. Stubbs' edition. The earlier portion, extending from 732 to 1148, appears to be a copy of a compilation made in Northumbria about 1161, to which Hoveden added little. From 1148 to 1169—a very valuable portion of this work—the matter is derived from another source, to which Hoveden appears to have supplied little, and not always judiciously. From 1170 to 1192 is the portion which corresponds with the Chronicle known under the name of Benedict of Peterborough (see No. 49); but it is not a copy, being sometimes an abridgment, at others a paraphrase; occasionally the two works entirely agree; showing that both writers had access to the same materials, but dealt with them differently. From 1192 to 1201 may be said to be wholly Hoveden's work: it is extremely valuable, and an authority of the first importance.

52. WILLELMI MALMESBIRIENSIS MONACHI DE GESTIS PONTIFICUM ANGLORUM LIBRI QUINQUE. Edited, from William of Malmesbury's Autograph MS., by N. E. S. A. HAMILTON, Esq., of the Department of Manuscripts, British Museum. 1870.

William of Malmesbury's "Gesta Pontificum" is the principal foundation of English Ecclesiastical Biography, down to the year 1122. The manuscript which has been followed in this Edition is supposed by Mr. Hamilton to be the author's autograph, containing his latest additions and amendments.

53. HISTORIC AND MUNICIPAL DOCUMENTS OF IRELAND, FROM THE ARCHIVES OF THE CITY OF DUBLIN, &c. 1172-1320. Edited by JOHN T. GILBERT, Esq., F.S.A., Secretary of the Public Record Office of Ireland. 1870.

A collection of original documents, elucidating mainly the history and condition of the municipal, middle, and trading classes under or in relation with the rule of England in Ireland,—a subject hitherto in almost total obscurity. Extending over the first hundred and fifty years of the Anglo-Norman settlement, the series includes charters, municipal laws and regulations, rolls of names of citizens and members of merchant-guilds, lists of commodities with their rates, correspondence, illustrations of relations between ecclesiastics and laity; together with many documents exhibiting the state of Ireland during the presence there of the Scots under Robert and Edward Bruce.

54. THE ANNALS OF LOCH CÉ. A CHRONICLE OF IRISH AFFAIRS, FROM 1014 to 1590. Vols. I. and II. Edited, with a Translation, by WILLIAM MAUNSELL HENNESSY, Esq., M.R.I.A. 1871.

The original of this chronicle has passed under various names. The title of "Annals of Loch Cé" was given to it by Professor O'Curry, on the ground that it was transcribed for Brian Mac Dermot, an Irish chieftain, who resided on the island in Loch Cé, in the county of Roscommon. It adds much to the materials for the civil and ecclesiastical history of Ireland; and contains many curious references to English and foreign affairs, not noticed in any other chronicle.

55. MONUMENTA JURIDICA. THE BLACK BOOK OF THE ADMIRALTY, WITH APPENDICES. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1871-1876.

This book contains the ancient ordinances and laws relating to the navy and was probably compiled for the use of the Lord High Admiral of England. Selden calls it the "jewel of the Admiralty Records." Prynne ascribes to the Black Book the same authority in the Admiralty as the Black and Red Books have in the Court of Exchequer, and most English writers on maritime law recognize its importance.

56. MEMORIALS OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VI.:—OFFICIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THOMAS BEKYNTON, SECRETARY TO HENRY VI., AND BISHOP OF BATH AND WELLS. Edited, from a MS. in the Archiepiscopal Library at Lambeth, with an Appendix of Illustrative Documents, by the Rev. GEORGE WILLIAMS, B.D., Vicar of Ringwood, late Fellow of King's College, Cambridge. Vols. I. and II. 1872.

These curious volumes are of a miscellaneous character, and were probably compiled under the immediate direction of Bekynton before he had attained to the Episcopate. They contain many of the Bishop's own letters, and several written by him in the King's name; also letters to himself while Royal Secretary, and others addressed to the King. This work elucidates some points in the history of the nation during the first half of the fifteenth century.

57. MATTHÆI PARISIENSIS, MONACHI SANCTI ALBANI, CHRONICA MAJORA. Vol. I. The Creation to A.D. 1066. Vol. II. A.D. 1067 to A.D. 1216. Vol. III. A.D. 1216 to A.D. 1239. Vol. IV. A.D. 1240 to A.D. 1247. Vol. V. A.D. 1248 to A.D. 1259. Vol. VI. Additamenta. Edited by HENRY RICHARDS LUARD, D.D., Fellow of Trinity College, Registry of the University, and Vicar of Great St. Mary's, Cambridge. 1872-1882.

This work contains the "Chronica Majora" of Matthew Paris, one of the most valuable and frequently consulted of the ancient English Chronicles. It is published from its commencement, for the first time. The editions by Archbishop Parker, and William Wats, severally begin at the Norman Conquest.

58. MEMORIALE FRATRIS WALTERI DE COVENTRIA.—THE HISTORICAL COLLECTIONS OF WALTER OF COVENTRY. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the MS. in the Library of Corpus Christi College, Cambridge, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1872-1873.

This work, now printed in full for the first time, has long been a desideratum by Historical Scholars. The first portion, however, is not of much importance, being only a compilation from earlier writers. The part relating to the first quarter of the thirteenth century is the most valuable and interesting.

59. THE ANGLO-LATIN SATIRICAL POETS AND EPIGRAMMATISTS OF THE TWELFTH CENTURY. Vols. I. and II. Collected and edited by THOMAS WRIGHT, Esq., M.A., Corresponding Member of the National Institute of France (Académie des Inscriptions et Belles-Lettres). 1872.

The Poems contained in these volumes have long been known and appreciated as the best satires of the age in which their authors flourished, and were deservedly popular during the 13th and 14th centuries.

60. MATERIALS FOR A HISTORY OF THE REIGN OF HENRY VII., FROM ORIGINAL DOCUMENTS PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vols. I. and II. Edited by the Rev. WILLIAM CAMPBELL, M.A., one of Her Majesty's Inspectors of Schools. 1873-1877.

These volumes are valuable as illustrating the acts and proceedings of Henry VII. on ascending the throne, and shadow out the policy he afterwards adopted.

61. HISTORICAL PAPERS AND LETTERS FROM THE NORTHERN REGISTERS. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1873.

The documents in this volume illustrate, for the most part, the general history of the north of England, particularly in its relation to Scotland.

62. REGISTRUM PALATINUM DUNELMENSE. THE REGISTER OF RICHARD DE KELLAWE, LORD PALATINE AND BISHOP OF DURHAM; 1311-1316. Vols. I., II., III., and IV. Edited by Sir THOMAS DUFFUS HARDY, D.C.L., Deputy Keeper of the Public Records. 1873-1878.

Bishop Kellawe's Register contains the proceedings of his prelacy, both lay and ecclesiastical, and is the earliest Register of the Palatinate of Durham.

63. MEMORIALS OF SAINT DUNSTAN ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Edited, from various MSS., by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1874.

This volume contains several lives of Archbishop Dunstan, one of the most celebrated Primates of Canterbury. They open various points of Historical and Literary interest, without which our knowledge of the period would be more incomplete than it is at present.

64. CHRONICON ANGLIÆ, AB ANNO DOMINI 1328 USQUE AD ANNUM 1388, AUCTORE MONACHO QUODAM SANCTI ALBANI. Edited by EDWARD MAUNDE THOMPSON, Esq., Barrister-at-Law, and Assistant-Keeper of the Manuscripts in the British Museum. 1874.

This chronicle gives a circumstantial history of the close of the reign of Edward III. which has hitherto been considered lost.

65. THOMAS SAGA ERKIBYSKUPS. A LIFE OF ARCHBISHOP THOMAS BECKET, IN ICELANDIC. Vol. I. Edited, with English Translation, Notes, and Glossary, by M. EIRÍKR MAGNÚSSON, Sub-Librarian of the University Library, Cambridge. 1875.

This work is derived from the Life of Becket written by Benedict of Peterborough, and apparently supplies the missing portions in Benedict's biography.

66. RADULPHI DE COGGESHALL CHRONICON ANGLICANUM. Edited by the REV. JOSEPH STEVENSON, M.A. 1875.

This volume contains the "Chronicon Anglicanum," by Ralph of Coggeshall, the "Libellus de Expugnacione Terræ Sanctæ per Saladinum," usually ascribed to the same author, and other pieces of an interesting character.

67. MATERIALS FOR THE HISTORY OF THOMAS BECKET, ARCHBISHOP OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I., II., III., IV., V., and VI. Edited by the Rev. JAMES CRAIGIE ROBERTSON, M.A., Canon of Canterbury. 1875-1882.

This Publication will comprise all contemporary materials for the history of Archbishop Thomas Becket. The first volume contains the life of that celebrated man, and the miracles after his death, by William, a monk of Canterbury. The second, the life by Benedict of Peterborough; John of Salisbury; Alan of Tewkesbury; and Edward Grim. The third, the life by William Fitzstephen; and Herbert of Bosham. The fourth, Anonymous lives, Quadri-logus, &c. The fifth and sixth volumes, the Epistles, and known letters.

68. RADULFI DE DICETO DECANI LUNDONIENSIS OPERA HISTORICA. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF MASTER RALPH DE DICETO, DEAN OF LONDON. Vols. I. and II. Edited, from the Original Manuscripts, by WILLIAM STUBBS, M.A., Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford. 1876.

The Historical Works of Ralph de Diceto are some of the most valuable materials for British History. The Abbreviationes Chronicorum extend from the Creation to 1147, and the Ymagines Historiarum to 1201.

69. ROLL OF THE PROCEEDINGS OF THE KING'S COUNCIL IN IRELAND, FOR A PORTION OF THE 16TH YEAR OF THE REIGN OF RICHARD II. 1392-93. Edited by the Rev. JAMES GRAVES, A.B. 1877.

This Roll throws considerable light on the History of Ireland at a period little known. It seems the only document of the kind extant.

70. HENRICI DE BRACON DE LEGIBUS ET CONSUETUDINIBUS ANGLIÆ LIBRI QUINQUE IN VARIOS TRACTATUS DISTINCTI. AD DIVERSORUM ET VETUSTISSIMORUM CODICUM COLLATIONEM TYPIS VULGATI. Vols. I., II., III., IV. and V. Edited by SIR TRAVERS TWISS, Q.C., D.C.L. 1878-1882.

This is a new edition of Bracton's celebrated work, collated with MSS. in the British Museum; the Libraries of Lincoln's Inn, Middle Temple, and Gray's Inn; Bodleian Library, Oxford; the Bibliothèque Nationale, Paris; &c.

71. THE HISTORIANS OF THE CHURCH OF YORK, AND ITS ARCHBISHOPS. Vol. I. Edited by JAMES RAINE, M.A., Canon of York, and Secretary of the Surtees Society. 1879.

This will form a complete "Corpus Historicum Eboracense," a work very much needed, and of great value to the Historical Inquirer.

72. REGISTRUM MALMESBURIENSE. THE REGISTER OF MALMESBURY ABBEY; PRESERVED IN THE PUBLIC RECORD OFFICE. Vol. I. and II. Edited by J. S. BREWER, M.A., Preacher at the Rolls, and Rector of Toppesfield, and CHARLES TRICE MARTIN Esq., B.A. 1879, 1880.

This work throws light upon many curious points of history, and illustrates the growth of society, the distribution and cultivation of land, the relations of landlord and tenant, and national history and customs.

73. HISTORICAL WORKS OF GERVASE OF CANTERBURY. Vols. I. and II. THE CHRONICLE OF THE REIGNS OF STEPHEN, HENRY II., AND RICHARD I. BY GERVASE, THE MONK OF CANTERBURY. Edited by WILLIAM STUBBS, D.D.; Canon Residentiary of St. Paul's, London; Regius Professor of Modern History, and Fellow of Oriel College, Oxford; &c. 1879, 1880.

The Historical Works of Gervase of Canterbury are of great importance, as regards the questions of Church and State, during the period in which he wrote. This work was printed by Twysden, in the "Historiæ Anglicanæ Scriptores X.," more than two centuries ago. The present edition has received critical examination and illustration.

74. HENRICI ARCHIDIACONI HUNTENDUNENSIS HISTORIA ANGLORUM. THE HISTORY OF THE ENGLISH, BY HENRY, ARCHDEACON OF HUNTINGDON, from A.C. 55 to A.D. 1154, in Eight Books. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1879.

Henry of Huntingdon's work was first printed by Sir Henry Savile, in 1596, in his "Scriptores post Bedam," and reprinted at Frankfort in 1601. Both editions are very rare and inaccurate. The first five books of the History were published in 1848 in the "Monumenta Historica Britannica," which is out of print. The present volume contains the whole of the manuscript of Huntingdon's History in eight books, collated with a manuscript lately discovered at Paris.

75. THE HISTORICAL WORKS OF SYMEON OF DURHAM. Vol. I. Edited by THOMAS ARNOLD, M.A., of University College, Oxford. 1882.

WORKS PUBLISHED IN PHOTOZINCOGRAPHY.

DOMESDAY BOOK, or the GREAT SURVEY OF ENGLAND OF WILLIAM THE CONQUEROR, 1086 ; fac-simile of the Part relating to each county, separately (with a few exceptions of double counties). Photozincographed, by Her Majesty's Command, at the Ordnance Survey Office, Southampton, Colonel SIR HENRY JAMES, R.E., F.R.S., &c., Director. 35 Parts, imperial quarto and demy quarto (1861-1863) boards. Price 8s. to 1l. 3s. each Part, according to size ; or, bound in 2 Vols., 20l. (The edition in two volumes is out of print.)

This important and unique survey of the greater portion of England* is the oldest and most valuable record in the national archives. It was commenced about the year 1084 and finished in 1086. Its compilation was determined upon at Gloucester by William the Conqueror, in council, in order that he might know what was due to him, in the way of tax, from his subjects, and that each at the same time might know what he had to pay. It was compiled as much for their protection as for the benefit of the sovereign. The nobility and people had been grievously distressed at the time by the king bringing over large numbers of French and Bretons, and quartering them on his subjects, "each according to the measure of his land," for the purpose of resisting the invasion of Cnut, King of Denmark, which was apprehended. The commissioners appointed to make the survey were to inquire the name of each place ; who held it in the time of King Edward the Confessor ; the present possessor ; how many hides were in the manor ; how many ploughs were in demesne ; how many homagers ; how many villeins ; how many cottars ; how many serving men ; how many free tenants ; how many tenants in soccage ; how much wood, meadow, and pasture ; the number of mills and fish-ponds ; what had been added or taken away from the place ; what was the gross value in the time of Edward the Confessor ; the present value ; and how much each free man or soc-man had, and whether any advance could be made in the value. Thus could be ascertained who held the estate in the time of King Edward ; who then held it ; its value in the time of the late king ; and its value as it stood at the formation of the survey. So minute was the survey, that the writer of the contemporary portion of the Saxon Chronicle records, with some asperity—"So very narrowly he caused it to be traced out, that there was not a single hide, nor one virgate of land, nor even, it is shame to tell, though it seemed to him no shame to do, an ox, nor a cow, nor a swine was left, that was not set down."

Domesday Survey is in two parts or volumes. The first, in folio, contains the counties of Bedford, Berks, Bucks, Cambridge, Chester and Lancaster, Cornwall, Derby, Devon, Dorset, Gloucester, Hants, Hereford, Herts, Huntingdon, Kent, Leicester and Rutland, Lincoln, Middlesex, Northampton, Nottingham, Oxford, Salop, Somerset, Stafford, Surrey, Sussex, Warwick, Wilts, Worcester, and York. The second volume, in quarto, contains the counties of Essex, Norfolk, and Suffolk.

Domesday Book was printed verbatim et literatim during the last century, in consequence of an address of the House of Lords to King George III. in 1767. It was not, however, commenced until 1773, and was completed early in 1783. In 1860, Her Majesty's Government, with the concurrence of the Master of the Rolls, determined to apply the art of photozincography to the production of a fac-simile of Domesday Book, under the superintendence of Colonel Sir Henry James, R.E., Director of the Ordnance Survey, Southampton. The fac-simile was completed in 1863.
